Margaret Beckett: The UK is working closely with international partners in multilateral fora and in ad-hoc groupings to ensure that Iran takes the steps necessary to guarantee that its nuclear programme is exclusively for peaceful purposes. We continue to maintain strict national export controls in fulfilment of our obligations and commitments, including under the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty and the Nuclear Suppliers Group.

Palestinian Authority

15. James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with her US counterparts on the funding of the Palestinian Authority. [72691]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary raised the importance of developing a temporary international funding mechanism to channel donor funds with US Secretary of State Rice on 9 May and Deputy Secretary of State Robert Zoellick on 17 May.

Proliferation

16. Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she had on proliferation with her UN Security Council counterparts during her recent visit to New York. [72692]

Margaret Beckett: I had no discussions on proliferation issues during my visit to New York other than those on Iran.

Arms Export Controls

19. Chris McCafferty: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress there has been towards further arms export controls; and if she will make a statement. [72695]

Margaret Beckett: The Government continue to work to strengthen regulation of the arms trade and counter the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. Key current goals are securing the launch of a UN-based process toward an international arms trade treaty, and also seeking agreement within the UN Programme of Action to establish minimum criteria for controls on the transfer of Small Arms and Light Weapons.

Montenegro

20. Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her EU counterparts on the referendum in Montenegro on 21 May. [72696]

Mr. Hoon: The Montenegrin Referendum was discussed at the General Affairs and External Relations Council, which I attended, on 15 May.

Following the vote on 21 May, the Head of the Referendum Commission stated at a news conference this morning that the preliminary result shows a majority in favour of independence at 55.5 per cent. with a turnout of 86.49 per cent.

The EU has issued a declaration welcoming the conduct of the referendum.

I issued a press statement this morning noting that the people of Montenegro have expressed a clear desire for an independent state and calling on all sides in Montenegro, and the Serbian Authorities, to work together to determine the way forward.

Karen People (Burma)

21. Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the situation of Karen people in Burma. [72698]

Mr. Hoon: We condemn the Burmese army's attacks on civilians in Karen State, which have forced thousands to flee their homes and seek refuge on the Thai/Burmese border. My right hon. Friend the Minister of State for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs, Ian McCartney, will shortly be calling in the Burmese Ambassador to express our concern about the situation.

Palestinian Aid

22. Helen Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the impact on the Palestinian people of the decision by the EU to suspend aid. [72699]

Dr. Howells: The EU continues to provide aid to the Palestinian people. Following the Hamas-led Palestinian Authority's (PA) failure to commit to the three Quartet principles direct budgetary assistance to the PA has been suspended.

The 15 May General Affairs and External Relations Council concluded that an international mechanism would be urgently established to direct delivery and supervise assistance to the Palestinian people.

EU Constitution

23. Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on progress made on the EU constitution. [72700]

Mr. Hoon: Following the rejection of the Treaty in the Dutch and French referendums, the European Council agreed on a period of reflection to consider the way forward. The European Council will come back to the matter this June. We will participate constructively in these discussions.

Darfur

24. Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the peace process in Darfur. [72701]

Dr. Howells: We welcome the signature of the Darfur Peace Agreement by the Government of Sudan and the largest rebel faction. This followed intense efforts by the UK and others to agree a deal. We call on those parties who have signed the agreement to begin implementation immediately; and on those who have not to join the agreement and help rebuild peace in Darfur.

BBC World Service

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many hours a week was broadcast by the BBC World Service to (a) Bhutan and (b) Nepal in (i) television and (ii) radio format in the last year for which figures are available. [71725]

Mr. McCartney: There is no dedicated service to Bhutan. But SW transmissions of the Bengali, Nepalese and English services are audible there. The dedicated Nepalese service is delivered on SW and FM. FM transmissions were adversely affected by recent political events. These should return to normal soon. SW transmissions in English and Hindi can also be heard in Nepal. Details are:

Bhutan English (115.5 hours per week), Bengali (10.5 hours per week), Nepalese (3.5 hours per week)

Nepal English (129.5 hours per week), Nepalese (3.5 hours per week), Hindi (17.5 hours per week)

From March to end September 2005, the Nepalese Service also broadcast an additional 15 minutes daily but this was discontinued in October. The World Service does not broadcast via television.

Children's Services

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many nursery and creche places are provided for people working in her Department; what charges are made for the provision of such services; and what other facilities are provided for children of employees of her Department. [67372]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) runs two in-house nurseries in London and Hanslope Park, with a total of 67 places.

The London nursery, managed by Bright Horizons, has 36 places for children from six months to five years. Fees are subsidised and are charged according to grades, ranging from £23 to £34 per day. The Hanslope Park nursery is run by a management committee comprising of volunteer FCO staff and has a capacity of 31 places for children from three months to five years. Fees are £115 per week for children under two and £104 for children two and over. The fees are used to pay staff wages. Services such as water, heat, power etc. are subsidised by the FCO at a cost of £115 per week.

Five subsidised places were offered at Buffer Bear nurseries in commuter areas but because of the low take up of places this contract is not being renewed from end April 2006.

The FCO pay a 50 per cent. subsidy for places used by schoolchildren of FCO staff at the Westminster Play Scheme, which runs during normal school holidays.

We have also introduced from 1 April 2006 "salary sacrifice" arrangements enabling staff to purchase child care vouchers at a discount.

China

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps her Department is taking to encourage China to improve its human rights record following its election to the United Nations Human Rights Council. [72378]

Mr. McCartney: We continue to raise human rights concerns regularly with the Chinese Government, through ministerial contact, the UK-China Human Rights Dialogue and EU mechanisms. We will expect every member of the Human Rights Council, including China, to co-operate fully with the council and take very seriously the responsibility that they will have for the promotion and protection of human rights worldwide.

Diego Garcia

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with the US Administration on its lease of Diego Garcia; and if she will make a statement. [72981]

Mr. Hoon: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary of State has not had recent discussions with the US Administration on the international agreement entered into by the UK and the US in 1966. There is no lease.

The 1966 Exchange of Notes between the Government and the Government of the United States provides that the islands of the British Indian Ocean Territories, including Diego Garcia, shall be available to meet the defence needs of both Governments for an initial period of 50 years, i.e. until 2016, and continuing thereafter for a further period of 20 years unless terminated by either Government at the end of the initial period.

European Court of Human Rights

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she is making to the European Court of Human Rights for the removal of the language barriers highlighted in the recent Woolf Report on the working practices of that institution. [71535]

Mr. Hoon: The noble and learned Lord Woolf's report was a UK initiative, funded and supported by the Government. UK officials regularly raise the importance of implementing the recommendations in Lord Woolf's report, including those on language barriers, with the European Court of Human Rights and the Council of Europe.

My right hon. Friend the former Foreign Secretary (Mr. Straw) did not make representations on the report. My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs, Baroness Ashton of Upholland, represented the UK at the Council of Europe Ministerial on 19 May. She raised Lord Woolf's Report during her intervention, stressing that the UK supported its recommendations.

Leased Land

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) land and (b) property her Department (i) leases and (ii) leased in (A) 1979, (B) 1983, (C) 1987, (D) 1992 and (E) 1997 in (1) the Southend West constituency, (2) Essex, (3) Hertfordshire and (4) the Metropolitan Police area of London. [72116]

Margaret Beckett: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) is not leasing nor has leased in the years requested any land or property in the hon. Member's Southend West constituency, Essex or Hertfordshire.

The FCO is not leasing nor has leased in the years requested any sites or undeveloped land in the Metropolitan Police area of London, but currently leases property in that area as follows: 1 Carlton Gardens, 89 Albert Embankment (one floor of 15,000 square feet) and Lancaster House.

The FCO assumed, from the former Department of the Environment, responsibility for acquiring and holding its own premises in the UK only from 1 April 1996. In 1997 we leased in, the Metropolitan Police area of London, 1 Carlton Gardens and Lancaster House, and also office space at Cromwell House, Dean Stanley Street, 20 Victoria Street, 24 Whitehall, 10 Carlton House Terrace, 4 Central Buildings, Matthew Parker Street, 8 Cleveland Row, St James' and 1 Palace Street.

Ministerial Support Unit

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the (a) cost-effectiveness of the Ministerial Support Unit and (b) its impact on the morale of staff in her Department; and if she will make a statement. [68713]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The Ministerial Support Unit (MSU) was reviewed earlier this year. We concluded that further small changes were needed to its structure and responsibilities—in particular in the area of ministerial travel. These changes are now being implemented and we will review the overall impact of the MSU, including its cost-effectiveness, at the end of the financial year. Creating the MSU has caused some short-term disruption to the staff directly affected. But there is no evidence of a wider impact on morale in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Recruitment

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much (a) her Department and (b) its agencies spent on recruitment, search and selection agencies in each of the last five years. [68343]

Margaret Beckett: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) paid the following total amounts to recruitment, search and selection agencies in the last five years:

2002-03	2,484,105.83
2003-04	1,786,178.41
2004-05	670,488.95
2005-06	1,075,081.27

The FCO has responsibility for one Executive agency, Wilton Park. It made no payment to recruitment, search and selection agencies in any of the last five years.

The FCO uses the services of recruitment agencies for volume, specialist and senior appointments. Volume recruitment is handled under contract by Capita Resourcing. For specialist slots, we use the Cabinet Office's call-off contract to select agencies to handle positions which require specific skills. This contract is also used for senior appointments.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Consumer Advice

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to introduce a consumer advice handbook. [71347]

Mr. McCartney: DTI currently has no plans to develop or introduce a consumer advice handbook. However the introduction of Consumer Direct, a national telephone and online consumer advice service, has considerably raised the profile of consumer advice. By the end of June 2006, with the launch of the last three contact centres, Consumer Direct will be a fully national service providing a single national phone number that makes it easier than ever for consumers to get the advice and information they need.

The service is very popular and currently receives around 25,000 calls per week across England, Scotland and Wales. A recent customer satisfaction survey reported that 87 per cent. of callers were satisfied and eight out of 10 callers feel that they now have the confidence to deal with similar problems should they occur in future.

We are also funding a £45 million, two-year programme to provide face-to-face debut advice. About £16 million will go to citizens advice projects, £7 million to other voluntary sector advice agencies and the remaining £22 million to partnership projects involving both Citizens Advice and other advice agencies. The funds will pay for 500 new advisers who will help tens of thousands of families to tackle debt.

Copyright

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what recent guidance his Department has issued to (a) internet service providers, (b) telecommunication companies and (c) electronic hardware companies on discouraging the illegal use of (i) music and (ii) other creative content online; [72412]

(2) what measures the Government are taking to encourage (a) internet service providers, (b) telecommunications companies and (c) electronic hardware companies to promote responsible copyright awareness programmes to consumers. [72414]

Mr. McCartney: Although the IT and telecommunications sectors are not specifically being targeted, the Patent Office, as the DTI agency responsible for IP, is continuing to work with a range of partners to deliver a programme of IP awareness raising among all sectors of business. This builds on the success last year of the 'What is the key?' initiative, and includes responsible use of other people's intellectual property, as embodied by the CREATE principles. These principles were developed and endorsed by the Creative Industries IP Forum, which was chaired by Lord Sainsbury and the then Minister for Creative Industries and Tourism.

East Midlands Development Agency

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many cross-council meetings have been organised by the East Midlands Development Agency in 2005; and how many such meetings have been attended by (a) Bassetlaw and (b) Mansfield council. [71893]

Margaret Hodge: East Midlands Development Agency ('emda') does not organise specific cross-council meetings, but does work closely with a wide range of local authorities (counties, unitaries and districts) within the region on specific issues. Meetings are set up as and when they are needed and many involve wider partnerships, often including more than one local authority, 'emda' also works through existing groupings such as local government association where appropriate. During 2005 these meetings covered all aspects of the agency's agenda, including formal groups to consider issues such as Urban Policy and Rural Action Zones and ad-hoc meetings to cover specific issues (for example planning issues associated with major projects), 'emda' also consulted all local authorities on their strategy development, in particular related to the current revision of the Regional Economic Strategy, and invited councils to events such as their annual public meeting. Bassetlaw district council has attended two such events and Mansfield district council four events.

Energy Review

Dr. Whitehead: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will place in the Library a copy of the first draft of the Energy Review. [72666]

Mr. Darling: There is no written first cut of the Energy Review. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister was briefed by Ministers on 15 May on the findings thus far and the analysis of the scale of the energy challenge. Information highlighting some of the key findings are available on the No. 10 website at http://www.number10.gov.uk/output/page9469.asp The review will be published in the summer.

Imperial Measures

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether there are plans to introduce EU legislation which would prevent the use of certain imperial measures in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [72590]

Mr. McCartney: Current legislation permits the continued use of imperial units in certain contexts, including the use of imperial units as supplementary indications accompanying indications given in authorised (metric) units. The Government have no present plans for new legislation in this area. The permission for the use of imperial units as supplementary indications at present expires on 31 December 2009. However, the European Commission is, as provided for in directive 80/18 I/EC as amended, examining the working of that directive with particular reference to supplementary indications. The Government expects that the Commission will propose at least an extension of the permission for use of supplementary indications. The Government will consult widely on whatever proposals may be made by the Commission.

Income/Debt Statistics

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what studies he has commissioned to investigate the link between over-indebtedness and (a) income level, (b) unemployment and (c) educational achievement levels; and if he will make a statement. [71243]

Mr. McCartney: In 2004 the DTI commissioned MORI to complete a survey on over-indebtedness and its link to income levels, unemployment and social group ("Over-indebtedness in Britain: a DTI report on the MORI Financial Services survey 2004" http://www.cst.gov.uk/ccp/topics1/pdf1/debtdtionmori.pdf).

This followed a similar piece of work commissioned by the DTI in 2002 when Elaine Kempson of Bristol university carried out research into the links between over-indebtedness and income and unemployment.

In terms of a link between income and the likelihood of over-indebtedness, the survey concluded that those earning less than £9,500 a year were more likely to be over-indebted. On the issue of a link between unemployment and over-indebtedness the results were less clear, although it was noted that unemployed individuals are more likely to find keeping up with bills and credit commitments a 'heavy burden', as well as being more likely to have been in arrears on credit commitments for more than three months.

The Wealth and Assets Survey that is due to enter the field in summer 2006 will provide a much more detailed assessment of over-indebtedness and its links to income, assets such as houses and savings, employment and the educational background of survey participants. The survey is to be carried out over a substantial time period, taking multiple assessments of the participants over the period in order to map changes between areas such as employment, income and assets.

Insolvency Act

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many declared bankruptcies there were under the Insolvency Act 1986 in each of the last 10 years. [72296]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The following table shows the number of bankruptcies in the last 10 years in England and Wales:

	Bankruptcy orders
1998	19,647
1999	21,611
2000	21,550
2001	23,477
2002	24,292
2003	28,021
2005	47,291

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many appeals against insolvency declarations under the Insolvency Act 1996 there were in each of the last 10 years. [72297]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The table shows the number of bankruptcy orders made against individuals that have been annulled in the last 10 years on the ground that the order ought not to have been made, and the number of winding-up orders made against companies that have been rescinded over the same period:

	Annulment order	Number Rescission order
1996	21	127
1997	91	94
1998	141	73
1999	236	69
2000	415	178
2001	438	220
2002	339	130
2003	419	171
2004	399	122
2005	376	140

Insolvency Service

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many people have been employed in the Office of the Official Receiver in the Insolvency Service in each year since 1989; and if he will make a statement. [72408]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The total number of staff employed (full-time equivalent) in Official Receives' offices at the end of each year since 2003 is as follows:

Year ending March	Number
2004	1,126.99
2005	1,180.65
2006	1,377.04

Notes:
1. These figures include permanent and casual staff, but do not include short-term appointees or agency staff.
2. The numbers of staff employed by The Insolvency Service in earlier years are published in the Agency's Annual Report and Accounts.

Israel/UK Trade

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many officials in his Department are employed to increase trade between Israel and the United Kingdom; at what grade; and if he will make a statement. [72178]

Mr. McCartney: The commercial team in the British embassy in Tel Aviv comprises one UK-based D6 Head of Section and six local Israeli staff. In addition, UK Trade & Investment employs one Range 8 and one Range 6 officer in London, focused primarily on boosting trade and investment links with Israel, as well as more senior staff who have wider geographical responsibilities, which include Israel.

Ministerial Visits

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he last visited the state of Israel; what was discussed; when he next plans to visit the state of Israel; and if he will make a statement. [72179]

Mr. McCartney: I have not yet had the opportunity to visit Israel, but hope to be able to do so during my time as Minister for Trade.

Nuclear Power

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will conduct an assessment of the lifecycle carbon dioxide emissions of nuclear power. [72558]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department is aware of a number of studies estimating the total life-cycle emissions and carbon costs of nuclear power.

In November 2005 my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister announced that there would be a review of energy policy which would report in summer 2006. This will take account of external assessments of the total life-cycle carbon costs of nuclear power.

Offshore Petroleum Licensing

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what applications have been made in the 24th round of offshore petroleum licensing for production consents for field developments in the Cardigan Bay area; [72946]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 12 May 2006, Official Report, column 540W, on offshore petroleum licensing, when he expects to complete the Appropriate Assessment of potential impacts on the Cardigan Bay Special Area of Conservation in the 24th Licence Round; [72947]

(3) pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 13 March 2006, Official Report, columns 91-92WS, on offshore petroleum licensing, whether any of the 50 blocks that will not be offered for licensing at the request of the Ministry of Defence are in the Cardigan Bay area. [72948]

Malcolm Wicks: No 24th Round applications have been made, but the Round is open until 16 June. We will then consider whether or not to make licence awards. Drilling and production consents are not part of the licence award and have to be sought separately from my Department at a later stage and are subject to further environmental scrutiny.

It is not possible to give an exact date when the Appropriate Assessment will be concluded but it will be before any 24th Round licences are granted. This Assessment will cover all 24th Round acreage on offer, including those blocks in the Cardigan Bay area. We anticipate being able to award licences by the autumn.

Of the 50 blocks withheld from licensing at the request of the Ministry of Defence, none are in the Cardigan Bay area.

Pipe Organs

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent progress has been made in developing a formal application for the total exemption of the manufacture of new pipe organs from the Restriction of Hazardous Substances Directive. [72930]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The Department has been working with the pipe organ industry for some time and will continue to do so in order to secure a favourable outcome on this issue.

The UK Government do not consider that pipe organs should fall within the scope of this directive, a view widely accepted across Europe. The DTI is working closely with the European Commission and other EU member states to obtain agreement at a European level without the need for a formal exemption. Our aim is to reach a successful conclusion before the directive comes into force on 1 July.

Post Office Closures

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many post offices have closed in Suffolk in each year since 1997. [72605]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Information relating to post office branches for each parliamentary constituency is placed in the Libraries of the House on an annual basis. I have, however, asked Alan Cook, the managing director of Post Office Ltd., to provide a direct reply to the hon. Member as the question relates to operational matters for which the company is directly responsible.

Sunday Working

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what research he has undertaken on the impact of Sunday working on individuals working in the (a) food and (b) retail industry. [72058]

Mr. McCartney: From 13 January to 14 April we asked for views on all aspects of extending Sunday shop opening hours. We are currently analysing the large number of responses we received. We intend to publish a summary of the responses on the DTI website (www.dti.gov.uk/consumers/buying-selling/Sunday%20Shopping) within three months of the close of this consultation.

In addition we appointed Indepen Consulting Ltd. to produce an economic cost benefit analysis of easing the restrictions on Sunday shopping. We published Indepen's report on 5 May on the DTI website. Indepen's report includes some analysis of the impact on employment if large shops were allowed to open for longer on Sunday.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what assessment he has made of the impact of Sunday trading hours on employees who also have caring responsibilities; [72064]

(2) what assessment he has carried out to determine the impact of extending Sunday opening hours on children and families. [72065]

Mr. McCartney: From 13 January to 14 April we asked for views on all aspects of extending Sunday shop opening hours. We are currently analysing the large number of responses we received. We intend to publish a summary of the responses on the DTI website (www.dti.gov.uk/consumers/buying-selling/Sunday%20Shopping) within three months of the close of this consultation.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what research has been undertaken to examine the implications of extending Sunday opening hours; and what the terms of reference were for this research. [72135]

Mr. McCartney: The DTI appointed Indepen Consulting Ltd. to produce an economic cost benefit analysis of easing the restrictions on Sunday shopping. We published Indepen's report on 5 May on the DTI website:

www.dti.gov.uk/consumers/buying-selling/Sunday%20Shopping

The terms of reference for this analysis are included as an annex in the report.

From 13 January to 14 April we asked for views and evidence on all aspects of extending Sunday shop opening hours. We are currently analysing the large number of responses we received. We intend to publish a summary of the responses on the DTI website within three months of the close of this consultation.

Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment his Department has made of the available infrastructure capacity in the UK to handle waste in accordance with the waste electrical and electronic equipment directive. [72510]

Malcolm Wicks: Successful implementation of the waste electrical and electronic equipment directive will require appropriate infrastructure capacity to be in place at various points along the waste management chain. Delivery of this infrastructure is necessarily driven by market forces. The role of Government is to ensure that this market can operate properly by providing certainty about the regulatory environment. The Government are committed to implementing the WEEE directive as quickly as possible in consultation with stakeholders. The Department will issue a consultation paper and timetable for implementation before the summer recess.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts Council

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what date the Arts Council was first informed that the West Bromwich arts organisation, The Public, was likely to exceed the projected costs of constructing its new building; and what steps (a) the Arts Council and (b) her Department subsequently took. [68960]

Mr. Lammy: The Public informed Arts Council England that it was likely to breach its funding envelope in a report to the organisation on 31 January 2006.

The Arts Council consequently commissioned a stocktake report and options appraisal, and the funders agreed upon one of the recommended options and to make short-term cash-flow funds available. However, in spite of close working between all stakeholders, the Board of The Public acted on legal advice and registered for insolvency on 3 March 2006. The Arts Council has since assembled a client handling team and has been working with other funders and the administrators to make progress on completion of the building project and a sustainable business plan for The Public.

My Department have been kept informed of the situation while respecting the arms length principle. The Government Office for the West Midlands has attended regular stakeholder meetings with funders and the administrators. A meeting took place on 27 March between myself, the Member for West Bromwich, East (Tom Watson) and representatives from the Arts Council to discuss the situation at The Public.

BBC Licence Fee

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she expects to announce the new BBC licence fee settlement. [72571]

Mr. Woodward: The Government are currently conducting a funding review to determine the level of the licence fee to apply from April 2007. An announcement will be made in due course.

Correspondence

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Chelmsford of 23 January about the hon. Member for Havant (Mr. Willets) (ref 34665 and 39899); for what reasons there has been a delay in replying; and if she will make a statement. [72575]

Mr. Caborn: I apologise for the delay in responding to the correspondence from the hon. Member. I hope to provide you with a response shortly.

Internet Gambling

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what research she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the addictiveness of internet poker; [72399]

(2) what regulations govern the operation of internet poker; [72403]

(3) what assessment she has made of the extent of misuse of credit and debit cards by underage people in relation to internet gambling services; [72404]

(4) pursuant to the answer of 27 April 2006, Official Report, column 1234W, if she will commission research to establish the prevalence of problem gambling on the internet by (a) under and (b) over 18-year-olds. [72405]

Mr. Caborn: Under existing legislation it is illegal to operate remote gaming, including internet poker, from Great Britain. There are therefore no such sites currently based in this country. The Gambling Act, when fully implemented in September 2007, will enable remote gaming to be licensed and regulated in Britain. The Gambling Commission's programme of consultation on its new regulatory regime is currently under way.

In addition to the updated National Lottery Commission research referred to in my previous answer, the Gambling Commission's first prevalence study, which is currently under way, will look at the prevalence of problem gambling in those aged 16-years-old and over, across all gambling activities. My Department is now considering what additional research should be commissioned in this area.

Licensing Act/Gambling Act

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the impact of (a) the Licensing Act 2003 and (b) the Gambling Act 2005; and if she will make a statement. [71616]

Mr. Caborn: The Government believe it is too early to make any firm assessment about the impact of the Licensing Act 2003 either across the country or in any one area. It is, however, reassured by many positive examples which indicate an improving situation through better regulation, improved partnership working, targeted enforcement by police and local authorities, and proper engagement by all stakeholders.

The Government will continue to monitor the impact of the new legislation closely on a range on initiatives, including a programme of evaluation being conducted by the Home Office into the impact of the licensing reforms on crime and disorder.

A regulatory impact assessment of the Gambling Act 2005 was published on 21 April 2005. We are currently working through the programme of secondary legislation needed to implement the Act, in order that the process of implementation will be complete in September 2007. An assessment of the impact of the Act will be made after this process has been completed.

London Olympics

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games's legal contract with the International Olympic Committee for the 2012 Olympic Games permits betting on individual sporting events. [73196]

Mr. Caborn: Presently, British betting operators are permitted to take bets on a range of sporting events including the Olympic Games. We have no plans to legislate otherwise. LOCOG is aware of the existing legal position relating to betting in Great Britain.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which organisation has formal responsibility for ensuring a lasting legacy of increased sporting participation following the 2012 Olympic games; and if she will make a statement. [71614]

Mr. Caborn: The Olympic Board has overall responsibility for ensuring that the social, economic and sporting benefits from 2012 are maximised. The board have agreed that the Greater London Authority, the British Olympic Association and Government will work together to ensure that there is lasting legacy of increased sporting participation in London, and the wider UK, as a result of the 2012 games.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding within the World Class Pathway Summer Olympic Investment 2006-09 is earmarked for (a) the English Institute of Sport, (b) the Talented Athlete Scholarship Scheme and (c) TASS 2012 scholarships, broken down by sport in each case. [72055]

Mr. Caborn: UK Sport will be allocating £9 million per annum to the English Institute of Sport (EIS) through its World Class Pathway programme for the benefit of summer Olympic sports over the period 2006-09. UK Sport is currently in discussion with the EIS and the Summer Olympic sports to determine an appropriate level of funding on a sport by sport basis over this period.

The Department has confirmed funding for both TASS and TASS 2012 Scholarships up to the end of the 2007-08 financial year. UK Sport has been allocated £3 million and £1 million per annum to TASS and TASS 2012 Scholarships respectively to cover the costs of sporting services provided to athletes. An additional 1 million per annum has been allocated to cover specific additional athlete support, such as medical support, the TASS Hardship Fund, institutional staff training, educational review (2012 athletes), attendance at the World University Games, as well as the schemes administration costs.

National Governing Bodies of sport have been invited to put forward their athlete nominations for this academic year, 1 August to 31 July, for consideration by UK Sport and the TASS National Manager. Until this process is complete we are not in a position to confirm the funding allocation to each sport with regard to TASS and TASS 2012 Scholarships.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what public funding has been made available to people with physical and learning difficulties to train and equip themselves for the Olympics in (a) 2012 and (b) 2008; and how many individuals have received such funding, broken down by sport. [72063]

Mr. Caborn: Athletes with a learning disability are currently ineligible under the International Paralympic Committee rules, from competing in the Paralympics and as a result UK Sport does not provide funding support to athletes with this disability.

UK Sport has allocated £19.1 million to assist athletes with a physical disability to train and compete at the 2008 Beijing Paralympics. The funding allocation to support disabled athletes beyond this period will be determined following a review of athlete performance at Beijing.

The number of athletes with a disability currently benefiting from the funding made available by UK Sport for the Beijing cycle is shown in the following table:

	Total
Archery	10
Boccia	5
Cycling	6
Disability Athletics	23
Disability Fencing	1
Disability Swimming	24
Disability Table Tennis	9
Disability Tennis	3
Equestrian	8
Judo	3
Powerlifting	4
Rowing	6
Sailing	6
Shooting	3
Wheelchair Basketball	12
Wheelchair Rugby	17
Total	140

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what is the average funding allocated to (a) a person with a physical or learning disability and (b) a person with no disability in preparation for the Olympic Games in (i) 2008 and (ii) 2012. [72067]

Mr. Caborn: UK Sport supports our very best athletes indirectly through funding support to the national governing bodies of sport and directly through Athlete Personal Awards (APA). The APAs are available to able bodied and disabled athletes, are paid directly to the athlete and are a contribution to their sporting and living costs.

The level of award is dependent upon whether the athlete qualifies for category A, B or C. funding. The category of award into which an athlete falls is based upon a number of criteria, including the most recent performance in major international competitions as well as their ability to deliver medal success at a future Olympics /Paralympics. The level of APA that an athlete is entitled to receive is the same, irrespective of whether they are a disabled or able-bodied athlete.

For both the 2008 and 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, the annual APAs are currently set at the following levels—"A" Category athletes £23,930, "B" Category athletes £17,948 and "C" Category athletes £11,965.

Millennium Stadium

Mr. Kilfoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations she has received on crowd crushes due to the collapse of safety rails outside the Cardiff Millennium Stadium on 13 May 2006; and if she will make a statement. [71988]

Mr. Caborn: I have received no representations about crowd crushes outside the Millennium Stadium on 13 May 2006. However, my officials have been informed by the Football Licensing authority that the incident which took place before kick-off was not caused by the failure of safety railings. Rather, the cause, as recorded in the formal report by the FLA officer in attendance, was the attempt by a large number of fans to rush the turnstiles at gate 2, as a result of which, three spectators are reported to have required treatment for injuries.

The local authority will review the matter at the next safety advisory group to ensure that this will be figured into future arrangements for events at the stadium.

Ministerial Visits (Accommodation)

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on how many occasions (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers in her Department have stayed overnight in (i) five star, (ii) four star and (iii) three star hotels in each of the last three years. [69121]

Mr. Lammy: An analysis by type of expenditure on travel and subsistence including hotel star rating is not recorded on the Department's accounting system and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost. In general, choice of hotels is influenced by cost rather than star rating.

Problem Gamblers (Tamworth)

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to her answer of 9 May 2006, Official Report, column 183W, to the hon.

Member for Tamworth (Mr. Jenkins), on problem gamblers (Tamworth), whether this figure is intended as the baseline figure against which the impact of problem gambling will be assessed. [71696]

Mr. Caborn: I can confirm that the figure of 0.06 per cent. will be used as the baseline figure against which the impact of problem gambling will be assessed.

Royal Parks

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions her Department has had with the Royal Parks Agency concerning the provision of motor cycle parking spaces within the Royal Parks; and if she will make a statement. [72655]

Mr. Lammy: DCMS has had no discussions with The Royal Parks Agency about the provision of motorcycle parking spaces within the Royal Parks. Motorcycles are already able to park wherever there is visitor parking provision in the Royal Parks. And in those parks which operate a pay and display system motorcycles are exempt from the charges. There are no plans to increase overall parking provision in the Royal Parks.

Sports Funding

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much has been distributed to sport from the national lottery in each year since 1997; and through which bodies it has been distributed. [72051]

Mr. Caborn: To pay Lottery grants and meet administrative costs, the five sports lottery distributors have drawn down the following amounts in each financial year:

	Amount (£ million)
1998-99	397.4
1999-2000	316.7
2000-01	292.5
2001-02	359.2
2002-03	377.5
2003-04	315.5
2005-06	264.0

The five bodies are Sport England, SportScotland, Sports Council for Wales, Sports Council for Northern Ireland and UK Sport.

Other lottery distributors have made grants that have directly or indirectly benefited sport, for example money to a village hall that has enabled people to play indoor football.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the Big Lottery Fund plans to give to sport in the period 2006 to 2009. [72816]

Mr. Caborn [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The Big Lottery Fund is the operating name of the National Lottery Charities Board and the New Opportunities Fund, working jointly together.

The Big Lottery Fund has committed £19 million to the School Sports Co-ordinator programme in England over the period 2006 to 2009. A further £438 million will be spent on sport-related activities across the UK from the fund's legacy programmes over this period. In addition, the fund has said it is likely to provide funding to sport-related projects under a number of its new programmes.

Talented Athlete Scholarship Scheme

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding is available to (a) the Talented Athlete Scholarship Scheme (TASS) and (b) TASS 2012 Scholarship in each year to 2012; and how much of that funding will be allocated to (i) summer Olympic sports, (ii) winter Olympic sports, (iii) non-Olympic sports, broken down by sport and (iv) paralympic sport. [72057]

Mr. Caborn [holding answer 18 May 2006]: The Department has confirmed funding for both TASS and TASS 2012 Scholarships up to the end of the 2007-08 financial year. Funding details beyond this period is therefore not available.

The annual allocation of funding up to the end of 2007-08 is £5 million, with £3 million and £1 million allocated to TASS and TASS 2012 Scholarships respectively to cover the costs of sporting services provided to athletes. The remaining funding will cover specific additional athlete support, such as medical support, the TASS Hardship Fund, institutional staff training, educational review (2012 athletes), attendance at the World University Games, as well as the schemes administration costs.

While the funding of TASS and TASS 2012 is based on a financial year, the athlete awards are made annually and run from 1 August to the 31 July. National Governing Bodies have been invited to put forward their athlete nominations for this year for consideration by UK Sport and the TASS National Manager. Until this process is complete we are not in a position to confirm the funding allocation across the sports requested.

Timber

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether it is her policy that only timber products certified by the Forest Stewardship Council will be used for the 2012 Olympics. [72427]

Mr. Caborn: The Government are committed to ensuring that we deliver not only the most successful Games, but also that they are environmentally, economically and socially sustainable. Environmental principles have been taken into account from the very earliest stages, influencing every aspect of planning for the Games and their legacy. The Candidate File, which set out the policy for the Olympic Games, states that the London Organising Committee's sustainability management system will ensure that environmental and sustainability criteria are taken into account in planning, tendering and procurement decisions, including support for independent certification of products, such as Forestry Stewardship Council timber.

Water Sports

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps her Department is taking to promote water sports. [72597]

Mr. Caborn: We are committed to encouraging more people to participate in water sports.

Sport England has so far awarded £367 million of Lottery funding to 538 water sports projects around the country.

The National School Sport Strategy has enabled further financial support for water sports through its Club Links workstrand. This workstrand aims to strengthen links between schools and local sports clubs and by doing so increase the number of children who are members of accredited sports clubs. In 2006-07, funding has been awarded through Club Links as follows:

Swimming	352,000
Sailing	97,500
Rowing	97,500
Canoeing	97,500

Funding has also been made available for water sports through the Step into Sport programme, which is part of the National School Sport Strategy. The programme provides a simple framework of opportunities at a local level to enable young people to experience sports leadership and volunteering. In 2006-07, funding has been awarded to the following National Governing Bodies of sport through the Step into Sport programme:

Swimming	20,000
Sailing	20,000
Rowing	20,000

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what publicly-funded resources are available for people with physical disabilities to train in water sports; and where these facilities are located. [72062]

Mr. Caborn: Sport England has awarded £367 million of lottery funding to 538 water sports projects around the country. Although it is not possible to assess which of these projects specifically target people with physical disabilities, any project receiving lottery funding would be expected to provide opportunities for all members of society, including disabled people.

TREASURY

Departmental Expenditure

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the 10 non-public sector entities that have received the largest total sum of payments from his Department in each of the last five years. [71815]

John Healey: The entities which received the largest total payments for each of the four financial years from 2002-03 to 2005-06 inclusive are as follows:

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
Carlson Wagonlit Travel UK Ltd	—	Yes	—	—
Centerprise International Ltd	Yes	—	—	—
Chessington Computer Services Ltd	Yes	Yes	—	—
Commonwealth Parliamentary Association	—	Yes	Yes	Yes
Computacenter (UK) Ltd	Yes	—	Yes	Yes
European Broadcasting Union	—	—	—	Yes
Exchequer Partnership plc	Yes	Yes	Yes	Yes
Inter Parliamentary Union	—	Yes	—	—
Jack Morton Worldwide Limited	—	—	—	Yes
Natwest Bank plc	Yes	Yes	Yes	Yes

Partnerships UK plc	Yes	Yes	Yes	Yes
Paymaster (1836) Ltd	—	Yes	Yes	—
Pitney Bowes Management Services Ltd	—	—	Yes	—
Royal Bank of Scotland	—	—	Yes	Yes
Robson Associates	Yes	Yes	Yes	Yes
Royal & Sun Alliance	Yes	—	—	—
Stationery Office	Yes	Yes	Yes	—
UBS AG Bank	—	—	—	Yes

An equivalent list for 2001-02 could be provided only at disproportionate cost because of a change in accounting system in 2002-03. The lists cover payments made by the Treasury on behalf of the Treasury and the Debt Management Office, who operate a combined supplier payments system.

It has been drawn to my attention by Treasury officials that there was a mistake in the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Leicester, East (Keith Vaz) on 15 May 2006, Official Report, column 709W, on the matter of consultancy fees paid by the Treasury in 2005-06. Some of the figures in the table accompanying my answer were understated because of a fault in the software programme that was used to extract them. A corrected table has been placed in the Library of the House. I very much regret this inadvertent error.

HM Revenue and Customs

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many times the HM Revenue and Customs website was (a) overloaded, (b) off-line, (c) slowed up through demand and (d) unable to offer complete access in each of the last 24 months for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [72017]

Dawn Primarolo: The information is not readily available in the format or for the whole period requested. However HMRC's website has remained available to users continuously since October 2005.

From time to time however, certain online functions or pages of information and guidance within the website are withdrawn to enable maintenance, upgrades or updating of content.

At particularly busy periods—e.g. around filing dates—users of the website may occasionally experience access difficulties or slow running. On these occasions users will be advised to try again later. Users may also experience problems at other times for a variety of reasons outside of HMRC's direct control including—for example—the type of connection and equipment they are using and the speed and capacity of third parties' communications infrastructure.

Home Computer Initiative

Peter Luff: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to his answer of 3 May 2006, Official Report, columns 1718-21W, on the Home Computer Initiative, if he will give further consideration to the questions asked by hon. Members to satisfy himself that all the questions asked received substantive responses in the answer provided. [72570]

Dawn Primarolo: My reply of 16 May 2006 to the hon. Member's further question, Official Report, columns 830-31W, explained that my answer of 3 May 2006, Official Report, columns 1718-21W, was designed to enable a full, substantive statement on the Home Computer Initiative to be made to the House. That remains the position.

Information Technology

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent on information technology (IT) sourced from outside his Department in each of the last five years; who is responsible for such projects in his Department; and what IT (a) expertise and (b) qualifications they possess. [71813]

John Healey: The information is as follows.

Annual spend on IT

2002-03	5,300
2003-04	2,823
2004-05	4,281

Information on 2001-02 is not readily available and providing it would incur disproportionate costs.

Projects are the responsibility of the appointed project/programme managers. Depending on the scale of the project, project managers are expected to have increasingly formal training and background in project management. The current head of technical infrastructure came with a background in MOD procurement and has Prince2 and British Computer Society project management qualifications.

National Insurance Contributions

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the cost to the Exchequer of changing the lower earnings limit on national insurance contributions (NICs) to the equivalent of £7,500 per annum for (a) class 1 NICs, (b) class 2 NICs, (c) class 3 NICs and (d) class 4 NICs while simultaneously raising the upper earnings limit to the equivalent of £50,000 per annum. [71207]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 16 May 2006]: Raising the Lower earnings limit (LEL) would have the effect of removing employees whose earnings are between the current LEL and the new higher LEL from entitlement to contributory national insurance benefits.

Leaving the LEL unchanged but raising the earnings threshold at which class 1 national insurance contributions are payable by employees and employers to £7,500 a year, and raising the upper earnings limit to £50,000 a year, would lower national insurance contributions for 2006-07 by around £8 billion. This figure comprises £1.6 billion of primary contributions paid by employees, and £6.4 billion of secondary contributions paid by employers.

Raising the lower and upper profits limits for class 4 national insurance contributions paid by the self-employed to £7,500 and £50,000 respectively would lower national insurance contributions in respect of 2006-07 by around £80 million.

Class 2 national insurance contributions are flat-rate payments payable by all self-employed people unless they apply for a 'small earnings exception' if their earnings from self-employment are expected to be low (below £4,465 for 2006-07). In order to preserve entitlement to benefits the self-employed with low earnings may choose to pay class 2 contributions voluntarily.

Class 3 contributions are voluntary flat-rate payments and are paid by people whose contribution record would otherwise be insufficient to enable them to qualify for retirement pension and bereavement benefits.

The above estimates do not take any account of rebate payments in respect of contracting out, nor of increased payments of state second pension in the longer term for those not contracted out.

The figures also exclude any estimate of behavioural response, which could be significant given the scale of the changes.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will reply to Question 42761, tabled by the hon. Member for Bury St. Edmunds on 11 January 2006, on tax credit fraud. [71724]

Dawn Primarolo: I have done so.

Pensions

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guarantees the Government have given to private sector companies in respect of their pension liabilities. [66899]

Ed Balls: I refer my right hon. Friend to the answer which my hon. Friend the former Economic Secretary (Mr. Lewis) gave the hon. Member for Eastbourne (Mr. Waterson) on 3 May 2006, Official Report, columns 1723-24W.

Public Sector Accounting Units

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many accounting units are responsible for reporting to the Treasury across the public sector; if he will name the official concerned in each case; and what the professional accountancy qualifications are of each. [71731]

Mr. Timms: Information relating to accounting units is available in the Treasury publication of December 2005, "Delivering the Benefits of Accruals Accounting for the Whole Public Sector". The names of the officials concerned and their qualifications are not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Stamp Duty

Helen Goodman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of properties in England and Wales on which stamp duty was levied at a rate of one per cent. sold at between £60,000 and £120,000 in 2004. [72720]

Ed Balls: The number of residential transactions in England and Wales in 2004, costing between £60,001 and £120,000, on which one per cent. stamp duty was paid, is estimated to be 300,000. An additional 90,000 transactions were exempt from stamp duty as they took place in designated disadvantaged areas.

Kitty Ussher: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many properties sold in England and Wales attracted stamp duty in each year since 2000; and what proportion this number represented of (a) all properties in England and Wales and (b) the owner-occupier sector in each year. [72724]

Ed Balls: The following table gives the numbers and proportion of property transactions above the stamp duty threshold in England and Wales in each year since 2000. Figures for 2005 will be published in June 2006.

	Number of property transactions above lowest stamp duty threshold (Thousands)	As proportion of total transactions (Percentage)
2000	791	55
2001	913	63
2002	1,049	66
2003	975	73
2004	1,299	73

The numbers paying stamp duty will be lower due to the use of various reliefs for example disadvantaged area relief and group relief, registered social landlord relief. It is not possible to separately identify properties purchased by owner occupiers.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue has been raised from stamp duty on property transactions in each year since 2000. [72734]

Ed Balls: Stamp duty revenue on property transactions for each financial year is available at:
http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/stamp_duty/15_1_sep05.xls

Tax Credits

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many cases of tax credit fraud have been detected in each of the last six years; and how many resulted in successful prosecutions. [42761]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 26 January 2006, Official Report, column 2379W.

HMRC is planning to provide more comprehensive information on the level of claimant error and fraud.

Mr. Devine: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many people in Livingston received overpayments of (a) child tax credit and (b) working tax credit in 2005; [72279]

(2) how many people in Livingston received (a) child tax credit and (b) working tax credit in 2005. [72363]

Dawn Primarolo: Estimates for 2004-05 of the numbers of in-work families with tax credits awards, including information on overpayments and underpayments, by constituency, based on final family circumstances and incomes for 2004-05 are due to be published on 31 May 2006.

We do not produce statistics separately for child and working tax credits.

Hywel Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress has been made in ensuring that the most recently produced standard tax credit letters and forms are available in Welsh. [72572]

Dawn Primarolo: With the exception of the tax credits award notice and renewals pack, HMRC currently provide Welsh language versions of all standard tax credits letters and forms, including the claim pack.

More information is available on the internet at: www.hmrc.gov.uk/cymraeg/index.htm.

HMRC continues to explore the practicality of providing tax credit notices and renewals packs in Welsh and to discuss progress with the Welsh language board.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the tax credit office will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Chelmsford (Mr. Burns) of 11 November 2005 (ref 2005/11006403); for what reasons there has been a delay in replying; and if he will make a statement. [72574]

Dawn Primarolo: HM Revenue and Customs very much regrets the delay in replying to the hon. Member's letters. I understand that they have now done so.

Valuation Office Agency

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the Valuation Office Agency's training material on aspects of council tax, including dwelling house coding. [70681]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 6 February 2006, Official Report, column 1038W. This included training material on aspects of council tax. Any additional training is based on the Valuation Office Agency's council tax manual and instruction and advice documents to staff, which are available on the agency's website at www.voa.gov.uk.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Commission on Integration and Cohesion

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made in establishing the Commission on Integration and Cohesion. [71937]

Meg Munn [holding answer 18 May 2006]: The Prime Minister wrote to the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on 9 May asking her to chair the Commission on Integration and Cohesion that he announced last year.

It is intended that the Commission will produce a framework for the Government's future work on Integration and Cohesion. I will make an announcement about the way ahead shortly.

Corporate Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister on how many occasions he has accepted corporate hospitality in the last 12 months. [67533]

Angela E. Smith: I have been asked to reply.

Paragraph 5.28 of the "Ministerial Code" sets out the rules on the registration of hospitality.

Departmental Name Change

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the expected cost is of changing the name of her Department; and if she will make a statement. [69869]

Angela E. Smith: The Department will bear down on the necessary costs arising from the establishment of the Department for Communities and Local Government and at all times will look to achieve best value for money for the complete exercise.

The Department has allocated a budget of £8,000 to £12,000 for this exercise.

Grant Moneys

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what arrangements are in place for monitoring proper use of grant money allocated by her Department; and if she will make a statement. [72618]

Mr. Woolas: Grants, other than those paid to local authorities, are covered by a legal agreement called a grant funding agreement. In that my Department carefully defines the expenditure which is eligible for grant funding and that which is not, and we include conditions covering value for money and financial propriety.

Where these grants are over £20,000 a year then, by 30 September after the end of each year, the grant recipient must complete and submit to the Department a Statement of Grant Usage giving details of eligible expenditure during the funding period. This must be accompanied by a report from a reporting accountant, who must be a member of a supervisory body recognised by the Companies Acts, and be independent of the grant recipient using the definition given in section 27 of the Companies Act 1989.

Arrangements for European grants and grants to local authorities are similar, except that for local authorities, instead of a reporting accountant, the Audit Commission appoints an external auditor to carry out the work. Some grants provided to local authorities from Government Departments are on a non ring-fenced basis, that is with no conditions attached. However, local authorities are subject to a comprehensive statutory framework which governs the uses to which their income can be put, and the control and accountability of their financial transactions. Since 2002 local authorities have also been subject to a comprehensive performance framework which provides a rounded picture of local councils' performance. The framework provides the basis for establishing a more effective and efficient relationship between central and local government, based on performance and on risk.

Home Information Packs

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether the Department will retain an electronic database of home information packs. [64436]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

A register of completed home condition reports will be held by the Department in order to ensure the integrity of the reports. Data stored in the register will be accessible only to those parties having a legitimate interest in the transaction such as buyers, sellers, their advisers, and mortgage lenders, plus those ensuring the quality of the reports. Certification schemes will operate their own local registers. There will be no central database of home information packs.

Mr. Liddell-Grainger: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the expected total cost is of implementing home information packs over the next five years. [63788]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

A Regulatory Impact Assessment to be published alongside the regulations is to be laid next month.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister for what period of time a Home Information Pack will be valid. [64667]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

Neither the Housing Act 2004 nor the regulations made under the 2004 Act will prescribe a validity period for Home Information Packs. The regulations to be made later this year will provide that certain time-sensitive items in the pack (e.g. local searches and the Home Condition Report) are no more than three months old when marketing begins, but they will not require sellers to renew these documents thereafter.

Michael Gove: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the impact on the property market of the introduction of home information packs. [64927]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

An assessment of the impact of home information packs will be published shortly in a regulatory impact assessment to accompany regulations to be made under Part 5 of the Housing Act 2004. This assessment will be updated in the light of the findings of a baseline study of the home buying and selling process to be carried out this year and information obtained during the dry-run of home information packs.

Michael Gove: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister who will be liable for the costs of a new local authority search for a home information pack if the property for sale is still on the market after the search has been deemed out of date. [64950]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

It should be relatively a rare occurrence that searches become out of date as we expect that home information packs will speed up the buying and selling process. We are not proposing to stipulate whether the buyer or the seller should update searches as it is a matter of judgment when searches need to be refreshed. Where they do need to be refreshed this can be done for a fraction of the cost of new searches.

Michael Gove: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment has been made of the impact on competition within the estate agent sector of the introduction of home information packs. [64951]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The partial Regulatory Impact Assessment for Home Information Packs published in March 2003 (a copy of which is deposited in the House Library) covers the anticipated effect of the Home Information Pack on the estate agency sector. The Department also commissioned research "Litmus Test of Impact of Regulations on Small Businesses", DETR 2000, that examined the impact of the proposals on a range of small businesses, including estate agents.

Currently costs in the estate agent sector are not fully transparent. Over the last 10 years property prices have doubled allowing estate agents who keep their percentage fee broadly constant to significantly increase their income per transaction. The introduction of Home Information Packs will increase transparency over information and services provided to both sellers and buyers. This has the potential to increase competition and demand for transparency across the estate agency sector.

Michael Gove: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much has been allocated to raise public awareness of the home information pack scheme; and how it will be spent. [65064]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The Government have a duty to inform the profession, stakeholders and homebuyers and sellers about the forthcoming change in the law. Expenditure for the 2005-06 financial year was £706,000. This includes the cost of an extensive trade advertising campaign to raise awareness of the June 2007 implementation date within the home buying and selling professions.

Planned expenditure of £2,500,000 for 2006-07 includes continued awareness raising within the professions and a national and regional advertising campaign to raise awareness of home information packs among consumers, during the dry run.

In 2007-08 we expect to run a major information campaign for consumers which would include marketing, advertising and publicity. The extent of the campaign and the level of investment will be decided later in the year on the basis of the experience of the dry run.

Michael Gove: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many home inspectors have completed their training to provide home condition reports; and how many inspectors he estimates will need to have qualified to ensure an effective introduction of the home information pack scheme. [65071]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

4,400 Home Inspectors are in the process of being trained, and as of 30 April 2006 200 have completed their training. The amount of training required depends on previous experience but the average surveyor can be trained in around five days plus the time taken to assemble a portfolio of work. Over the next 12 months we expect thousands of Home Inspectors to complete their training in time for the implementation date of 1 June 2007.

We estimate that the number of Home Inspectors required will be between 5,000 and 7,400. This estimate has been developed in consultation with the industry, and it will be kept under review.

Michael Gove: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister where the proposed pilots for home information packs will take place. [65074]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

Home information packs will be tested through a dry-run before becoming mandatory in June 2007. The dry-run will include home information packs provided on a voluntary basis throughout England and Wales.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much his Department has allocated in funding for (a) marketing, (b) advertising and (c) publicity in relation to home information packs. [66321]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The Government have a duty to inform the profession, stakeholders and home buyers and sellers about the forthcoming change in the law.

Expenditure for the 2005-06 financial year was £706,000 of which:

(a) £175,000 was spent on marketing,

(b) £462,000 for planned advertising and

(c) £69,000 on planned publicity.

This includes the cost of a trade advertising campaign to raise awareness of the June 2007 implementation date within the home buying and selling professions.

Planned expenditure of £2,500,00 for 2006-07 is made up of:

(a) £628,000 on planned marketing,

(b) £1,700,000 for planned advertising and

(c) £172,000 on planned publicity.

This includes continued awareness raising within the professions and a national and regional advertising campaign to raise awareness of home information packs among consumers during the dry run.

In 2007-08 we expect to run a major information campaign for consumers which would include marketing, advertising and publicity. The extent of the campaign and the level of investment will be decided later in the year on the basis of the experience of the dry run

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what guidance the Government have given local authorities on charging for information for inclusion in home information packs. [66354]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

There has been no such guidance. The Home Information Pack will include standard local searches derived from local authority records. The Government are considering how to implement the recommendations of the Office of Fair Trading market study into property searches, including the provision of clear guidance for local authorities on how they should recover the costs of providing property information in compiled and unrefined forms. Under the current rules, the Lord Chancellor sets the charge for an "official" search of the local land charge register and local authorities may set their own charge for supplementary inquiries that covers the cost of providing information. We intend to apply this principle to any new charging arrangements for dealing with the provision of search information and will provide the appropriate guidance to cover them.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate his Department has made of the average amount of the compulsory insurance of last resort indemnity levy on home information packs. [66445]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The only new component of a home information pack will be the home condition report. These can only be provided by approved home inspectors. Details of the minimum insurance they will need to have will be set out in the Certification Scheme Standards that the Government will publish next month.

It will be the responsibility of the estate agents to ensure that home information packs are otherwise complete. They will be required to belong to an approved redress scheme.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how long a home information pack will be valid for before its contents will have to be updated; and if he will estimate the cost of updating the pack after (a) six months and (b) 12 months. [66447]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

Neither the Housing Act 2004 nor the regulations made under the Act will prescribe a validity period for Home Information Packs. However, we do not expect many properties to remain on the market for more than six months. The regulations to be made in June will provide that certain time-sensitive items in the pack (e.g. local searches and the Home Condition Report) are no more than three months old when marketing begins, but they will not require sellers to renew these documents thereafter. In practice, local authority searches are normally considered acceptable for six months as will Home Condition Reports. Where sellers choose to update time-sensitive documents in the pack, we expect the market to provide a means for them do so at a relatively small cost.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate the Government has made of the average level of charges by (a) the Land Registry and (b) local authorities for providing information for home information packs. [70637]

Yvette Cooper: The Home Information Pack will include the office copy of register entries where a property is registered on the Land Register. The Land Registry charge for this is £10. The average cost for local authority searches (i.e. an official search of the Local Land Charges Register and additional standard inquiries using form CON.29 Part 1) is estimated to be £160. Searches of local authority records carried out by private search companies are often cheaper and can be included in the Home Information Pack in certain circumstances.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many home inspectors are (a) certified and (b) in training. [70638]

Yvette Cooper: 4,400 Home Inspectors are in the process of being trained, and as of 30 April 2006 200 have completed their training. The amount of training required depends on previous experience but the average surveyor can be trained in around five days plus the time taken to assemble a portfolio of work. Over the next 12 months we expect thousands of Home Inspectors to complete their training in time for the implementation date of 1 June 2007.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what targets the Government have set in relation to the training of home inspectors. [70639]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

We estimate that the number of home inspectors required will be between 5,000 and 7,400. This estimate has been developed in consultation with the industry, and it will be kept under review.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether home inspectors can qualify via distance learning; and what the average length of the training course is. [70640]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The Awarding Body for the Built Environment (ABBE) offers the Diploma in Home Inspection through a number of assessment centres around the country. Although the most common route to obtain the qualification is by attending full or part-time courses at a college a number of assessment centres operate the qualification via distance learning.

The amount of training required depends on previous experience but the average surveyor can be trained in around five days plus the time taken to assemble a portfolio of work.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether (a) HM Revenue and Customs and (b) the Valuation Office Agency will have access to the Register of Home Condition Reports; and what representations her Department has received from each body on access to the Register. [70649]

Yvette Cooper: No. Neither HM Revenue and Customs nor the Valuation Office Agency will have access to the Register.

We received representations from various organisations including the Valuation Office Agency (but not HM Revenue and Customs) but concluded that access to the Register should be restricted by regulations to buyers and sellers, their advisers and mortgage lenders and those monitoring the performance and quality of the reports.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment the Government have made of the likely effects of the introduction of Home Information Packs on small estate agents. [70724]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

An assessment of the impact of Home Information Packs will be published shortly in a regulatory impact assessment to accompany regulations to be made under Part 5 of the Housing Act 2004. This assessment will be updated in the light of the findings of a baseline study of the home buying and selling process to be carried out this year and information obtained during the dry-run of Home Information Packs. Like other organisations in the property market small estate agents will need to adapt to the introduction of Home Information Packs in the interest of consumers.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans there are to monitor the effects on the housing market of the introduction of home information packs. [71037]

Yvette Cooper: An assessment of the impact of home information packs (HIPs) will be published shortly in a regulatory impact assessment to accompany regulations to be made under part 5 of the Housing Act 2004. This assessment will be updated in the light of the findings of a baseline study of the home buying and selling process to be carried out this year and information obtained during the dry-run of home information packs. We will also discuss specific market impact issues with stakeholders as we near implementation date and, together with the industry, monitor the operation of HIPs after implementation.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to set the cost of the home information pack. [71038]

Yvette Cooper: The cost of home information packs will be set by the market, not Government.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what plans he has to include details of whether land is contaminated within home inspection packs. [63182]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The home information pack will include a local search, which incorporates definitive information on whether the property is entered on the register of contaminated land that local authorities are obliged to maintain under the Environmental Protection Act 1990. The pack may also include additional search reports relating to actual or potential environmental hazards, including contaminated land.

Home Inspectors

Mr. Drew: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many home inspectors (a) have been trained, (b) are in training and (c) have expressed an interest in training. [63337]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

4,400 Home Inspectors are in the process of being trained, and as of 30 April 2006 200 have completed their training. The amount of training required depends on previous experience but the average surveyor can be trained in around five days plus the time taken to assemble a portfolio of work. Over the next 12 months we expect thousands of home inspectors to complete their training in time for the implementation date of 1 June 2007.

There is no central record of the number of people who have expressed an interest to become a home inspector but a high level of interest continues to be shown.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what plans the Government have to change the training period for Home Inspectors. [66232]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The Department will continue to work with the key parties including the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA), the Awarding Body for the Built Environment (ABBE) and the assessment centres to make sure that prospective Home Inspectors are trained as quickly as possible and at an acceptable cost.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the number of home information pack inspectors who will be required. [64665]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

We estimate that the number of home inspectors required will be between 5,000 and 7,400. This estimate has been developed in consultation with the industry, and it will be kept under review.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many Home Information Pack inspectors have been trained to date. [62292]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

4,400 Home Inspectors are in the process of being trained, and as of 30 April 2006 200 have completed their training. The amount of training required depends on previous experience but the average surveyor can be trained in around five days plus the time taken to assemble a portfolio of work. Over the next 12 months we expect thousands of Home Inspectors to complete their training in time for the implementation date of 1 June 2007.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many home condition inspectors have been trained; and how many are in training. [64340]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

4,400 home inspectors are in the process of being trained, and as of 30 April 2006 200 have completed their training. The amount of training required depends on previous experience but the average surveyor can be trained in around five-days plus the time taken to assemble a portfolio of work. Over the next 12 months we expect thousands of home inspectors to complete their training in time for the implementation date of 1 June 2007.

Housing (West Chelmsford)

Mr. Burns: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what steps he is taking to ensure timely development of infrastructure to keep pace with housing in construction in West Chelmsford constituency. [64723]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 24 April 2006]: I have been asked to reply.

Public sector investment in the eastern regions has increased substantially over the last nine years. Local authorities also have the ability to use S106 agreements to secure developer contributions.

My colleagues in the Department for Transport will consider any proposals for future infrastructure which may be identified by the local planning authority, for example in their Local Transport Plan, taking into account the priorities which the region has indicated.

The Government are currently considering the responses to the consultation on the Planning Gain Supplement which would help increase investment in infrastructure in the local areas experiencing housing growth.

Local Authorities (Work Force)

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she is taking to promote the employment of a mixed age work force among local authorities. [71638]

Meg Munn: Local authorities are independent employers. They recognise the benefits of recruiting, training, and retaining staff of all ages to help encourage a more diverse work force. The Local Government Employers (LGE) works with local authorities on issues regarding pay, pensions and the employment contract, in order to ensure best delivery of local services.

The Government are strongly committed to tackling age discrimination. New legislation, the Equality (Age) Regulations 2006, coming into force in October, will make unjustified age discrimination in recruitment, training, promotion or dismissal, unlawful for workers of all ages.

LGE has drawn up guidance information to help local authorities implement the new legislation. In addition, the Government also support mixed-age working through the Age Positive campaign led by the Department for Work and Pensions.

Ministerial Visits (Accommodation)

David Simpson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister on how many occasions (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers in his Department have stayed overnight in (i) five star, (ii) four star and (iii) three star hotels on foreign visits in each of the last three years. [69051]

Angela E. Smith: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is not collected centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Newcastle/Gateshead Pathfinder

Jim Cousins: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister, pursuant to the answer of 15 March 2006, Official Report, columns 2374-5W, on the Newcastle/Gateshead pathfinder, if he will place in the Library the strategic commission plans, programmes and budget allocations for each strategic commission area of the Newcastle/Gateshead housing market pathfinder. [69306]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

I shall place a copy of Bridging Newcastle's pathfinder scheme update, including its proposals for each strategic commission area, in the Libraries of both Houses.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she will provide a substantive reply to question 64723, on infrastructure in West Chelmsford, tabled by the hon. Member for West Chelmsford on 18 April. [72301]

Yvette Cooper: I have answered the hon. Member's question today. I apologise for the delay in replying.

Race Relations

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what projects the Government has commissioned to improve relations between black and Asian communities. [71179]

Meg Munn: The Government have not specifically commissioned projects to improve relations between black and Asian communities; however it has supported a range of initiatives which will improve community relations in general. For example, £18 million will be provided over three years by the 'Connecting Communities Plus' grant programme, and £.5 million was provided in 2005-06 by the 'Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund', in support of the Government's race equality and community cohesion strategy 'Improving Opportunity Strengthening Society'.

In addition public authorities have a statutory duty to promote good relations between persons of different racial groups. The Commission for Racial Equality (CRE) oversees this duty and published 'Promoting good Race Relations: A Guide for Public Authorities' in July 2005. The Equality Act 2006 prepares the ground for a new Commission for Equality and Human Rights (CEHR) which will absorb the activities of the CRE in 2009, and transfers this good relations duty onto the new body. To carry this out the CEHR will have new powers to monitor, as well as to make, co-operate with or assist in any arrangement s designed to reduce hate crimes. The CEHR will have particular regard to the importance of its work with different groups reflecting the historical origin of the duty.

The CRE also gives grants to organisations concerned with the promotion of race equality and good race relations through the 'Getting Results' programme. The programme will distribute c£4.2 million in the current financial year. In particular, Race Equality Councils (RECs) aim to improve relations between all communities, and over £2.5 million of the CRE's funding this year will go to RECs.

Register of Home Condition Report

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister which (a) Department and (b) agency will maintain the electronic register of Home Condition Reports; and whether the Government plan to use private contractors to develop the register. [66317]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

Each certification scheme approved by the Secretary of State will hold a register of Home Condition Reports completed by home inspectors accountable to them. A copy of each Home Condition Report will also be registered in a centrai register owned by DCLG. Potential suppliers were invited on 9 March 2006 to express and interest in providing the register. The technical requirements of the register have been developed in consultation with the industry.

Search Fees

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what discretion local authorities have (a) to levy and (b) to set fees for search services; and whether such fees are capped; [70610]

(2) what estimate the Government have made of the local authority revenue from search fees in each year since 1997. [70611]

Yvette Cooper: The Local Authorities (Charges for Land Searches) Regulations 1994 (SI 1994 No. 1885) provides local authorities with a discretionary power to charge for answering inquiries about land and property made in connection with home sales and other transactions. In determining the amount of the charge, each authority has to have regard to its costs in dealing with such inquiries.

Charges for local land charges register enquiries are prescribed by the Lord Chancellor. The current fees are set out in the Local Land Charges (Amendment) Rules 2003. The fee for an official search of the register is £6 (£4 if undertaken electronically). The fee for a personal search of the local land charges register is £11. Fees are also set for office copies and certain other types of application.

Second Homes

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many second homes for council tax purposes were recorded in England in (a) 1997-98, (b) 2005-06 and (c) the latest period for which figures are available. [72314]

Mr. Woolas: The number of properties in England designated as second homes and eligible for a discount in council tax as at 19 September 2005, the latest year for which figures are available. was 236,000.

The number of second homes as recorded for council tax purposes was not separately identifiable in 1997-98.

Staff Development

David Simpson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the total cost was of (a) staff away days and (b) staff team building exercises in his Department in each of the last three years. [69055]

Angela E. Smith: I have been asked to reply.

Full information on the total cost of staff away days and team building exercises organised by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister was not collated centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Transsexuals

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government are taking to ensure equality of access to services for transsexuals; and if she will make a statement. [72633]

Meg Munn: The Government made clear during recent parliamentary debates on the Equality Act that it will prohibit discrimination on grounds of gender reassignment in the provision of goods, facilities and services. The Government are taking forward the necessary work in the context of the Discrimination Law Review.

Valuation Office Agency

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 23 January 2006, Official Report, column 1814W to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman), on the Valuation Office Agency, what (a) statutory and (b) non-statutory obligations local planning authorities have to provide planning information to the Valuation Office Agency. [70565]

Mr. Woolas: Section 27(1) of the Local Government Finance Act (LGFA) 1992 prescribes that where a notice is served by a listing officer on a billing authority, requesting information relating to a property that he reasonably believes will assist him in carrying out his functions, then the authority must supply the information requested.

Section 27(6) of LGFA 1992 prescribes that, where in the exercise of its functions any information comes to the notice of a billing authority which it considers would assist a listing officer in carrying out any of his functions, it shall be the authority's duty to inform the listing officer.

Paragraph 6(1) of Schedule 9 of Local Government Finance Act 1988 prescribes that if in the course of the exercise of its functions any information comes to the notice of the billing authority which leads it to suppose that a list requires alteration it shall be the authority's duty to inform the valuation officer who has the duty to maintain the list.

Regulation 42(2) of the Non-Domestic Rating (Alteration of Lists and Appeals) (England) Regulations 2005 (SI 2005/659) specifies the information to be provided as:

(a) the address of the property;

(b) the nature of the event by reason of which, in the opinion of the relevant authority, the local non-domestic rating list is required to be altered;

(c) the day from which, in the opinion of the relevant authority, such alteration should take effect; and

(d) if the property is shown in a local non-domestic rating list, any reference number ascribed to it in that list.

Paragraph 7 of Schedule 4A to the Local Government Finance Act 1988 prescribes that a billing authority shall supply to the valuation officer a copy of any completion notice served by it; notify the valuation officer if it withdraws a completion notice and supply the valuation officer with details of any agreement to which it is party and by virtue of which a completion day is determined under Section 4A in relation to the building.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

China Task Force

Mr. Hands: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what plans he has to visit the 2008 Beijing Olympics as part of his ministerial role as head of the China Task Force. [71265]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I visited the site of the Beijing Olympics on my trip to China earlier this year and held discussions with the Mayor of Beijing. I have also discussed the Beijing and, more recently, the London Olympics as part of the annual visits I have made to China for the past eight years. UK Government representation at the 2008 Beijing Olympic Games has not yet been finalised.

Mr. Hands: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what priorities he has set for his role as head of the China Task Force. [71266]

The Deputy Prime Minister: The China Task Force was established as a result of my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister's visit to China in 2003, when he agreed with the Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao that a group should be set up to consider issues of interest to our two countries' bilateral relations. State Counsellor Tang Jiaxuan was nominated to be the chair for the Chinese side and the Prime Minister asked me to represent him.

The Task Force's remit covers trade and investment, education, science and technology, health, culture, environment and sustainable development, and development issues. These areas align closely with the areas identified for cross-departmental action being developed in response to the challenges of globalisation. The Task Force is recognised and valued by both the UK and Chinese Governments as a high-level contact mechanism for deepening relations in the areas under its remit.

Dorneywood

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what criteria he will apply for the issuing of invitations to Dorneywood. [69909]

The Deputy Prime Minister [holding answer 11 May 2006]: The criteria for the use of Dorneywood are set out in the terms of the charitable trust, established in 1942, which owns the property. The Prime Minister may nominate, at his discretion, a Minister of the Crown to become the resident. All residents have been required to abide by the terms of the trust, and I have fully done this. Since Dorneywood is a charitable trust, there is no cost to the public purse.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister on how many occasions he has offered hospitality at Dorneywood to members of (a) foreign and (b) Commonwealth Governments in each year since he took up residence. [70684]

The Deputy Prime Minister: The information requested is not collected. Use of Dorneywood is governed by the terms of the trust, which I abide by fully.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister which of his new responsibilities will qualify as official in relation to the use of Dorneywood for such purposes. [70143]

The Deputy Prime Minister [holding answer 11 May 2006]: The criteria for the use of Dorneywood are set out in the terms of the charitable trust, established in 1942, which owns the property. The Prime Minister may nominate, at his discretion, a Minister of the Crown to become the resident. Previous residents have included Chancellors, a Home Secretary and other Deputy Prime Ministers. All residents have been required to abide by the terms of the trust, and I have fully done this. Since Dorneywood is a charitable trust, there is no cost to the public purse.

Ministerial Duties

Mr. Amess: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether he will publish an annual report to Parliament on his ministerial duties; and if he will make a statement. [73320]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I shall remain fully accountable to Parliament, answering both written and oral questions in the usual way.

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much time per week he expects to be available for him to carry out his responsibilities as Deputy Prime Minister. [69969]

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what proportion of his working time he expects to spend on official Government duties. [70176]

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the proportion of his time which will be available for his role as Deputy Prime Minister. [69987]

The Deputy Prime Minister [holding answer 11 May 2006]: My right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister announced on 10 May 2006 that he has asked me to take on a new role overseeing and co-ordinating Government policy across the full range of domestic policy areas. He has also asked me to continue my international role, particularly with relation to China, and to work on delivering our post-Kyoto environmental objectives here in the UK. I shall, therefore, continue to play a full and active role, and will divide my time between these new responsibilities according to what is required.

Slavery

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether the Advisory Group on celebrating the bicentenary of the abolition of slavery plans to discuss the issue of whether a formal apology for slavery should be made. [71188]

The Deputy Prime Minister: The Advisory Group on the bicentenary of the abolition of the slave trade currently has no plans to discuss the question of whether a formal apology for the slave trade should be made. However, the Advisory Group is able to discuss all aspects of the slave trade, its abolition, and the celebrations connected to the bicentenary of its abolition.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Adviser Discretion Fund

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of recent reductions in the permitted individual amounts available under the adviser discretion fund; what steps he is taking to secure the maximum benefits from discretionary sums available to jobcentre plus advisers; and if he will make a statement. [69275]

Mrs. McGuire: Jobcentre plus is responsible for the management of the adviser discretion fund (ADF) which enables the purchase of virtually anything that will help people obtain a job, or, if already offered a job, to enable them to accept that offer.

To maintain effective controls on expenditure, the level at which an adviser can authorise payment from the fund, without requiring a supporting business case, was reduced in May 2005 to £100 per customer within any 12 month period. Awards above that level are authorised at a higher management level to ensure efficient and effective use of public funds. There is no limit on the individual amounts that can be awarded as long as they are supported by a business case.

Improved financial control has been achieved by delegating budgetary accountability to local managers and further value for money has been achieved by the implementation of the retail trade framework (RTF). Advisers can refer recipients of the ADF to suppliers who are part of the RTF and this has enabled jobcentre plus to achieve savings of up to 40 per cent. on high street prices and obtain more for less.

Ageist

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what progress has been made on the National Guidance Campaign on non-ageist practice by employers. [72238]

James Purnell: The Department's 'Be Ready' National Guidance campaign, developed in conjunction with leading business organisations, was launched in May 2005. Approximately 1.4 million employers were mailed information designed to raise awareness of age discrimination legislation, due to come into effect from 1 October 2006, and to provide practical guidance to help employers become more age diverse in their employment practices.

The next stage of the campaign will be launched in June with fully updated materials mailed to over 1.4 million employers. Materials will also be freely available from the website, www.agepositive.gov.uk/agepartnershipgroup.

An evaluation of 1,650 employers, who had ordered the products, has been carried out and the results are due to be published shortly. Preliminary results show that respondents overall were very happy with the materials they received and found the products clear, easy to use, well designed, helpful and useful. A further evaluation of the second phase of the campaign is planned for later in the year.

Asbestos-related Cancer

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much the Government paid out in attendance allowance to people diagnosed with asbestos-related cancer in each of the last three years. [68473]

Mrs. McGuire: The estimated expenditure for constant attendance allowance in 2005-06, where the recipient has asbestos related cancer, is £800,000.

Notes:

1. The figure is an estimate based on D3 and D8 proportions of constant attendance allowance expenditure taken from a 10 per cent. sample of industrial injuries disablement benefit assessments which was then applied to the 100 per cent. industrial Injuries Computer System data and rounded to the nearest £100,000.

2. Asbestos related cancer is defined by the prescribed diseases, D3 (Diffuse Mesothelioma) and D8 (Primary Carcinoma of the lung where there is evidence of either asbestosis or pleural thickening).

Benefit Claims

Mr. McFall: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many days were taken to process a benefit claim in West Dumbartonshire constituency in May (a) 2006, (b) 2004 and (c) 2005. [70420]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what the time to rate a claim for jobseeker's allowance, income support and incapacity benefit was in West Dunbartonshire in May 2006, May 2004 and May 2005. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Our measure of the time taken to process a claim is the actual average clearance time. Since April, national Jobcentre Plus targets have been set for the clearance of claims to jobseeker's allowance, income support and incapacity benefit, replacing the former Key Management Indicators. The targets have been set at 12 working days for jobseeker's allowance claims, 11 working days for income support and 18 working days for incapacity benefit.

The actual average clearance times for the West Dunbartonshire area expressed in working days are in the table. As the figure for May 2006 is not yet available details for April 2006 have been included.

	Jobseekers allowance		Income support		Incapacity benefit
	Target (days)	Clearance time (days)	Target (days)	Clearance time (days)	Target (days)	Clearance time (days)
May 2004	12	8.1	12	10.8	19	19.4
May 2005	12	11.1	12	11.4	19	27.0
April 2006	12	13.4	11	12.6	18	14.1

Although the average actual clearance time for incapacity benefit in May 2005 was 27 days, the overall figure for 2005-06 was 16.4 days.

We are also concentrating additional resources on improving our current performance in clearing claims for income support and jobseeker's allowance.

I hope this is helpful.

Child Support Agency

Derek Conway: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent estimate he has made of the number of claimants who decline to identify the father of their child for Child Support Agency purposes. [67810]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the chief executive. He will write to the right hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what recent estimate he has made of the number of claimants who decline to identify the father of their child for Child Support Agency purposes.

Any application made by a parent with care for Income Support or Income- Based Jobseekers Allowance should be accompanied by an application for Child Support maintenance, which requires the identification of the relevant non-resident parent. A parent with care can refuse to provide this identification, in which case one of two outcomes can result:

1. If there are reasonable grounds for believing that a risk to the parent with care or to any of their children living with them exists, and that harm or undue distress could result from identifying the non-resident parent, then 'Good Cause' will be granted and no further action will be taken.

2. If it is determined that no such reasonable grounds exist, then a continued withholding of this information can lead to a loss of benefit under a Reduced Benefit Direction (for old scheme cases) or a Reduced Benefit Decision (for new scheme cases).

In the financial year 2005/06, a claim for Good Cause was approved in 14,800 cases, and a Reduced Benefit Decision/ Direction imposed in 14,400 cases.

It should be noted that these figures are derived from management information held by Jobcentre Plus, and thus differ from the information provided by the Agency in Table 2.2 of the Agency's latest Quarterly Summary Statistics (QSS). There are three main reasons for this:

The data in Table 2.2 of the Quarterly Summary Statistics only shows the initial clearance type for those cases that have been cleared, and thus will not show those cases where a claim for Good Cause or the imposition of a Reduced Benefit Decision has been approved, but the case itself has yet to be cleared.

Table 2.2 only shows new scheme cases, whereas the cases above include old scheme and new scheme cases.

Table 2.2 only shows the method by which a case was initially cleared, whereas the numbers given above are for the total number of Good Cause and Reduced Benefit Decisions/ Directions approved or imposed in the financial year 2005/06.

Note that the information given is recorded on the basis of cases, rather than claimants. The data therefore reflects this, and volumes are rounded to the nearest hundred.

I hope you find this helpful.

Claim Processing

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many days it took on average to rate a claim for (a) income support, (b) jobseeker's allowance and (c) incapacity benefit in Fife in the most recent period for which figures are available; [70793]

(2) what targets his Department has set for the number of days taken to rate claims for (a) income support, (b) jobseeker's allowance and (c) incapacity benefit in Fife. [70794]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 12 May 2006]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many days it took on average to rate a claim for (a) income support, (b) jobseeker's allowance and (c) incapacity benefit in Fife in the most recent period for which figures are available and what targets his Department has set for the number of days taken to rate claims for (a) income support, (b) jobseeker's allowance and (c) incapacity benefit in Fife. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Our measure of the time taken to process a claim is the Actual Average Clearance Time. For 2005/06, the Jobcentre Plus internal Key Management Indicator (or target) for processing claims for Income Support and Jobseeker's Allowance was 12 working days while the figure for Incapacity Benefit was 19 working days. From April 2006, the Key Management Indicator has been upgraded to a full headline Jobcentre Plus target and the figures changed to 11 days for Income Support and 18 working days for Incapacity Benefit. The level for Jobseeker's Allowance remains at 12 days.

Days

	March 2006[1]	Cumulative for the period from April 2005 to March 2006	Key Management Indicator[2]
Incapacity benefit	15.5	11.9	19
Income support	13.3	9.7	12
Jobseeker's allowance	14.5	13.4	12

[1] Most recent period available.
[2] Actual average clearance time.

I hope this is helpful.

Customer Management Systems

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent developments have taken place in rolling out the various releases of the Department's Customer Management Systems (CMS); what progress has been made in replacement of CMS by the BPRP/WATCH programme; and if he will make a statement. [69444]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what recent developments have taken place in rolling out the various releases of the Department's Customer Management Systems (CMS), and what progress has been made in replacement of CMS by the BPRP/WATCH programme. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Since CMS was first implemented in 2003 there have been several further releases that have significantly improved system performance. The most recent improvements have been introduced with Releases 3 and 3.5. Release 3 was introduced to all existing CMS sites in October 2005 following user feedback. The release included a significant reduction in the clerical products which previously supported the system, as well as other enhancements.

Release 3.5 was introduced to all existing CMS sites in March 2006 and provided:

improved validation to ensure that information gathered and verified within CMS was transferred electronically to the Income Support Computer and Jobseeker's Allowance Payment systems;

fixes to live running problems; and other changes to improve the system for staff.

Plans are now in place to introduce Release 4 of CMS in June 2006 and this release will build on the improvements made in Release 3.5 as well as supporting legislative changes.

The longer term future for CMS is being considered as part of the Department's Benefit Processing Replacement Programme (BPRP).

Departmental Contact Centres

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the percentage of people telephoning contact centres run by his Department who got through on their first attempt between April 2005 and March 2006; and how long it took for them to be called back. [68455]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about the percentage of people telephoning contact centres who got through on the first attempt between April 2005 and March 2006; and how long it took for them to be called back. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The available information is in the following table.

Month	Percentage of calls answered[1]	Number of days booking ahead for Call backs[2] (first contact service only)
2005
April	82.6	—
May	85.9	—
June	80.9	—
July	75.1	—
August	75.5	—
September	77.5	—
October	88.3	3.2

January	96.2	1.1
February	96.3	0.9
March	95.9	0.9
Year to date	86.6	—

Notes:
1. The percentage of calls answered represents calls made to the first contact service (customers wishing to make a new claim to benefit) and Jobseeker Direct Service (customers inquiring about Jobs).
2. Data on number of days booking ahead has only been collected centrally from October 2005

We do not have information on the number of customer calls that are answered on their first or on subsequent attempts.

I hope this is helpful.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was spent on advertising by (a) his Department, (b) each (i) non-departmental public body and (ii) Executive agency for which his Department is responsible and (c) each independent statutory body, organisation and body financially sponsored by his Department in each year since May 1997. [39079]

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 20 July 2005, Official Report, columns 1810-11W, on departmental advertising, whether the figures provided include all costs of publicity which the Department has incurred in each year. [44759]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions was formed on 8 June 2001 from parts of the former Department for Social Security, the former Department for Education and Employment, and the Employment Service. Information prior to 2001 is not held centrally and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Relocation

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what progress has been made in the relocation of departmental posts from the South East to other regions. [45238]

Mrs. McGuire: The basis of the Department's relocation strategy resulting from the Lyons' review is to relocate posts rather than people. Information on the number of posts relocated from London and the South East to other regions is contained in the following table:

Posts relocated from London and the South East between 1 June 2003 to 31 December 2005

Disability Equality Duty

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether private finance initiative contracts agreed by public bodies up until 3 December 2006 will be required to meet the requirements of the Disability Equality Duty within the Disability Discrimination Act 2005. [68329]

Mrs. McGuire: The Disability Equality Duty comes into force on 4 December 2006 and contracting-out services before then are not covered by the requirements of the Duty.

However, public authorities should be considering the need to put measures in place now so that they can demonstrate that they are giving 'due regard' to the Disability Equality Duty after 4 December. For example, if an authority is planning to contract-out a major service, it should consider building in arrangements to promote equality now so that it does not have consider varying the contract once the Duty is in place.

Disabled People

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what initiatives the Government have introduced to ensure that people with a range of disabilities are treated equally. [72184]

Mrs. McGuire: The Government have given a commitment that, by 2025, disabled people in Britain should have full opportunities and choices to improve their quality of life, and will be respected and included as equal members of society.

Following a recommendation in the Prime Minister's Strategy Unit report, "Improving the Life Chances of Disabled People", we have set up an Office for Disability Issues (ODI) to drive forward our strategy to meet this challenge. The work of the ODI is overseen by a ministerial group, involving Ministers from several key Departments (Department of Health, Department for Education and Skills, Department of Trade and Industry, Department for Transport, Department for Work and Pensions, Department for Communities and Local Government).

The Government have also put in place a comprehensive and enforceable set of civil rights for disabled people. For example, provisions introduced in October 2004 substantially improved rights in employment and required service providers to make reasonable adjustments to tackle physical barriers to disabled people accessing their services. The Special Educational Needs and Disability Act 2001 amended the Disability Discrimination Act (DDA) to provide rights for disabled pupils and students in education.

Most recently, the DDA 2005 extended rights for disabled people in a number of areas including transport, functions of public bodies, private clubs and the renting of premises. It also extended protection to around 250,000 people, effectively from the point they are diagnosed with cancer, multiple sclerosis or HIV, freeing them from pre-symptomatic discrimination. In addition, people with mental illness will avoid the unnecessary burden of being required to prove their condition is clinically well-recognised to get redress against discrimination.

Importantly, from 4 December 2006, the DDA 2005 places a new duty on public authorities to promote equality of opportunity for disabled people. This will mean that public bodies must take account of the needs of disabled people as an integral part of their policies, practices and procedures.

The ODI is responsible for raising awareness of the Disability Discrimination Act and improving attitudes to disabled people. A campaign aimed at small and medium-sized businesses was launched on in December 2005 and will initially run until the end of May 2006. The ODI also sponsors the Images of Disability initiative to promote representation of disabled people in Government advertising and publicity.

Hazardous Substances

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions his Department has had with the Department of Trade and Industry regarding the letter from the Treasury Solicitors dated 27 April 2006 on the role played by the Health and Safety Executive in connection with risk analysis conducted in relation to the issuing of Hazardous Substances consents to Dragon LNG and South Hook LNG; and if he will make a statement. [72495]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 22 May 2006]: Health and Safety Executive (HSE) did not discuss with DTI the content of the letter from Treasury Solicitors to all the other parties to the proceedings, their solicitors, and the Civil Appeals Office sent on the 27 April, although DTI was a copy recipient of the letter.

Home Computer Initiative

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what costs were associated with setting up the Home Computing Initiative scheme for his Department, including consultancy and administrative costs. [66536]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions had intended to launch a Home Computing Initiative in the winter of 2006. The only costs incurred have been the internal staff costs on the early stages of the project, which we estimate to be around £47,000. There have been no consultancy costs.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many constituents in Midlothian are receiving (a) long-term and (b) short-term incapacity benefit. [72746]

Mrs. McGuire: The most recent available information is in the table.

Incapacity benefit and severe disablement allowance claimants in the Midlothian parliamentary constituency, by rate of benefit: November 2005

	Number
All incapacity benefit and severe disablement allowance	4,290
Incapacity benefit short-term (lower) rate	130
Incapacity benefit short-term (higher) rate	190
Incapacity benefit long-term rate	2,330
Incapacity benefit credits-only	1,090
Severe disablement allowance	550

Job Vacancies

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many job vacancies were on the register on average at job centres in Easington constituency in each year between 2001 and 2005; and if he will make a statement; [69424]

(2) how many job vacancies there were on average on the register at job centres in Easington constituency in each year from 2000. [72459]

Mrs. McGuire: Information on Jobcentre plus vacancy data by parliamentary constituency is only available from April 2004 and is set out in the following table.

Jobcentre Plus

Ann Keen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what changes have been made to the Jobcentre Plus delivery process as a result of the national operational strategy changes undertaken in 2005. [68333]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what changes have been made to the Jobcentre Plus delivery process as a result of the national operational strategy changes undertaken in 2005. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Throughout 2005 Jobcentre Plus continued to implement the rollout of its new style offices. Jobcentre Plus also responded to temporary difficulties in some contact centres in Summer 2005 by making operational adjustments to improve levels of customer service. We are also testing whether further improvements can be made. Jobcentre Plus has also started the centralisation of benefits delivery services in order to support better workflow and performance management and provide a more compact basis for IT improvements.

Customers continue to be offered personal advice and support in finding work through local jobcentres. They are also able to make claims to benefit and receive telephone help with job enquiries through a national network of telephone contact centres. These essential elements of the delivery process have not changed.

I hope this is helpful.

Ann Keen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what action is being taken to ensure people who have experienced delays in their benefit payments due to changes at Jobcentre Plus do not incur penalties as a result, with particular reference to repossession of property. [68352]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what action is being taken to ensure people who have experienced delays in their benefit payments due to changes at Jobcentre Plus do not incur penalties as a result, with particular reference to repossession of property.

A series of actions has been put in place to address the recent increase in the average actual clearance times for income support assessments to 12.2 days. We expect that these actions will steadily bring back performance to within the target of 11 working days. As a safeguard, any customer experiencing financial hardship while awaiting benefit can request an interim payment.

Customers are responsible for the payment of their mortgage interest for the first nine months of their claim with help included in their benefit entitlement only after this period has elapsed. The minor delays currently being experienced in the assessment of income support entitlement will therefore not have any marked impact on repossessions of property.

Customers are advised at the start of a claim that they should contact their mortgage lender as soon as possible to discuss their mortgage repayments.

I hope this is helpful.

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the level of staff satisfaction of Jobcentre Plus staff. [68751]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what assessment he has made of the level of staff satisfaction of Jobcentre Plus staff. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Staff satisfaction is measured in part through the annual DWP Staff Survey. The 2005 survey showed that staff generally respected their immediate line managers and were clear on the purpose and objectives of their individual job roles. However, the survey also showed that people had low confidence in our senior leaders and were particularly concerned about job security.

These results are in line with what we would expect, given the scale and pace of our change programme, which is designed to provide a better quality of service to our customers within the context of the Departmental efficiency challenge.

We have substantially improved the range and frequency of feedback opportunities through which staff can debate issues that affect them and express their views directly to the Board and senior managers. We fully understand the concerns of our staff and are committed to taking appropriate action to address them.

I hope this is helpful.

Pathways to Work

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what elements of the Pathways to Work programme will be funded by the £360 million earmarked for its roll out; and how the sum was calculated. [71747]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The funding for welfare reform has been drawn from the budgets provided to the Department through the 2004 Spending Review settlement which covered the financial years 2005-06 to 2007-08. Details are available in The Departmental Report 2005 (Cm 6539) published in June 2005. The £360 million funding is largely to be spent extending the Pathways to Work programme beyond the pilot areas and covers 2006-07 and 2007-08, but may also be used to fund other measures dependent on responses to the Welfare Reform consultation.

A detailed costing of the various parts of our proposals is not possible at this time. This is especially the case in relation to the costs for each Pathways to Work scheme as we are looking to the private and voluntary sector to deliver many of the Pathways schemes and it is not possible to provide detailed costs prior to contract negotiations.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, pursuant to his answer of 4 May 2006, Official Report, column 1768W, on pathways to work, how many claimants the figures represent in each case. [72756]

Mrs. McGuire: The information requested is in the following table:

Numbers of pathways to work participants and of choices starts

Pathways to work evaluation database

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what work the Government have undertaken to identify the destinations of the 56 per cent. residual unknown category leaving Pathways to Work detailed in Table 1 of HC 616-I. [72941]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The Department is continually making efforts to improve our destinations information and analytical evidence base, and therefore our knowledge of what happens to working age people when they leave a benefit. For example, in addition to the data used in Table 1 of HC 616-1 the Department also uses information gathered from the 2004 Destination of Benefit Leavers survey, which is available in the Library.

The Destination of Benefit Leavers surveys provide more detail about the reasons for leaving where claimants were not going into work of 16 hours or more. It showed that 50 per cent. of those leaving incapacity benefits entered or returned to work of 16 hours or more. Of the remainder, 19 per cent. moved on to another working age benefit, most to JSA, 7 per cent. left because they were no longer eligible to claim or their benefit had been stopped and a further 7 per cent. left because they had been disallowed following a medical assessment.

Pension Age

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his estimate is of the number of state retirement pensioners aged over (a) 80 and (b) 90 years in (i) 1980, (ii) 1990, (iii) 2000, (iv) 2010, (v) 2020, (vi) 2030, (vii) 2040 and (viii) 2050; and if he will make a statement. [70312]

James Purnell: The information is provided in the following table:

	Thousand
	Over 80	Over 90
Nov 1980	1,540	150
Sept 1990	2,120	250
2000-01	2,470	400
2010-11	3,030	480
2020-21	3,800	710
2030-31	5,320	1,060
2040-41	6,300	1,640
2050-205	7,730	2,000

Notes:
1. All figures include Non-contributory Retirement Pension.
2. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10,000 and are for GB and overseas pensioners.

2. 2000-01 figures are derived from bi-annual 5 per cent. statistics for March 2000, September 2000 and March 2001 appropriate for the 2000-01 financial year.
3. 2010-11 onwards figures are from the GAD model aligned to the latest data available.

Pension Credit

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many residents in each electoral ward in Tamworth constituency receive pension credit. [71233]

James Purnell: The information is provided in the following table:

Pension credit beneficiaries by ward in Tamworth constituency, November 2005

Ward name	Individual beneficiaries
Bourne Vale	65
Fazeley	340
Little Aston	60
Mease and Tame	150

Mr. Devine: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in Livingston received pension credit in 2005. [72364]

James Purnell: The information is provided in the following table.

Pension credit individual beneficiaries in the parliamentary constituency of Livingston by quarter, February 2005 to November 2005

Quarter	Beneficiaries

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pensioner households were receiving pension credit in West Suffolk constituency in each financial year since 2001-02. [72541]

James Purnell: The information requested is in the following table.

Pension credit recipients in the parliamentary constituency of West Suffolk since November 2003

Quarter	Recipients
November 2003	2,730
November 2004	3,930
November 2005	4,060

Pension Protection Fund

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what guidance he has given to the Pensions Regulator on whether the transfer of assets from a company whose pension fund was showing a deficit would be a bar to the transfer of pension liabilities to the Pension Protection Fund. [71373]

James Purnell [holding answer 16 May 2006]: None. This is a matter for the Pensions Regulator.

Pensioners

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of (a) individual pensioners, (b) pensioner couples and (c) pensioner households eligible for pension credit in each (i) local authority and (ii) constituency in Scotland. [73199]

James Purnell: The information requested is not available. Estimates of eligibility are not available below the level of Great Britain.

Pensions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether it is his policy to reduce the number of pensioners subject to means-testing; and if he will make a statement. [70288]

James Purnell: The proportion of pensioners entitled to income-related benefits has risen since 1997 due to our reforms which have been extremely successful in combating pensioner poverty. With respect to further reform, we shall be setting out the Government's response to the Pensions Commission's report in a White Paper very shortly.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will raise the level of pensions received by British pensioners resident overseas to the level received by those who remain resident in the UK. [71685]

James Purnell: The UK state pension is payable in all countries abroad to those who are entitled to it. It is uprated in the normal way for UK pensioners living overseas where there is a legal requirement or a reciprocal social security agreement to do so. We have no plans to change these arrangements.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much has been spent on advertising the fact that people have to apply for their state pension on reaching retirement age in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [69894]

James Purnell: Four months before they reach state pension age people are normally issued with an individual invitation to apply for state pension. There is no general advertising.

Post Office Card Account

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects to publish his Department's evaluation of the pilot schemes relating to post office card accounts; and if he will make a statement. [73247]

Mr. Plaskitt: Shortly.

Unemployment

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has for addressing seasonal unemployment fluctuations in seaside towns; and if he will make a statement. [72022]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Our successful labour market policies have resulted in a fall of 52 per cent. in claimant unemployment in Torbay since 1997. In addition the number of lone parents in receipt of benefit has fallen by 36 per cent. in Torbay over the same period.

Seasonal unemployment fluctuations are however more marked in seaside towns than elsewhere. Such local economies rely on tourism to provide employment opportunities and investment in the area. This may lead to higher unemployment out of season. However, data for winter 2005 shows that the claimant count rate for Torbay was below the national average, at 2.3 per cent.

Our recently published Green Paper 'A new deal for welfare: Empowering people to work' sets out proposals for piloting new initiatives to help local partners work together to improve economic regeneration through skills, employment and health. The key aim of this initiative will be to provide a solution that offers the maximum degree of local flexibility, so that local areas can provide local solutions to local problems.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proposals he has to deal with unemployment in the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement. [72037]

Mrs. McGuire: Latest figures show that there are more people in work than ever before. Employment now stands at 28.9 million, up by nearly 2.5 million since 1997. More than 1.5 million people have been helped into work through our new deal programmes[1], including over 660,000 young people, and our successful labour market policies have contributed to the virtual eradication of long term youth unemployment.

With an 11.3 percentage point increase since 1997, the lone parent employment rate now stands at a record high with around a million lone parents in work, up over 300,000 since 1997. We have achieved more than 21,000 Pathways to Work job entries, and the number of recorded job entries for people with a health condition or disability has almost doubled in Pathways areas. In the 12 month period to November 2005, the number of people claiming incapacity benefits fell by 60,000.

The unemployment rate remains close to its lowest level since 1975, but we want to go further still. Tackling worklessness and inactivity—particularly among those on benefits—remains our top priority and our Welfare Reform Green Paper sets out our proposals to build on Pathways to Work and our other successful labour market programmes. We will build on our success in cutting the numbers on lone parent and incapacity benefits, and continue to do all we can to help those claiming jobseeker's allowance back into work.

Note:

Information on new deal and Pathways to Work refers to Great Britain as this Department does not deliver employment programmes in Northern Ireland.

Unsatisfactory Attendance Procedures

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) oral warnings, (b) written warnings, (c) dismissal decisions and (d) retirements on medical grounds decisions were made in (i) Jobcentre Plus and (ii) his Department under his Department's unsatisfactory attendance procedures in each month in 2005. [52680]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 27 February 2006]: The best information we have available at this time is contained in the following table. The data on oral and written warnings has been extracted from the Department's Staff Information System. This system went live at the end of October 2005; prior to this, the Department did not have a single, central system which recorded warnings given. As a result, the figures for January to September may not fully represent the actual level of warnings given.

The data on dismissals on health grounds is taken from clerical records because the Department's computerised payroll records do not differentiate between dismissals for ill health and other types of dismissal. The data on medical retirements is taken from payroll records.

Workplace Health Connect

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will report progress made on the development of Workplace Health Connect. [72249]

Mrs. McGuire: Workplace Health Connect was launched on 23 February 2006. The service is now up and running, providing free, impartial and practical advice and support on workplace health, safety and return to work issues to small businesses. The aim of the service is to provide employers and workers with the necessary knowledge and skills to manage workplace health issues for themselves.

Workplace Health Connect is a collaborative service, set up in partnership with the Health and Safety Executive, offering a telephone Adviceline for England and Wales, and workplace visits from qualified Workplace Health Connect advisers. The workplace visits are currently available in the North East, North West, West Midlands, South Wales and Greater London, covering approximately 38 per cent. of small businesses in England and Wales.

Owners of small businesses and their employees can access the service by calling the Workplace Health Connect Adviceline on 0845 609 6006. They can talk to an expert adviser about their own particular workplace challenges to help them find appropriate solutions.

Further information on the service can be found at: www.workplacehealthconnect.co.uk and www.hse.gov.uk/workplacehealth

Workplace Stress

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of how many days were lost due to stress in the workplace in each of the last 20 years. [72626]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The most reliable and comparable data on days lost due to stress in the workplace in Britain are provided by the surveys of self-reported work-related illness (SWI) in 2001-02, 2003-04 and 2004-05. They relate to sickness absences taken by people who believed that they were suffering from work-related stress, depression or anxiety and are given in the following table:

	Estimated full day equivalent working days lost (in millions) due to work-related stress, depression or anxiety
2004-05	12.8

Data from an earlier SWI survey in 1995 provides an estimate of 4.6 million days lost due to work-related stress, depression or anxiety in Britain. This is not comparable with later SWI survey estimates because of differences in design, coverage and the level of information collected. Indications suggest that if it was possible to put this estimate on the same basis as later SWI data it could be up to 3 to 4 million lost working days lost different. Despite this uncertainty it is clear that days lost to work-related stress, depression or anxiety were lower in 1995 than 2001-02 and subsequent years.

Young Carers

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to review the eligibility of young carers undertaking more than 21 hours of supervised study to claim carers' allowance. [69390]

Mrs. McGuire: Carer's allowance is available to young carers aged 16 or over who undertake training or part-time education, but it is not available to those in full-time education involving 21 hours or more of supervised study a week. This is because young people aged 16 or over who remain in full-time non-advanced education are regarded as financially dependent on their parents, who can receive child benefit and child tax credits on their behalf. Support for those who choose to undertake full-time advanced education is provided by the student support system rather than by social security benefits. We keep social security rules under constant review, but we have no current plans to change the full-time education rule in carer's allowance.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to ensure that Jobcentre Plus supports young carers. [69985]

Mrs. McGuire: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend, the former Minister of State for Employment and Welfare Reform, on 10 March 2006, Official Report, column 1793W.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Absenteeism

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the total number of days lost due to (a) sickness absence and (b) unauthorised absence in (i) his Department, (ii) its agencies and (iii) its non-departmental public bodies was in each year since 2000. [71538]

Barry Gardiner: DEFRA was created in June 2001, and the answer given relates to full calendar years since then.

The total number of working days lost due to sickness absence in DEFRA and its Agencies is shown in the following table.

Department/Agency	2002	2003	2004
DEFRA	89,800	60,500	56,100
CEFAS	2,800	4,000	3,300
CSL	4,200	4,700	4,400
PSD	1,200	1,000	1,100
RPA	11,900	38,900	30,600
VLA	10,100	11,200	10,900
VMD	800	1,000	600

Note:
All figures rounded to the nearest 100.

Statistics on the average number of working days lost per staff-year for all Government Department and Agencies each year since 1999 is published on the civil service website at: http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/management/conditions_of_service/publications/index.asp#sickness

The Analysis of Sickness Absence in the Civil Service in 2005 is due to be published in August 2006.

Animal Welfare

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department has undertaken to explore alternatives to animal testing. [71199]

Mr. Bradshaw: DEFRA policy on using animals in research covers five main areas and is designed to:

promote and require full compliance with the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986; the "3 Rs" (reduction, replacement and refinement); other relevant protective legislation; and respect for relevant advice on animal welfare (e.g. the Farm Animal Welfare Council's 'Five Freedoms'); ensure that animals are only used in research when there are no appropriate replacement alternatives, and where the protocols applied reflect all reasonably and practically available reduction and replacement strategies to minimise any suffering that is likely to result; actively seek alternatives to using live animals through funding of research; encourage data sharing between contractors to prevent duplication of animal research and reduce numbers of experiments; ensure that all individuals involved in the commissioning of DEFRA-funded research—including DEFRA scientific and policy staff, independent advisers and research contractors—are fully aware of DEFRA's policy and approach.

DEFRA is particularly active in looking for alternatives to using live animal experiments. Examples are:

funding research to develop, validate and replace existing test methods which use animals with in vitro tests; development of non-invasive monitoring procedures to obviate the need for blood and tissue sampling;

funding the collection and archiving of tissues from experimental animals so that these can be used in future research by the same and other researchers, thereby reducing the need for further animal experiments; greater use of statistical analysis of previously published animal experimental data to reduce the need for further experimentation; strongly encouraging contractors to publish the results of DEFRA-funded research to avoid unnecessary duplication of animal experimentation.

Further information on DEFRA's policy on the use of animals in research can be found on our website.

Emissions Trading

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the emissions target is for carbon dioxide emissions for each EU country under the EU emissions trading scheme for 2006; and what targets are planned for each of the next five years. [72436]

Ian Pearson: The following table, published on the European Commission website[1], shows the total allowances allocated by member states for phase I (2005-07) in their national allocation plans. Most countries have allocated these allowances evenly over the three years.

Member state	Phase I CO_2 allowances (million tonnes)	Percentage share of EU allowances
Austria	99.0	1.5
Belgium	188.8	2.9
Czech Republic	292.8	4.4
Cyprus	16.98	0.3
Denmark	100.5	1.5
Estonia	56.85	0.9
Finland	136.5	2.1
France	469.5	7.1
Germany	1,497.0	22.8
Greece	223.2	3.4
Hungary	93.8	1.4
Ireland	67.0	1.0
Italy	697.5	10.6
Latvia	13.7	0.2
Lithuania	36.8	0.6
Luxembourg	10.7	0.2
Malta	8.83	0.1
Netherlands	285.9	4.3

Member state	Phase I CO_2 allowances (million tonnes)	Percentage share of EU allowances
Poland	717.3	10.9
Portugal	114.5	1.7
Slovak Republic	91.5	1.4
Slovenia	26.3	0.4
Spain	523.3	8.0
Sweden	68.7	1.1
United Kingdom	736.0	11.2
Total	6,572	100.0

[1] http://europa.eu/rapid/pressReleasesAction.do?reference=MEMO/05/84&format=HTML&aged=1&language=EN&guiLanguage=en

Member states are currently preparing plans for phase II (2008-12) in which they will determine their total allocations for the five year period. European Commission guidance states that the emissions caps must use the phase I allocation as a starting point and must make steps towards each member state's Kyoto protocol target under the burden sharing agreement. Member states must submit final installation level allocation plans to the Commission by 31 December 2006.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will estimate the yield to the Exchequer from a UK auction of 10 per cent. of allowances under the EU Emissions Trading Scheme at a price of (a) 10, (b) 15, (c) 20 and (d) 30 euros per tonne of carbon from 2008. [72522]

Ian Pearson: The total number of allowances to be allocated in phase II of the EU Emissions Trading Scheme (2008-12) has yet to be decided. The draft UK National Allocation Plan, currently out for public consultation, explains that the final figure will represent a reduction against Business As Usual emissions of between 3 and 8 MtC a year. The projections for Business As Usual are currently being evaluated following consultation. It is not therefore possible at this stage to precisely calculate the yield from auction at these prices.

Entry Level Stewardship Scheme

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he will reply to Question (a) 68580, (b) 68578, (c) 68579 and (d) 68581, on the entry level stewardship scheme, tabled by the hon. Member for St. Ives. [72740]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 22 May 2006]: I replied to the hon. Member on the 22 May 2006.

Environmental Liability Directive

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which UK sites of special scientific interest do not fall within the scope of the environmental liability directive and would not be protected under UK implementing laws unless its scope were to be extended. [71457]

Barry Gardiner: Sites of special scientific interest (SSSIs) overlap with sites protected under EU legislation (council directive 79/409/EEC on the conservation of wild birds; council directive 92/43/EEC on the conservation of natural habitats and of wild fauna and flora). As a result, the 25 per cent. of SSSI areas in England that are not also EU-protected sites, would not be covered by legislation implementing the environmental liability directive unless the Government exercised the discretion provided in that directive. I shall write to my hon. Friend with the detailed information.

This is in respect of England only as policy on the environment and nature conservation is a devolved matter and therefore for the respective Administrations in Scotland, Northern Ireland and Wales.

Fisheries Agreements

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what position the UK will take on the forthcoming EU-Morocco fisheries agreement in the Western Sahara. [72435]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The UK will vote in favour of the regulation on the basis that there are no fisheries objections and that there is nothing in the regulation that is inconsistent with international law.

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations were made to the EU Council of Ministers opposing commercial fishing in the waters of the Western Sahara; and if he will make a statement. [72606]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The EU Council of Ministers has not previously discussed the relevant proposal for a regulation establishing a bilateral fisheries agreement between the EU and Morocco. However, it is expected that the Council will adopt this regulation on 22 May 2006. The UK will vote in favour of the regulation on the basis that there are no fisheries objections and that there is nothing in the regulation that is inconsistent with international law.

Flood Prevention

Mr. Liddell-Grainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how much the chairman of the Wessex Flood Defence Committee received in travel costs in the last two years; and from what residential location his travel costs were calculated; [70242]

(2) how many official journeys the chairman of the Wessex Flood Defence Committee undertook in the last two years. [70243]

Ian Pearson: The Chairman of the Wessex Regional Flood Defence Committee undertook 73 official trips in 2004-05 and 48 official trips in 2005-06. His travel costs in that period totalled £7,640.

The Chairman can claim travel and subsistence expenses incurred away from his normal place of work, and any other expenses necessarily incurred on business in line with the expenses guidance for Committee Chairmen issued by the Environment Agency.

Forest Certification

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what account his Department took in deciding its policy on the programme for the endorsement of forest certification schemes of representations made by the Prime Minister of Australia to (a) the Prime Minister and (b) other Government Ministers. [72426]

Barry Gardiner: The UK Government's decision to wait until it reviews all the forest certification schemes it first assessed in 2004 before reaching a conclusion on the Programme for the Endorsement of Forest Certification schemes' amendments remains unchanged. An interim report explaining this rationale behind this decision can be seen at www.proforest.net/cpet

Global Monitoring for Enviroument and Security

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what support his Department is giving to the European Commission and EU Space Agency Respond Programme within the Global Monitoring for Environment and Security Initiative; and if he will make a statement. [71042]

Ian Pearson: Defra is the policy lead for the Government on the Global Monitoring for Environment and Security (GMES) initiative of the European Commission and the European Space Agency (ESA).

We have been working closely with the Commission and ESA in the development of GMES and the Government has subscribed to Phase-1 of the ESA GMES Space Component Programme, which will provide satellite data for a range of GMES applications.

We continue to take a close interest in all areas of GMES, especially the service related elements, including RESPOND.

Defra will continue to engage with the Commission and ESA, other Government departments and UK stakeholders to ensure, as far as possible, that GMES meets UK needs at good value for money.

Greenhouse Gases

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what change there has been in greenhouse gases since 1997; and what assessment he has made of the reasons for the change. [71035]

Ian Pearson: The following table shows UK emissions for the six greenhouse gases, carbon dioxide (CO_2) methane (CH_4), nitrous oxide (N_2O), hydrofluorocarbons (HFCs), perfluorocarbons (PFCs) and sulphur hexafluoride (SF_6), and total emissions in million tonnes of carbon equivalent, for each year since 1997. These figures are taken from this year's UK greenhouse gas inventory.

Percentage change since 1997	0.0	-0.9	-6.0	-5.9	-4.8	-7.6	-6.7	-6.6

The Government's UK Climate Change Programme, published on 28 March 2006 outlined the reasons for the reduction. The decrease in greenhouse gas emissions since 1990 has mainly been driven by restructuring, especially in the energy supply industry, energy efficiency, pollution control measures in the industrial sector and other policies that reduced emissions of non-carbon dioxide greenhouse gases.

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will list the industries which are the 10 largest emitters of greenhouse gases; and how much and what proportion of total emissions of such gases they emitted in the last year for which figures are available. [71433]

Ian Pearson: The UK Greenhouse Gas Inventory provides a specific breakdown of greenhouse gas emissions from the following industrial sectors:

Power Generation

Petroleum Refining

Manufacture of Solid Fuels and other energy industries

Iron and Steel Production

Non Ferrous Metal Production

Offshore Oil and Gas Extraction

Production of Cement, lime and fletton brick

The contribution of these processes to UK greenhouse gas emissions, expressed in millions tonnes of carbon equivalent (MtCe), and percentage of total UK greenhouse gas emissions, is given in the following table. These data are taken from the UK Greenhouse Gas Inventory for 2004, which is the latest year for which data are available.

UK greenhouse gas emissions 2004

Sector	GHG emissions in 2004/MtCe	Percentage of total UK GHG emissions in 2004
Power Generation	46.93	26.2
Petroleum Refining	5.03	2.8
Manufacture of Solid Fuels and other energy industries	2.02	1.1
Non Ferrous Metals	1.04	0.6

UK greenhouse gas emissions 2004

Sector	GHG emissions in 2004/MtCe	Percentage of total UK GHG emissions in 2004
Offshore Oil and Gas	6.05	3.4
Cement, lime and fletton brick production	3.13	1.7

Emissions from the chemicals industry are estimated to be of the order of 3 million tonnes of carbon per year (approximately 1.8 per cent. of total UK greenhouse gas emissions). A more precise figure for this sector will be available when European Union Emissions Trading Scheme figures for 2005 can be formally reconciled with the 2005 inventory dataset, which will be published in 2007.

Verified emissions of UK installations included in the European Union Emissions Trading Scheme are available, by sector, on the Defra website. The EU ETS covers installations responsible for approximately 50 per cent. of UK CO_2 emissions.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) percentage and (b) actual change in carbon dioxide emissions was between 1990 and the most recent year for which figures are available based on (i) Kyoto Treaty criteria and (ii) Kyoto Treaty criteria together with emissions from international aviation and international shipping. [70314]

Ian Pearson: The figures requested are taken from the UK Greenhouse Gas inventory 2006 and are given in the following table. They show emissions between 1990 and 2004, the latest year for which full data are available.

Greenhouse gas emissions in Kyoto base year and 2004

Source	Emissions in base year/MtCe[1]	Emissions in 2004/MtCe[1]	Absolute change/MtCe[1]	Percentage change
All emissions included under Kyoto	209.5	178.9	-30.1	-14.6
Emissions of CO2 included in above	160.6	152.5	-8.1	-5.0
Emissions of CO2 from international aviation	4.3	9.0	+4.7	+109
Emissions of CO2 from international shipping	1.8	1.6	-0.2	-11

Hunting with Dogs

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many responses were received to the Government's consultation on hunting with dogs. [71836]

Barry Gardiner: The Government received over 14,000 responses to its consultation on the issue of hunting with dogs in 2002, and has received at least 14,000 further representations from members of the public on this issue since then.

Integrated Pollution Prevention and Control Regime

Mr. Ilsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what assessment his Department has made of the capability of individual local authorities adequately to implement and enforce the integrated pollution prevention and control regime; [64152]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of standards of compliance with integrated pollution prevention and control SG2 for new glass-making facilities. [64155]

Mr. Bradshaw: The local authority industrial pollution regimes are regularly reviewed, including local authority performance reviews. Such a review, involving just over 100 local authorities was undertaken in 2004 and a follow-up review has just been completed and the report will be published shortly.

The Department has for the past year been working with local authority stakeholders to improve the training and competence framework for local authority personnel undertaking this work. Local authorities have regularly been made aware of the options of out-sourcing, joint working, or obtaining expert advice when carrying out these functions. I am told that Chester city council have employed consultants to assist them in determining this latest application from Quinn Glass.

The Department encourages local authorities to share expertise and experience in regulating different sectors by establishing 'link' groups. There is such a link group for the glass manufacturing sector, the co-ordinator of which works for Barnsley metropolitan borough council. Officials in the Department keep in periodic touch with her and with the trade association, British Glass. Chester city council are a member of the group.

The local authority unit of the Environment Agency, which advises the Department on technical issues relating to the local authority industrial pollution regimes, has met the link group and also visited glass manufacturing installations. The unit has reported back to the Department following these activities.

I cannot comment on the recent High Court judgment because I understand that it is subject to an appeal.

Pest Control

Mark Tami: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what provision of pest control services his Department requires of local authorities. [71619]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is for local authorities to decide on the most appropriate pest control programme in their own area, while having regard to their duties under the Prevention of Damage by Pests Act 1949.

Radiative Forcing

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportionate contribution to the overall UK-attributable radiative forcing total is accounted for by (a) residential properties, (b) business premises, (c) industrial processes, (d) power generation, (e) cars, (f) buses and (g) aviation; what the radiative forcing multiplier is for each category; and what the range of uncertainty is in estimates of the multiplier for each category. [71434]

Ian Pearson: Table 1 gives the contribution of each sector listed to total UK greenhouse gas emissions in 2004. The first column of numbers gives percentage contributions with emissions from power generation shown separately. The second column of numbers shows percentage contributions with emission from power generation reallocated to the sectors which use the power generated.

The data are consistent with the UK Greenhouse Gas Inventory published in 2006, which contains data to 2004, the most recent year for which data are available for all gases by sector. The aviation estimate covers domestic flights only because international aviation is not included in the UK emissions total, in accordance with international guidelines.

The estimates include emissions from carbon dioxide, methane, nitrous oxide, the hydrofluorocarbons, the perfluorocarbons and sulphur hexafluoride. Radiative forcing is accounted for by using Global Warming Potentials (GWPs) as weighting factors in adding together emissions estimates of the different gases.

The GWPs are listed in table 2 and apply by gas and not by sector. The effect of emissions from aviation at altitude may be significantly greater than at ground level. This would increase the radiative forcing effect from aviation but there is no agreed value to account for this and it remains a matter of scientific investigation. The IPCC Third Assessment Report estimates uncertainty in the GWPs relative to carbon dioxide as +/-35 per cent.

Table 1: 2004 emissions of greenhouse gases included in the Kyoto protocol, by sector

Sector	Proportion of total UK greenhouse gases emissions by source	Percentage Proportion of total UK greenhouse gases emissions by end user
Residential Properties	14.1	24.4
Business Premises	16.3	33.8
Industrial Processes	2.9	3.0
Power Generation	34.3	—
Cars	11.5	14.1
Buses	0.3	0.6
Domestic Aviation	0.4	0.4

Table 2: The global warming potential of greenhouse gases included in the Kyoto protocol basket

Gas	Global warming potential (100 year time horizon)
Carbon dioxide	1
Methane	21
Nitrous Oxide	310
Hydrofluorocarbons	140-11,700
Perfluorocarbons	6,500-9,200
Sulphur hexafluoride	23,900

Tallow

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs why his Department banned the use of tallow as a fuel; whether a similar ban is being introduced in all countries of the EU; what assessment his Department has made of the impact of the cost of this measure to (a) the rendering industry and (b) the farming industry in removing fallen stock. [71878]

Ian Pearson: My Department has not banned the use of tallow as fuel, so no assessments of this kind have been made.

The effect of the EU Animal By-Products Regulation (ABPR) is to require a range of animal by-products, and substances derived from them (e.g. tallow), to be disposed of as waste. Where the method of disposal is incineration or co-incineration (i.e. use as a fuel), the ABPR requires it to be carried out in compliance with the Waste Incineration Directive (WID). Installations may burn tallow provided they comply with these requirements. The ABPR is directly applicable in all EU member states.

In response to representations by the UK Government, the European Commission has set up a study to help establish whether such controls are proportionate and necessary to the protection of the environment. The study is expected to report by the autumn, and the Government are pressing the Commission for the study to be completed as soon as possible.

CABINET OFFICE

Diversity Training

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the contribution of diversity training across Government to the efficient development of Government policy; and if she will make a statement. [70118]

Mr. McFadden: Diversity training plays a key role in raising awareness of diversity and equality issues among staff. It is the responsibility of individual Departments to decide on their approach to diversity training and, as with all training, evaluate its effectiveness and impact on organisational performance. There is no centrally collated information on this.

Russell Commission

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which company was used to recruit the chairman of the Russell Commission. [71593]

Hilary Armstrong: Following a competitive tender exercise under Office of Government Commerce (OGC) best practice guidance, Veredus was selected to recruit the chairman, chief executive and board members for v.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Anti-Semitism

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many anti-Semitic incidents were reported in each police force area in England in each of the last 10 years. [73207]

Mr. McNulty: The police treat anti-Semitic incidents as racist incidents. Their definition when recording such incidents is:

"any incident which is regarded as racist by the victim or any other person."

This is the definition recommended by the Stephen Lawrence Inquiry. The statistics available centrally do not distinguish between religiously and racially aggravated crime, or, more specifically, anti-semitic incidents.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals have been employed in his Department in each of the last five years; what vetting procedures are in place for each category of staff; and whether these include liaison with foreign law enforcement agencies. [68016]

Mr. Byrne: The Department only collects data on non-EU nationals. In the past five financial years we have employed two non-EU nationals; one in 2003-04 and one in 2004-05. All candidates are subject to the same pre-appointment checks regardless of nationality. Our pre-appointment checks ensure that we only select those that pass eligibility in accordance with the Cabinet Office nationality requirements—www.civilservice.gov.uk\nationality. The need for an individual to undergo national security vetting, and the level of vetting that is appropriate, will depend on the particular post they are going to fill. Where necessary, this will include a check of time spent overseas.

Domestic Violence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females have reported a physical assault by a (i) current and (ii) former partner in the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [65183]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The British Crime Survey (BCS) routinely provides information on the number of incidents of domestic violence against men and women (but not on the actual number of victims), but this is not broken down by whether the perpetrator is a current or former partner.

The British Crime Survey (BCS) also collects information on whether victims report crimes to the police, but this is not broken down by victim's sex or by whether it was a domestic violence incident or not. Reporting rates for 2004-05 are available from the latest annual crime statistics publication.

The 2004-05 British Crime Survey estimated that there were, in total 308,000 incidents of domestic violence against women in England and Wales, and 92,000 against men. The number of incidents of domestic violence as measured by the BCS has decreased by 48 per cent. from 1999 to 2004-05 BCS interviews.

The BCS figures are estimates only. As they are derived from a sample they are subject to sampling error, also the context of the face-to-face BCS interview means the estimates are certain to be underestimates of the true extent due to the fact that some respondents may be unwilling to reveal experience of domestic violence to interviewers. To address this, self-completion components for those aged 16-59 on domestic violence have been included in the 1996, 2001, 2004-05, and 2005-06 BCS. Results from the 2001 BCS self-completion module on domestic violence were published in Home Office Research Study No. 276. According to this more confidential approach to measurement prevalence (per cent. of population victim at least once) rates for last year domestic assault were approximately five times higher than in the main face-to-face BCS. Also according to this report, 80 per cent. of the domestic violence incidents suffered by women in the 12 months prior to interview were from current spouses or partners, and 20 per cent. from ex-spouses/partners. The respective figures for men were 86 and 14 per cent. It also showed that the police came to know about the (worst) incident of domestic violence suffered in the 12 months prior to interview in 23 per cent. of cases suffered by women, and 8 per cent. of cases suffered by men. Overall, in 72 per cent. of the cases that the police came to know about, the victim reported it (rather than someone else such as family member or friend, or police came to know about in another way).

Number of BCS incidents of domestic violence, 1999 to 2004-05

Electronic Monitoring

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been subject to electronic monitoring in each year since 1999; and if he will make a statement. [58241]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Figures are available for the financial year 1998-99 onwards and are presented in the following table:

	Number monitored
1998-99	3,503
1999-2000	19,073
2000-01	19,962
2001-02	21,796
2002-03	37,924
2003-04	46,472
2004-05	53,230
2005-06	54,329
Total	256,289

Notes:
1. Figures for 1998-99 are from 28 January 1999.
2. Figures for 2005-06 are until 28 February 2006.
3. The number monitored is the number of new starts on electronic monitoring, rather than the caseload at any one time.

Feltham Young Offenders Institution

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how often psychiatric risk assessment tests are conducted on inmates at Feltham Young Offenders' Institution; [17797]

(2) what proportion of offenders at Feltham Young Offenders Institution are recognised as having (a) mild and (b) severe psychiatric disorders; [17798]

(3) what post-release psychiatric care prisoners receive who have been diagnosed with psychiatric disorders whilst detained at Feltham Young Offenders Institution. [17799]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on the frequency of psychiatric risk tests at Feltham Young Offenders Institution is not collected centrally. Although inmates may be referred to the community mental health in-reach team, in line with national policy, information is not then collected that would allow a count of the number of psychiatric risk assessment tests that are carried out.

Information on the proportion of offenders with psychiatric disorders at Feltham is not available centrally.

On release, offenders who meet the appropriate criteria are subject to the care programme approach, and leave prison with a full care plan for their future mental health care.

Firearms

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criteria were used in drawing up proposals (a) to restrict the use of .338 and .50 calibre rifles and (b) to ban the use of semi-automatic shotguns and .22 calibre weapons. [65426]

Mr. McNulty: Proposals are based on a recommendations by the Firearms Consultative Committee that weapons of excessive power, including those chambered for .50 calibre BMG rounds, should not be permitted for target shooting.

Identity Cards

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance he has issued on the level of facial recognition required for wearers of burkas and other facial coverings applying for (a) an identity card and (b) a travel freedom pass. [72088]

Joan Ryan: The identity card will be an international travel document and will have to comply with passport photograph standards, which require a full-face image. Enrolment facilities will be designed so that this can be handled sensitively.

The freedom pass is managed by the Association of London Government on behalf of all London councils, not by the Home Office.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his answer of 27 March 2006, Official Report, column 758W, on identity cards, whether the second identity card issued to the same standard but not for the purposes of travel will be issued automatically; and whether a charge will be imposed. [71711]

Joan Ryan: Arrangements regarding the surrender of an identity card valid for travel by an individual subject to a football banning order will be specified closer to the time of introduction of identity cards. An identity card which will not be valid for travel will be issued to the same standard as a card which will be valid for travel.

Identity Theft

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many instances of identity theft were recorded in (a) Suffolk and (b) the East of England in each of the last five years. [72636]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not available centrally. Offences of identity theft cannot be separately identified in the recorded crime series.

Illegal Vehicles

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what additional powers have been made available for (a) police officers and (b) local authorities to confiscate (i) illegal off-road vehicles and (ii) untaxed motor vehicles since 1997. [71370]

Mr. Coaker: Section 59 of the Police Reform Act 2002 empowers the police to seize vehicles being driven inconsiderately or carelessly on road contrary to section three of the Road Traffic Act 1988, or off-road without authority, contrary to sections 34 of the Act if at the same time they are being driven in such a manner as to cause or be likely to cause alarm, distress or annoyance to members of the public.

Section 152 of the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005, creates a power for the police to seize immediately vehicles, including off-road vehicles, which are detected being used on the road by someone who does not have appropriate insurance or driving licence.

The Vehicle Excise Duty (Immobilisation, Removal and Disposal of Vehicles) Regulations 1997 authorise the clamping and impounding of unlicensed vehicles on the public road. Regulation three allows the Secretary of State to authorise local authorities, police forces or any other person to use these powers.

Sections 79 to 82 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 empower local authorities to seize off-road vehicles causing a noise nuisance. Since 1997 local authorities have acquired no other vehicle seizure powers.

Independent Monitoring Boards

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the performance of each Independent Monitoring Board; and if he will make a statement. [16373]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Each Independent Monitoring Board's annual report provides detail and analysis of Board activity during the year as well as the Board's observations of issues of concern and good practice in the running of the prison or immigration removal centre. In addition Boards undertake an annual team performance review, an exercise that involves all members in taking stock of the Board's performance over a period of time to identify good practice and recognise where there is scope for improvement.

Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations he has received about the operation of sections 4, 4A, 4B and 4C of the Theft Act 1968; and whether he has plans to amend this Act. [70376]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have not received any representations recently about the operation of any part of section four of the Theft Act 1968. I have no current plans to amend this part of the 1968 Act.

MI5 (Northern Ireland)

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether any (a) disciplinary and (b) criminal investigations are under way into the failure of MI5 to pass threat information to the Police Service of Northern Ireland on a possible bombing at Omagh prior to 15 August 1998. [66525]

John Reid: There are no such investigations.

The Chief Constable, for the Police Service of Northern Ireland, made it clear in his statement of 1 March to the Policing Board that the Security Service did not withhold intelligence that was relevant or that would have progressed the Omagh inquiry.

Motoring Offences

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the police take to contact insurers to trace the owners of vehicles wanted for moving road traffic offences. [70181]

Mr. Coaker: The police have access to the motor insurers' database. What further investigation they undertake is an operational matter for individual chief officers.

National Criminal Intelligence Service

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what complaints were received about the recruitment process for National Criminal Intelligence Service posts at the new regional office in Belfast advertised in autumn 2003; and what changes have been implemented as a result. [64732]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 24 April 2006]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Belfast, North (Mr. Dodds) on 9 January 2006, Official Report, column 377W.

National Hi-Tech Crime Unit

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he plans to replace the contact service formerly provided via the National Hi-Tech Crime Unit website. [72507]

Mr. Coaker: The National Hi-Tech Crime Unit (NHTCU), as part of the National Crime Squad, became part of the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) on 1 April 2006 and now operates under the title of SOCA e-Crime.

The NHTCU was never a crime recording centre and always requested members of the public to contact their local police force. The NHTCU provided a website that contained a great deal of advice relating to harm reduction and awareness surrounding the use of computers and the internet. The content of the website has been saved and discussion is ongoing as to the most appropriate location for this to be available. Organisations and members of the public who wish to report a crime should continue to contact their local police force in the normal way.

National Identity Register

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether there exists a prohibition in law on supplying data from the National Identity Register to a foreign government for purposes connected with (a) national security and (b) the prevention and detection of crime. [67293]

Joan Ryan: Section 18 of the Identity Cards Act 2006 allows information to be provided to overseas authorities, for example law enforcement agencies, for the purposes of criminal proceedings and investigations, as provided for in section 17 of the Anti-Terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001. This is subject to safeguards provided in section 21 of the Identity Cards Act and section 18 of the 2001 Act.

Other than that, there is no provision, or power to make provision, in the Identity Cards Act for information from the NIR to be provided, without consent, overseas.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the National Identity Register will include information and data supplied by (a) the Valuation Office Agency, (b) Ordnance Survey, (c) HM Revenue and Customs, (d) electoral registers held by local authorities and (e) the Co-ordinated Online Record of Electors. [70713]

Joan Ryan: The National Identity Register will not be an amalgam of information held on existing Government databases. It is intended to be populated with identity information provided by applicants as they apply for an identity card, either as an individual card or in conjunction with an application for a designated document.

Section 9 of the Identity Cards Act 2006 does permit the Identity and Passport Service (IPS) to verify identity information provided by applicants against data held by other organisations as part of the enrolment process, subject to secondary legislation. Details of such steps to validate the information provided by applicants and its results may be held on the National Identity Register, as stated in paragraph 7 of Schedule 1 of the Act. However, as stated, such checks cannot occur unless they have received the prior approval of Parliament in secondary legislation under the affirmative resolution procedures.

IPS is currently working with other Government Departments, including Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs to identify which government data sources would provide the most accurate verification of identity information provided by applicants. Ordnance Survey information may be used as a secondary check to verify that an address provided by an applicant exists.

It is also possible that data sources used as part of this check may in turn have verified their data through conducting a check against electoral roll registers. For example, the Personal Information Process being introduced to validate passport applications includes a check of identity information against credit reference agency records, which were checked against information on electoral registers.

However, there are no plans to verify identity information provided by applicants with information held by the Valuation Office Agency or the proposed Co-ordinated Online Record of Electors.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what secure remote authentication in connection with the National Identity Register will be available over the (a) telephone and (b) internet; and what technological options have been proposed for these purposes. [73167]

Joan Ryan: At present, the Identity and Passport Service is working with experts to review various alternatives that allow the implementation of secure remote authentication. This includes research into the concept of a 'challenge response' process, which allows for the generation of a one-off password for a person to use in a single transaction.

However, the purpose of this research is to inform requirement setting as the National Identity Scheme prepares for the start of a procurement process as well as to provide a basis on which to judge solutions proposed by potential suppliers.

Thus, as it will be for bidders to propose technical options that meet the Scheme's requirements for secure remote authentication, no definitive options have been proposed, nor can they be, until the procurement process is underway.

Offences Against the Person Act

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department under what circumstances an offender found guilty of an offence under section 18 of the Offences Against the Person Act 1861 would be released from prison without (a) consultation with the police and (b) supervision; and if he will make a statement. [65009]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The police are routinely informed of the release of all prisoners. Police are partners in multi-agency public protection arrangements (MAPPA), which are statutory arrangements operated by criminal justice and social care agencies to manage serious sexual and violent offenders and protect the public. The police are therefore involved in the management of potentially dangerous offenders, generally those sentenced to 12 months or more for a sexual or violent offence. All fixed-term prisoners serving 12 months or more, or aged less than 22 years at the point of release, and all prisoners serving an indeterminate sentence are subject to statutory supervision upon release. The only exception is the small number of prisoners released at the end of their custodial term under the provisions of the Criminal Justice Act 1967.

Parking Fines

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate the Government have made of the total revenue raised from parking fines in England in the most recent year for which figures are available. [70721]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on the total revenue from parking fines is not collected centrally.

However estimates are given in the table based on information collected by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform on the number of fixed penalties issued and fines given at court for 2004 (latest available). This information is published in the Home Office publication "Offences relating to motor vehicles, England and Wales Supplementary tables". Copies of the publication are available in the Library.

The Court Proceedings Database and the Fixed Penalty Notices collection do not distinguish between obstruction, waiting and parking contraventions. The decision as to whether to issue a fixed penalty notice is a matter for the police and where the offence is decriminalised, a matter for the local authority.

Not all fines and fixed penalties will have been paid.

Information for 2005 will be available early in 2007.

Under the Road Traffic Act 1991, Decriminalised Parking Enforcement (DPE) powers allow local authorities to take over responsibility for enforcing parking contraventions from the police. Not all local authorities operate decriminalised parking enforcements so such data on fixed penalty charges issued under DPE powers are not included within the table. Data on penalty charge notices (PCNs) from local authorities operating Decriminalised Parking Enforcement can be found in the Home Office publication "Offences relating to motor vehicles, England and Wales 2004, Supplementary tables". The latest publication 2004 (Tables 22(a)-22(b)) lists data by local authorities partaking in the scheme. Copies of the publication are available in the Library. The publication can also be accessed on the Home Office Research Development and Statistics (RDS) website.

Parole

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many convicted murderers released on parole in each of the last 15 years have broken the terms of their release; [53126]

(2) how many convicted rapists released on parole in each of the last 15 years have subsequently broken the terms of their release; [53130]

(3) how many convicted burglars released on parole in each of the last 15 years have subsequently broken the terms of their release. [53132]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on the number of convicted rapists and convicted burglars released on parole in each of the last six years who have subsequently been recalled is provided in the following table. This information is as recorded on the Prison Service IT system. Information prior to 1999-2000 is only available at disproportionate cost.

Information on the number of murderers released on life licence who have subsequently been recalled is available only at disproportionate cost. Table 10.9 of Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2004 gives the number of recalls from life licence (for any offence) between 1999 and 2004.

Number of recalls of determinate sentenced prisoners of four years or more released on parole—rape and burglary

Passports

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many passport applications were refused on the grounds of the inability of the applicant to produce his or her father's marriage certificate in each of the last three years for which figures are available; [72268]

(2) when he plans to review the documentation requirements for the issue of new 10-year passports. [72269]

Joan Ryan: The documentation required from passport applicants is that which establishes the person's claim to British nationality. For persons born in the UK since the British Nationality Act 1981 came into force on 1 January 1983, this depends on a parent having been a British citizen or settled in the UK at the time of the birth. The Act provides that for the purposes of determining British nationality, the relationship of father and child shall be taken to exist only between a man and any legitimate child born to him. Therefore a passport applicant who wishes to establish that he is a British citizen because his or her father was a British citizen when the applicant was born needs to provide his or her father's marriage certificate. To establish the number of applications which were unsuccessful because this certificate could not be provided would require a search of individual case records and could not be done without disproportionate expense.

This provision of the 1981 Act is to be amended by Section nine of the Nationality, Immigration and Asylum Act 2002 when that provision is brought into force but it will not apply retrospectively. This will extend the definition of father for the purposes of the 1981 Act to include any person who satisfies prescribed requirements as to proof of paternity. The requirements for passport applications will be reviewed when this change in the law on nationality comes into effect.

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many British passports have been issued in each of the last five years. [72382]

Joan Ryan: The number of British passports issued for each of the last five years is as follows:

Financial Year	Issued by IPS	Issued by FCO	Total
2001-02	5,588,550	460,000	6,048,550
2002-03	5,354,348	465,000	5,819,348
2003-04	5,723,473	447,000	6,170,473
2004-05	6,031,325	453,000	6,484,325
2005-06	6,453,095	460,000	6,913,095

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many UK Passports were reported (a) lost and (b) stolen in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [73202]

Joan Ryan: It is not possible for the UK Passport Service to identify exactly how many passports were reportedly lost or stolen in Northern Ireland. However, the Belfast passport office, which serves the Northern Ireland area, processed the following reports of (a) loss and (b) theft of a passport for the calendar years of 2004, 2005 and 2006 to date.

	Belfast
	Lost	Stolen
2004	9,496	1,959
2005	9,615	1,117
2006 (to date)	3,615	402

People Trafficking

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps are being taken by his Department to tackle organised criminal gangs engaged in trafficking. [70133]

Mr. Coaker: The Government set up the Serious Organised Crime Agency with effect from 1 April 2006 to prevent and detect serious organised crime, and to reduce the harm it causes. Among its top priorities are tackling class A drugs trafficking and organised immigration crime. Also with effect from 1 April 2006 we introduced new powers to:

compel individuals to produce documents and provide explanations; offer sentence reductions or immunity from prosecution to offenders who co-operate against their criminal colleagues.

We continue to tackle trafficking through Reflex, a multi-agency task force aimed at tackling organised immigration crime. In February, a Reflex funded multi-agency initiative, Operation Pentameter, was launched to tackle the trafficking of human beings for sexual exploitation. All UK police forces and the Immigration Service have been involved in this initiative which has already made a real impact and to date has rescued 75 women from traffickers and made 180 arrests.

Police Community Support Officers

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many community support officers have been recruited in (a) Cheshire and (b) Warrington in each year since the scheme was introduced. [66948]

Mr. McNulty: Information relating to the number of full-time equivalent police community support officers (PCSOs) in each police force area have been collected by RDS since 2003 and is provided in the table.

Data on PCSOs within Basic Command Units (BCU) is only collected annually. As at 30 June 2005, the Northern Area of Cheshire constabulary, which includes Warrington, had 46 PCSOs.

Deployment of PCSOs within Cheshire Division is an operational matter for the Divisional Commander.

Police Stations/Vehicles

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has for constructing new police stations in Greater London. [67081]

Mr. McNulty: Decisions whether or not to construct new police buildings in London are for the City of London as police authority for the City and for the Metropolitan Police Authority for Greater London.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police vehicles were stationed in (a) Romford, (b) Havering and (c) Greater London in each of the last eight years, broken down by vehicle type. [67097]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Prisons

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what proportion of entrants to each prison had (a) drug and (b) mental health problems in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement; [58224]

(2) what assessment he has made of the extent of (a) drug and (b) mental health problems in each prison; and if he will make a statement. [58225]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The proportion of entrants to each prison with (a) drug and (b) mental health problems is not collated. Instead NOMS relies on epidemiological surveys which show that:

(a) around 55 per cent. of those received into prison report a serious drug problem, with 80 per cent. reporting some misuse prior to prison;

(b) 90 per cent. of prisoners have a least one mental health disorder (ONS survey of mental ill health in the prison population in England and Wales 1997).

The extent of (a) drug and (b) mental health problems is not collected in each prison but is a direct reflection of those entering prison.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of prison education schemes; and if he will make a statement; [44301]

(2) what plans he has to extend the range of vocational training and provision in prisons; and if he will make a statement; [44340]

(3) if he will review the methods for initial assessment of prisoners' educational needs to take account of how progression is encouraged, supported and realised; and if he will make a statement; [44341]

(4) what plans he has to change the formal curriculum for prisoner education; and if he will make a statement; [44348]

(5) what steps he is taking to ensure integrated management of learning in prisons; and if he will make a statement; [44366]

(6) what action (a) his Department and (b) the Prison Service is taking to promote learning in prisons; and if he will make a statement. [44361]

Mr. Sutcliffe: On 15 December 2005, my Department, together with the Department for Education and Skills and the Department for Work and Pensions, published the Green Paper "Reducing Re-Offending Through Skills and Employment". The document sets out a strategy for concerted action to improve offenders' skills and job prospects, including through better quality education and training.

The Green Paper makes clear that delivery of learning and skills for all offenders is changing, with the Learning and Skills Council taking responsibility for its planning and funding. This new role introduces a number of substantial changes, including an early, significant focus on assessing the offender learner's needs, and recording them on an Individual Learning Plan that will follow the offender as they progress through the criminal justice system. The Individual Learning Plan will encourage, support and record progress.

A new, broader curriculum for offender learners supports the new delivery arrangements, setting out clear quality requirements and a strong focus on learning needs that will help more offenders into suitable and sustained jobs by meeting the needs of employers. A juvenile version of the curriculum acknowledges the specific needs of younger learners.

A Head of Learning and Skills—who is a member of the establishment's senior management team—oversees delivery of the learning and skills arrangements in each prison. Heads of Learning and Skills work closely with the Learning and Skills Council and with the Regional Offender Manager.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what assessment he has made of the level of contraband in each prison; and if he will make a statement; [44368]

(2) what quantities of (a) mobile phones, (b) drugs and (c) alcohol have been found in each prison in each month over the last year; and if he will make a statement. [44369]

Mr. Sutcliffe: An item of contraband is any item or article that a prison governor identifies or considers to pose a risk to security or the good order of the prison. Contraband does not form a specific group on the Incident Reporting System (IRS). In the last two months alone, 394 miscellaneous incidents were recorded on IRS a small proportion of these incidents relate to contraband, analysing this would be at a disproportionate cost.

Information on the level of restricted items in each prison is not collated centrally. However, the number of drug incidents, finds of mobile phones (and associated equipment) and alcohol (including "home brewed alcohol") are detailed in tables placed in the Libraries of the House.

Ms Diana R. Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners underwent treatment for drugs dependence in (a) Kingston upon Hull North constituency, (b) the Humberside police area and (c) England and Wales in each of the last five years. [69773]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Figures for prisoners undergoing drug treatment in each of the last five years are given in the following table.

There are no prisons in (a) Kingston upon Hull North constituency. Figures for programme completion were not collected prior to 2004-05.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been spent at each prison by the Prison Service on drug treatments in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [71838]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Individual prison drug treatment spend is not recorded centrally. Prisons have instead focused on drug treatment delivery against high-level targets. Additional drug treatment funding allocated to prisons globally over the past five years is shown in the following table:

Intervention	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the annual cost was of keeping a category A prisoner in gaol in the last year for which figures are available. [72350]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Prison Service does not collect cost data by prisoner security classification but by cost per classification of prison establishment. The cost of keeping a prisoner in a high security prison during the 2004-05 was £47,513.

This information is contained in the Prison Service annual report and accounts for 2004-05, a copy of which is in the Library of the House or can be viewed via the Service's website www.hmprisonservice.gov.uk.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action he is taking to improve the take-up of correspondence courses in prisons. [66566]

Phil Hope: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 4 May 2006, Official Report, column 1851W.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on provision for vulnerable prisoners at HM Prison Lewes of offending behaviour programmes. [66573]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Vulnerable prisoners held at Lewes prison are housed on F wing which closes later this year for refurbishment. The number of vulnerable prisoners held at Lewes will be substantially reduced to around 40 and none will be eligible for the Sex Offenders Treatment Programme (SOTP). Since December 2002 this treatment has been provided at Maidstone and Elmley with Lewes as the feeder establishment working together to assess and prepare sex offenders to undertake treatment. Following refurbishment in 2008 it is expected that Lewes will no longer house a vulnerable prisoner population.

The vulnerable prisoner unit at Lewes is supported by the area psychology team and staff working on the unit are SOTP awareness trained. Prisoners are assessed and, if ready and suitable, are transferred to Elmley or Maidstone where specialist cognitive behavioural courses are available. Since 2004 the prisoners addressing substance related offending (PASRO) course has been available at Lewes and will continue.

Probation Service

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what evidence he has received to support his conclusion that there will be benefits to (a) offenders, (b) the public purse and (c) communities of realising the proposals for changes to the structures and role of the Probation Service; and if he will meet representatives of the National Association of Probation Officers to discuss that evidence. [68119]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In October 2005 the Government published a consultation paper, "Restructuring Probation to Reduce Re-offending", which set out proposals for the introduction of commissioning and contestability in the provision of probation services. This document was accompanied by a Partial Regulatory Impact Assessment which set out the benefits these proposals are expected to deliver and why.

Trade Union representatives, including from NAPO, have access to ministers and senior officials through the Stakeholder Forum and the Joint Council, as well as bi-lateral meetings. In addition there are scheduled regular meetings of the Probation Service's Consultative Council, which includes officials and the three probation trade unions:

NAPO;
Unison;
GMB (Scoop).

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many expressions of interest he has received from (a) private companies, (b) not-for-profit and voluntary organisations and (c) faith-based organisations on obtaining contracts for the end-to-end management of offenders. [57187]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There are a number of established fora through which the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) engages with NOMS service providers from the public, private and voluntary sectors. Through these contacts, some expressions of interest in providing future NOMS services have been received from providers of all sectors. However these indications have been informal and non-specific in nature and therefore at this time, clarity as to the commercial and legal status of these organisations has not been obtained. In due course a more formal process will be undertaken in accordance with European Union procurement rules.

Reoffending

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of criminals re-offended within (a) 12 months, (b) 24 months and (c) 36 months of their original conviction in (i) England and Wales and (ii) Hartlepool constituency in 2005-06. [72595]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested is not available.

The most recent information on the re-offending of adults in England and Wales was published in December as 'Adult re-offending: results from the 2002 cohort'. Home Office Statistical Bulletin 25/05'. The report is available on line at: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs05/hosb2505.pdf and covers offenders starting community sentences or being discharged from prison in the first quarter of 2002. Table A1 shows the re-offending rate for adults at 12 months and 24 months.

Re-offending data are not routinely collected on a sub-national basis, nor are they available for periods of over 24 months.

Road Traffic Offences

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what evidence defendants are entitled to receive in relation to penalties or prosecutions for allegedly driving in a bus lane; if he will list the occasions when a penalty notice has been wrongly sent in each of the last five years for which information is available; what advice he issues to individuals who have been wrongly accused of driving in a bus lane; and if he will make a statement. [70066]

Mr. Coaker: Outside London, the police are at present solely responsible for the enforcement of bus lane infringements in England and Wales. Civil enforcement is expected to begin in some areas in the autumn. Suspected offenders will be told that a vehicle of which they are the registered keeper has been detected committing a bus lane offence. The provision of further information is a matter for individual chief officers of police. Guidance from the Association of Chief Police Officers is that the registered keeper or person named by the keeper as driver at the time of the alleged offence should be allowed to view photographic evidence on request. Any person who receives a fixed penalty notice for a bus lane offence and wishes to dispute the alleged offence is required to request a court hearing, the procedure for which is explained on the notice. If a case went to court, the prosecution would have to furnish the evidence to support the proceedings and relevant material would be disclosed under the provisions of the Criminal Procedure and Investigations Act.

In London, the police can still enforce bus lane infringements if they consider it appropriate. Most enforcement is however undertaken by Transport for London and the London boroughs under the overall co-ordination of the Association of London Government's Transport and Environmental Committee (ALGTEC). Recipients of penalty charge notices issued for bus lane offences are entitled to view the record of the contravention free of charge at the offices of the issuing authority. Alternatively a copy of the recording can be provided at a small cost. Penalty charge notices describe the procedure for making representations against a notice to the enforcing authority and for appealing to adjudicators.

Information is not held centrally on the number of occasions when a penalty charge notice or a fixed penalty notice has been issued in error.

Security Industry

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to the letter of 22 February from Mr. Patrick Somerville of the International Professional Security Association on the implementation of the Private Security Industry Act 2001. [71146]

Mr. Coaker: Mr. Somerville was sent a reply on 11 May.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people are employed by the Security Industry Authority to process licences. [62260]

Mr. Coaker: The Security Industry Authority (SIA) has contracted out the checking and processing of licence applications to BT who is their managed service provider. The final decision to grant or refuse a licence is then made by SIA staff. A mix of permanent and temporary staff is employed to manage the volume variations caused by the late response of the security industry to the introduction of licensing. To help manage the late rush of application the SIA have opened two temporary processing units, one managed by BT and one by the SIA. In total there are 186 staff employed by BT and the SIA to deliver licensing to applicants.

Sentencing

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the criminal offences for which people can be sentenced to prison terms of up to two years. [65580]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested is not available centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Victim Support Compensation

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to include access to victim support compensation payments for victims of offences that result in a caution to the perpetrator. [70303]

Mr. Sutcliffe: No plans are needed. Such victims are already eligible for compensation provided the injury is sufficiently serious to qualify for the minimum award payable under the Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme (CICS).

The standard of proof required by the Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority (CICA) in determining claims under the Scheme is 'the balance of probabilities'. That is the standard of proof required in the civil courts. For CICS purposes, that means it is not necessary for the offender to have been convicted of the crime causing the injury, and compensation may be paid in cases where the offender is not caught or even identified.

Violent Crime

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Government are taking to tackle violent crime in Coventry, South and the Midlands. [72302]

Mr. McNulty: The Government are currently taking forward a very full range of work which will continue to reduce violent crime.

Through the Tackling Violent Crime Programme (TVCP), we are working intensively with practitioners in a small number of local areas with high volumes of more serious violent crime—in particular alcohol-related and domestic violence—with a view to identifying, developing, disseminating and embedding good practice. Activities to tackle alcohol-related disorder have included intervening early in the evening with a view to preventing the escalation of violence, and conducting multi-agency visits to problem licensed premises. We are working to improve investigation of domestic violence with a view to bringing more domestic violence offences to justice.

In the Midlands, Coventry is one of the areas that has been involved in the TVCP (along with Wolverhampton and Nottingham) and two more areas (Birmingham, and Leicester) are due to join the programme over the next couple of months. In addition, the regional Government office for the West Midlands is planning a regional TVCP in up to 11 areas during 2006-07.

Coventry has an existing specialist domestic violence court and is included in the Specialist Domestic Violence Court Programme's roll out plan to implement the nationally agreed core components of a specialist domestic violence court system across all of West Midlands over the coming year.

We are introducing new measures which will give police and local communities the powers they need to tackle guns, knives and alcohol-related violence in the Violent Crime Reduction Bill which is currently before Parliament, and, for example, plans have been developed with the Association of Chief Police Officers for a nation-wide knife amnesty, which will begin in late May.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Advertising

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was spent on advertising by his Department in each of the last three years. [70475]

Mr. Dhanda: DfES expenditure on advertising for the last three years is set out as follows:

	Advertising spend (£ million)
2003-04	17.0
2004-05	11.8
2005-06[1]	8.3

[1] Formal departmental resource accounts for 2005-06 are not yet finalised.

Note:
All expenditure is exclusive of VAT.

Blind and Partially Blind Children

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will list the statutory provisions relating to the teaching of blind and partially blind children; and if he will make a statement. [72453]

Mr. Dhanda: Local authorities have important and extensive duties to identify, assess and make provision for children with special educational needs, including blind and partially blind children, and to keep their arrangements for doing so under review. Schools, early education settings, local authorities and others must have regard to the special educational needs code of practice, which gives guidance on carrying out their statutory duties under the 1996 Education Act.

The Government published in February 2004 its SEN strategy "Removing Barriers to Achievement", which sets out a long-term programme to improve SEN provision and to improve outcomes for children and young people with SEN. As part of this strategy, the Department is promoting more consistent practice through a team of national SEN advisers.

In addition to holding qualified teacher status, a person employed by a school as a teacher of a class of pupils with a visual impairment is required by regulations to hold an additional specialist qualification, approved by the Secretary of State, known as a mandatory qualification.

Chat Rooms

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether he plans to seek to introduce measures to ensure that where chat room moderators are employed outside the jurisdiction of UK courts this is displayed on the relevant site. [72502]

Mr. Dhanda: Under the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Bill currently before Parliament, people will be barred where they present a risk of harm to children and/or vulnerable adults. The Bill makes it a requirement for chat-room moderators operating in England and Wales to be vetted.

We will continue to work with representatives of the industry in the Home Office's Internet Task Force to support the industry's approach to maintaining the highest standards of safeguarding. This might include an indication of the standards used by UK-based providers.

Child Protection

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 3 May 2006, Official Report, column 1630W, on sex offender vetting, if he will take steps to agree with the Department for Communities and Local Government and the Home Office procedures to enable local councillors and police authorities to bar councillors on the sex offenders register from access to local authority schools and vulnerable adults; what discussions have taken place on the subject; and if he will make a statement. [71381]

Mr. Dhanda: Under the new vetting and barring scheme, people will be barred where they present a risk of harm to children or vulnerable adults. Inclusion on the sex offenders register will be one of the reasons for barring. The police and local authorities will be required to provide relevant information to the scheme, on which the Independent Barring Board may decide to place that individual on the children's or vulnerable adults' barred list. Inclusion on the children's list would prevent the individual from working closely with children including frequently working in key children's establishments such as local authority schools or holding positions of authority in relation to children such as local councillors with responsibilities in relation to children's services.

Departmental Credit Cards

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what facility is available for senior civil servants in his Department to use credit cards supplied by the Department. [70478]

Bill Rammell: Government Procurement Cards are available for use by any member of Departmental staff with purchasing responsibilities. In addition, the Private Office team also have access to Company Barclaycards for members of their staff. The Department has utilised the national framework contracts established by OGCBuying.Solutions in setting up these card schemes.

Disabled Children

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate he has made of the number of children of each (a) sex and (b) ethnic group with a disability. [71223]

Mr. Dhanda: Currently, the Department collects information about the numbers of pupils in the country with different types of special educational need (SEN) but specific information on pupils with a disability is not collected.

Many pupils identified as having SEN will also be disabled as the definition of SEN includes:

"Children who have a disability which prevents or hinders them from making use of educational facilities of a kind generally provided for children of the same age in schools within the area of the local education authority"

Work is in progress to identify a common disability data set that can be used to collect information across children's services to better inform planning, policy development and the monitoring of outcomes for disabled children.

Information given in the following table shows numbers of pupils of each sex and ethnic group who have special educational needs (SEN):

Maintained primary and secondary schools[1]: number of pupils with special educational needs by ethnic group[2], [3]January 2006[4], England

Pupils of compulsory school age and above

Dyslexic Children

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what resources are allocated in (a) Southend on Sea and (b) England to the training of teachers in detecting and teaching dyslexic children; and if he will make a statement; [71983]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of dyslexic (a) children and (b) adults in each of the last 10 years; [71984]

(3) what recent research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on dyslexia; and if he will make a statement; [71985]

(4) what figures his Department collects on the number of children under 16 years of age with dyslexia; and if he will make a statement. [72451]

Mr. Dhanda: To be awarded qualified teacher status (QTS), all trainee teachers must demonstrate that they understand their responsibilities under the statutory SEN code of practice, know how to seek advice from specialists where necessary, and can differentiate their teaching to meet the needs of pupils, including those with SEN.

The National Standards for qualified teachers status and the Induction Programme for Newly Qualified Teachers (NQT) both cover SEN, including specific learning difficulties such as dyslexia. NQTs are required to demonstrate that they can plan effectively to meet the needs of pupils in their class with SEN, with or without a statement, and in consultation with the school's SEN Co-ordinator, contribute to the preparation and implementation of individual pupils' education plans or the equivalent.

The Department is working with the Training and Development Agency for Schools to take forward a range of specific initiatives designed to improve the skills and confidence of trainee, newly qualified, and established teachers in supporting pupils with SEN and disabilities.

All schools have a school development grant that they can use, amongst other things, for the purposes of supporting the continuing professional development of teachers in relation to their understanding and knowledge of SEN and disability issues. A wide variety of courses are available covering SEN, including dyslexia, ranging from awareness-raising through to in-depth studies leading to specific qualifications. It is, however, a matter for individual teachers and their schools to determine their own particular training and development needs.

No information is collected centrally which would enable the Government to make an estimate of the number of children and adults with dyslexia. However, since 2004, the Department for Education and Skills have collected data on pupils by type of SEN as part of the annual school census. Dyslexia is included within specific learning difficulties (SpLD)—which also covers dyscalculia and dyspraxia. We have data on pupils with SEN at 'School Action Plus' and with a statement of SEN where SpLD is recorded as their primary need. The number of pupils aged under 16 with SpLD in maintained schools in 2006 was just under 77,000. We do not have data on pupils whose needs are met at 'School Action' or where SpLD is a secondary or other need.

The Department has not commissioned any recent research on dyslexia.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment she has made of the capacity of further education institutions to administer the education maintenance allowance in-house from 2007-08. [50934]

Mr. Dhanda: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council, who operate education maintenance allowances for the DfES. Mark Haysom, the Council's Chief Executive has written to the hon. Member with the information requested and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 15 February 2006:

I am writing in response to your Parliamentary Question that asked 'how much has been spent on administration of educational maintenance allowance in each year since the scheme was piloted; and how much is expected to be spent in each year until 2009-10'.

EMA Pilots

It is not possible to be precise about the expenditure on administration during the pilot period. The table below shows the total expenditure and the approximated administration expenditure on the Education Maintenance Allowance pilots by financial year.

					£ million
	1999-2000	2000-01	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04
Full costs	11	52	109	120	142
Administration costs (approximate)	0.44	2.08	4.4	4.8	5.7

EMA pilots were administered through local authorities in areas identified as having low percentages of young people staying on in education post-16. Administration costs were agreed on the basis of type of pilot and volumes, and were subject to audit. Payments varied across the local authorities but on average administration costs were around 3-4 % of the full claim made by the local authority.

EMA Main Scheme

The table below shows the main scheme EMA provision for future years made in Annually Managed Expenditure (AME) by financial year.

						£ million
	(Actual) 2004-05	(Planned) 2005-06	(Planned) 2006-07	(Planned) 2007-08	(Planned) 2008-09	(Planned) 2009-10[1]
Full Costs	260	432	570	591	598	595
Administration costs (approximate)	42.7	53.1	52.5	35.8	[1]—	[1]—

[1] The figures for 2008-09 and 2009-10 are dependent on the outcomes of the Comprehensive Spending Review.

The EMA main scheme commenced from the beginning of the 2004/05 academic year and is administered through schools and colleges. The costs shown include set-up and publicity expenditure, payments to colleges and schools for them to set up administrative arrangements, and payments to the Assessment and Payment Body for processing.

Roll-out of the scheme is continuing, with consequent planned increases in volumes. From April EMA is also being extended to young people on Entry to Employment (E2E) and Programme Led Pathways. This expansion is covered within the figures for 2006-07 and 2007-08, and unit costs decrease as the scheme beds in.

I hope this information is helpful and addresses your question. If you would like further details please contact Philip Brewins at the LSC National Office on 0114 207 4513 or Philip.Brewins@lsc.gov.uk

Dan Norris: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many residents of Wansdyke constituency are (a) eligible for and (b) in receipt of the education maintenance allowance. [54391]

Mr. Dhanda: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council, who operate education maintenance allowances for the DfES and hold the information about take-up of the scheme. Mark Haysom, the council's chief executive, has written to my hon. Friend with the information requested and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom dated 15 March 2006:

I am writing in response to your Parliamentary Question regarding Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA).

Information on the number of young people who have applied, enrolled and received EMA is available at Local Education Authority (LEA) level, but not at constituency level. EMA take-up is defined as young people who have received one or more EMA payment in the academic year 2005/06.

Projections of the number of young people eligible for EMA are formed by applying income distributions (derived from the Family Resources Survey) and expected numbers in full-time further education. When applied to individual localities the figures may be subject to some variation but they provide a useful estimate.

The following table displays the data for South Gloucestershire and Bath and North East Somerset.

Take-up of EMA in 2005/06 (by the end of January 2006)

LEA	Projected number eligible	Actual take-up
South Gloucestershire	1,950	1,387
Bath and North East Somerset	1,320	1,011

In modelling EMA take-up we also produce projections for the number of young people expected to receive one or more EMA payment in each LEA. In producing these projections we have taken account of the take-up in the first year of the national scheme and factored an expected increase for year two. The following table displays this data.

Take-up of EMA in 2005/06 (by the end of January 2006)

LEA	Projected take-up of EMA	Actual take-up
South Gloucestershire	1,530	1,387
Bath and North East Somerset	1,040	1,011

I hope this information is helpful and addresses your question.

Mr. Martlew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils in Cumbria are in receipt of the education maintenance allowance. [67331]

Mr. Dhanda: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council, who operate education maintenance allowances for the DfES and hold the information about take-up of the scheme. Mark Haysom, the Council's Chief Executive has written to my hon. Friend with the information requested and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 5 May 2006:

I am writing in response to your Parliamentary Question that asked "How many pupils in Cumbria are in receipt of the education maintenance allowance?"

By the end of March 2006, 3,611 young people in the Cumbria local education authority area had applied, enrolled and received one or more EMA payment during the academic year 2005/06.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will raise the threshold of parental income for the payments of education maintenance allowance (EMA); and what assessment he has made of the impact of replacing the entry to employment scheme with EMA. [72246]

Mr. Dhanda: I can confirm that the household income thresholds that are used to determine eligibility for receipt of education maintenance allowance (EMA) have been increased. The household income thresholds (for applications based on the tax year 2005-06) have been increased in line with the retail prices index as follows:

	EMA award (£)
£0 to £20,817	30
£20,818 to £25,521	20

To respond to the second part of your question, I need to clarify that the Entry to Employment scheme is still being operated and will not be replaced by EMA.

From April 2006, the package of financial support provided to 16 to 19-year-old learners in school sixth forms/further education colleges, has been extended to young people participating in unwaged training programmes (Entry to Employment and Programme led Pathways) funded by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). The extension of EMA to unwaged trainees should not be regarded as simply the replacement of the training allowance by EMA. It is a full package of financial support which will extend EMA to unwaged trainees and extend child benefit and child tax credit to their parents/carers. This will mean more money for the majority of unwaged trainees and their families, who are typically low to middle income households. Those young people who are estranged from their parents/carers, and entitled to claim benefits in their own right, will also be much better off as they will be able to claim income support in addition to their EMA.

The LSC will monitor and evaluate the impact of these reforms and will report progress on implementing them to my officials at the Department for Education and Skills.

Education Spending

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was spent on (a) nursery, (b) primary and (c) secondary education in (i) Cornwall and (ii) England in 2005-06. [72783]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not yet available. The Department is due to collect the section 52 Outturn data relating to the 2005-06 financial year from August 2006.

Former Civil Servants (Consultants)

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many former members of his Department have notified the civil service authorities under civil service regulations that they are working for (a) lobbyists and (b) consultants; which companies are involved in each case; and whether the company is employed by his Department. [68627]

Mr. Dhanda: The information in the form requested could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

All staff who leave the Department are subject to the Business Appointment Rules issued by the Advisory Committee on Business Appointments.

A list of all Business Appointment applications considered by the advisory committee is published in the committee's annual report, copies of which can be obtained from the Library.

Foster Care

Jim Sheridan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children in England are waiting to be placed with foster parents. [73175]

Mr. Dhanda: There is currently no central collection of data regarding the number of children in England who are waiting to be placed with foster carers.

However, work to develop an annual return on foster care is currently being taken forward by the Commission for Social Care Inspection, with a view to collecting data from all fostering providers from summer 2006.

Leased Land

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what (a) land and (b) property his Department (i) leases and (ii) leased in (A) 1979, (B) 1983, (C) 1987, (D) 1992 and (E) 1997 in (1) the Southend, West constituency, (2) Essex, (3) Hertfordshire and (4) the Metropolitan Police area of London. [72119]

Mr. Dhanda: The Secretary of State for Education and Skills does not currently lease any land or property in any of the areas in question. Historical information is not available.

Merseyside Learning and Skills Council

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when he expects the restructuring of the Merseyside Learning and Skills Council to be completed; and what consequential effects he expects on costs. [72829]

Bill Rammell: The Learning and Skills Council is making good progress in implementing its restructuring proposals, and has announced a number of senior level appointments in Merseyside, including the Area Director and Local Partnership Directors. The timescale for completing the restructuring programme is a matter for the LSC, but we would expect implementation across the whole organisation to be complete by March 2007. The LSC estimates that nationally these changes will save up to £40 million, including in property and related costs.

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what consultation is being carried out concerning the restructuring of the Merseyside Learning and Skills Council. [72830]

Bill Rammell: The Learning and Skills Council has consulted staff and unions on its proposals. The formal consultation ended on 8 February, following a short extension to the agreed 90 day consultation period. The Learning and Skills Council is continuing to discuss the changes with staff and Unions at both national level and local level. We expect implementation to be complete by March 2007.

Milton Keynes University

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what role (a) the Higher Education Funding Council and (b) his Department will have in (i) establishing links between West Midlands universities and (ii) developing a university for Milton Keynes. [72987]

Bill Rammell: The DfES and the Higher Education Funding Council for England do not have a formal role in establishing links between Universities or for developing new Universities. However, HEFCE do work closely with and contribute funding towards the West Midlands Higher Education Association whose aims are to promote West Midlands HEIs and to facilitate collaboration between HEIs and provide a forum for sharing, communicating and disseminating good practice.

Ministerial Visits (Accommodation)

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what the total cost was of overnight accommodation for Ministers of State in his Department on foreign visits in each of the last three years; [69033]

(2) on how many occasions Ministers of State in his Department stayed overnight in (a) five star, (b) four star and (c) three star hotels on foreign visits in each of the last three years. [69034]

Mr. Dhanda: Costs for overnight accommodation for all Ministers on foreign visits in each of the last three years are in the following table:

	Cost (£)
2003-04	4,170
2004-05	2,487
2005-06	3,286

Since 1999 the Government have published an annual list of all visits overseas undertaken by Cabinet Ministers costing £500 or more during each financial year. This information includes accommodation costs. Copies are available in the Library.

Records of the star ratings of hotels stayed in by Ministers are not held centrally and could be collected only by incurring disproportionate cost.

All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the rules set out in the Ministerial Code and Travel by Ministers, copies of which are available in the Libraries of the House.

Prison Education

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will ensure that every adult prison has (a) a learning support assistant and (b) a special educational needs co-ordinator. [65801]

Phil Hope: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary on 2 May 2006, Official Report, column 1425W.

Private Office Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much has been paid in (a) salary, (b) travelling expenses, (c) subsistence allowance and (d) removal expenses to special advisers in his private office in each of the last five years. [69038]

Mr. Dhanda: Since 2003, the Government have published on an annual basis the names and overall cost of special advisers and the number in each payband. For information relating to the last financial year I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement made by my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister, on 21 July 2005, Official Report, columns 158-61WS.

Information on special advisers for this financial year is currently being collected and will be published in the normal way when it is ready.

The following table shows special advisers' travel expenses for the last five years:

	Amount (£)
2001-02	3,051
2002-03	4,080
2003-04	2,445
2004-05	1,345
2005-06	2,123

The Department does not hold records of special advisers' subsistence in the format requested. This information could be provided only by incurring a disproportionate cost.

According to records, there have been no removal costs paid to special advisers in this Department in the last five years.

All official travel by special advisers is undertaken in accordance with the requirements of the ministerial code and the civil service management code.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of his private office staff is (a) male, (b) female and (c) disabled. [69041]

Mr. Dhanda: The following table shows the percentage of (a) male and (b) female staff in the Department for Education and Skills' ministerial private offices.

	Percentage
Male	45
Female	55

Information on staffs disabilities is not held.

Promotion Boards

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many promotion boards have been held in his Department in each of the last five years. [70474]

Mr. Dhanda: The number of promotion boards held in the Department in each of the years requested are set out in the following table:

	Promotion boards
2001	HEO
2002	Senior Civil Service
2003	SEO
2004	Senior Civil Service
2005	Grade 6 and Grade 7

These promotion boards were open to internal candidates only.

Pupil/Teacher Ratio

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average pupil:teacher ratio in primary schools in (a) Cornwall, (b) the South-West Region and (c) England was in each year since 2001. [72705]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the pupil: teacher ratio in maintained primary schools in Cornwall local authority, the South West government office region and England, in each January from 2001 to 2006. Information for 2006 is not yet available at local authority level.

Pupil:teacher ratios in maintained primary schools in Cornwall local authority, South West government office region and England, as at January of each year

Racial Abuse Complaints

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many complaints of racial abuse have been (a) investigated and (b) upheld in his Department in each of the last five years. [70476]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department's investigation procedure, to consider allegations of racial abuse, has been initiated less than five times in each of the last five years. On this basis, we regret that the information is suppressed on grounds of confidentiality.

The DfES believes that everyone should have an equal opportunity to meet their aspirations, realise their full potential and improve their life chances and we aspire to be an exemplary equal opportunities employer, and create a workplace which values diversity and is free from any form of unfair discrimination.

The Department does not tolerate unacceptable behaviour towards others. Formal complaints of racial abuse are investigated quickly and thoroughly and where complaints are upheld, appropriate disciplinary action is taken.

School Day

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average length of the school day in England was in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [71963]

Mr. Dhanda: The requested information for England is not collected centrally.

Student Accommodation

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what support his Department provides for the provision of student accommodation. [72444]

Bill Rammell: The Department for Education and Skills does not provide any direct support to higher education institutions for the provision of student accommodation. Institutions are able to use other funding available to them to secure the provision of appropriate accommodation for their students.

Student Finances

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what evaluation he has undertaken of the impact of regional variations in students' cost of living on the number of students (a) going to university and (b) completing their course. [72442]

Bill Rammell: Since 1999/2000 the initial entrants to HE have increased from 246,000 to 271,000 in 2004/05 and we now have world class completion rates of 86 per cent. I am not aware of any evidence to demonstrate that regional variations in living costs are correlated with participation or completion rates, and in the most recent Student Income and Expenditure Survey (SIES 2004/05) commissioned by the DfES 4 out of 5 of students thought the benefits of HE were greater than the costs. We are already making £2 billion a year available in student support, abolishing up front tuition fees and institutions will become more responsible for providing additional support for deserving students through bursaries which will be worth over £300 million.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what research his Department has (a) undertaken and (b) assessed on the (i) levels of rent in student accommodation and (ii) impact of rent levels on levels of participation. [72443]

Bill Rammell: The recently published the Student Income and Expenditure Survey (SIES) 2004/05 questioned students on their expenditure on rent and mortgage, this has increased by 29 per cent. on average across all full-time students in real terms since the last comprehensive study in 1998/09.

Since 1999/2000 initial entrants to HE have increased from 246,000 to 271,000 in 2004/05 and we now have world class completion rates of 86 per cent. I am not aware of any evidence to demonstrate that accommodation costs are correlated with participation rates although SIES 2004/05 showed that 4 out of 5 of students thought the benefits of HE were greater than the costs. We are already making £2 billion a year available in student support, abolishing up front tuition fees and institutions will become more responsible for providing additional support for deserving students through bursaries which will be worth over £300 million.

Teaching

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many state-maintained schools offer Mandarin as a language option from Key Stage 3; and how many state-funded colleges offer A and AS level Mandarin. [71877]

Jim Knight: Information is not collected on the subjects offered at any Key Stage by schools and colleges. However, it is possible to provide figures on the number of schools where at least one pupil has been entered for an examination in a particular subject at Key Stage 4 and Post-16 education (but not for Key Stage 3) and these are given as follows.

In 2005, the number of maintained schools where at least one 15-year-old[1] pupil was entered for a GCSE full course in Chinese[2] was 500. In the same year, 183 maintained schools and 70 FE Sector Colleges had at least one student entered for A or AS level Chinese.

[1] Age at start of academic year i.e. 31 August.

[2] GCSE and A/AS level Chinese qualifications are accessible to both Mandarin and Cantonese speakers.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which foreign languages are taught in schools in each local authority in England; and how many children between the ages of 14 and 16 years are studying each language. [72839]

Jim Knight [holding answer 22 May 2006]: Information is not collected on the subjects taught in schools, however it is possible to provide figures to show where at least one pupil has been entered for a particular subject. It is not possible, however, to say whether the school has actually taught the subject or whether the pupil has been entered privately.

A table showing the number of 15-year-old pupils[1] entered for GCSE full course languages examinations in 2004/05[2], by local authority has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children in the Ribble Valley have been taught at home in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [73208]

Jim Knight: Parents may exercise their right to educate their children at home on a temporary or permanent basis. We do not collect information about the numbers of children whose parents provide education at home, and it would be impractical to do so given the transient nature of some of this type of provision.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Access to Justice

Anne Milton: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what steps her Department is taking to improve access to justice for those who (a) are not eligible for legal aid and (b) are unable to find a solicitor who will take on their case via legal aid. [71567]

Vera Baird: The information is as follows: (a) Conditional Fee Agreements (CFAs) enable solicitors to undertake cases on the basis that they will only charge their fee in the event of success and nothing in the event of failure. The Government have extended the use of CFAs so that they are now available for all civil proceedings, except family proceedings. We recently completed a major simplification of the regulation of CFAs to make the process easier for consumers to understand. In January this year the Government launched a straightforward guide for consumers to help them to get the information they need to make an informed choice about the most appropriate legal adviser for them. My Department is working closely with Community Legal Service Direct to develop this guidance further to ensure that those consumers that are not eligible for legal aid have the confidence to shop effectively for their legal services. The Government's proposals for legal service reform will also improve access to justice by promoting competition within the legal profession and building consumer confidence in the sector.

(b) The Legal Services Commission (LSC) continues to work with suppliers to fill potential gaps where possible through outreach services and telephone advice. The LSC consulted last year on its strategy for the Community Legal Service (CLS), Making Legal Rights a Reality. The Commission's final strategy for the CLS was launched on 23 March 2006. One of the proposals is the development of Community Legal Advice Networks which will be particularly beneficial in less densely populated and larger geographical areas, as they will operate to ensure that services are joined up so as to provide a wider range of services to the client than previously available. Clients can find a local legal adviser through the Community Legal Service (CLS) Direct telephone helpline. Their telephone number is: 0845 345 4345 or alternatively their website is www.clsdirect.org.uk

David Simpson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how much was spent on advertising by her Department in each of the last three years. [70513]

Vera Baird: Since its inception in June 2003, my Department, the Department for Constitutional Affairs has conducted the following advertising on:

A regional poster campaign on buses to promote recruitment to the lay magistracy

A national campaign to promote recruitment to the lay magistracy

Radio and press adverts to target court fine defaulters (under the title Operation Payback)

Press adverts to promote voting fraud prevention

Lord Carter's Review of Legal Aid Procurement

	Project	Expenditure on advertising (£)
2003	Operation Payback (Phase 1)	230,000
	Magistrate recruitment	342,000
2004	Operation Payback (Phase 2)	292,000
	Magistrate recruitment	102,000
2005	Postal voting	185,270
	Magistrate recruitment	741,000
	Operation Payback (Phase 3)	263,082
2006	Magistrate recruitment	162,493
	Lord Carter's Review of Legal Aid Procurement	24,200

Departmental Consultations

David Simpson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many public consultations her Department undertook in the last 12 months; and what the cost was (a) in total and (b) of each consultation. [70511]

Vera Baird: During the calendar year 2005, the Department for Constitutional Affairs undertook 16 formal public consultations in order to inform the department's policy development. Information on the cost of all consultations could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Credit Cards

David Simpson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what facility is available for senior civil servants in her Department to use credit cards supplied by the Department. [70516]

Bridget Prentice: The Department for Constitutional Affairs has adopted the OGCbuying.solutions National Framework for the Government Procurement Card (GPC) and Government Fuel Card (GFC) facilities in line with best practice. These are available to identified staff in the Department including senior civil servants.

Unlike a consumer credit card, which offers consumers extended credit facilities, both GPC and Fuel Cards were introduced to consolidate high-occurrence small value purchases, with Procurement Card invoices to be settled in full at the end of each billing period.

There are no other credit cards supplied by the Department for use by staff.

Departmental Estate

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what (a) land and (b) property her Department (i) leases and (ii) leased in (A) 1979, (B) 1983, (C) 1987, (D) 1992 and (E) 1997 in (1) the Southend West constituency, (2) Essex, (3) Hertfordshire and (4) the Metropolitan Police area of London. [72110]

Vera Baird: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Information Technology

Chris Huhne: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how much was spent on information technology (IT) sourced from outside her Department in each of the last five years; who is responsible for such projects in her Department; and what IT (a) expertise and (b) qualifications they possess. [71804]

Bridget Prentice: For my Department, the expenditure on IT systems since 2001 is contained within three main areas; Crown and county courts, magistrates courts and headquarters. These three areas which are sourced from outside the Department, are covered by separate contracts: LOCCS, ARAMIS and the LIBRA contracts.

The total IT spend under these contracts over the last five years is as follows:

	£ million
2001-02	73.8
2002-03	110.24
2003-04	149.6
2004-05	121.38
2005-06	158.51

The Chief Information Officer, Annette Vernon CBE, advises the Permanent secretary on IT matters for the Department. She has more than 20 years experience in public sector IT based change. She has successfully delivered important and award-winning projects such as LINK (supplying infrastructure to the courts), XHIBIT (exchanging Hearing Information By Internet Technology), and MCOL (Money Claim OnLine). She has formal qualifications in programme and project management.

Legal Aid

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the total cost of legal aid for supporting prisoners appealing parole board decisions was in each of the last five years. [69743]

Vera Baird [pursuant to the reply, 18 May 2006, Official Report c. 1185W]: The figures in my answer of 18 May related to the cost of legal aid only for parole board hearings. They did not include the costs of judicial reviews of parole board hearings.

The Legal Services Commission is not able to readily provide specifically the cost of legal aid for supporting prisoners seeking judicial reviews of parole board decisions as judicial reviews are not centrally recorded to that level of specification.

Ministerial Travel (Accommodation)

David Simpson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the total cost was of overnight accommodation for Ministers of State in her Department on foreign visits in each of the last three years. [69023]

Vera Baird: Since 1999 the Government have published an annual list of all visits overseas undertaken by Cabinet Ministers costing £500 or more during each financial year, this information includes accommodation costs. Copies are available in the Library.

I am unable to provide the requested information for Minister of State without incurring disproportionate costs.

David Simpson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs (1) on how many occasions Ministers of State in her Department stayed overnight in (a) five-star, (b) four-star and (c) three-star hotels on foreign visits in each of the last three years; [69024]

(2) on how many occasions (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers in her Department have stayed overnight in (i) five-star, (ii) four-star and (iii) three-star hotels in each of the last three years. [69025]

Vera Baird: Since 1999 the Government have published an annual list of all visits overseas undertaken by Cabinet Ministers costing £500 or more during each financial year, this information includes accommodation costs. Copies are available in the Library.

I am unable to provide the requested information for Minister of State, special advisors or civil servants without incurring disproportionate costs.

Postal Voting Fraud

Mr. Evans: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many incidents of postal vote fraud were recorded in the Limehouse ward of Tower Hamlets on 4 May. [70530]

Bridget Prentice: The Government are aware that a number of allegations have been made concerning the conduct of the May 2006 local elections in the Limehouse ward of Tower Hamlets.

The Government are also aware that these allegations are the subject of an ongoing police investigation, and that any comment on these particular allegations cannot be made until the investigation has reached a conclusion.

Staff Surveys

David Simpson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many staff surveys have been conducted in her Department in each of the last three years. [70515]

Vera Baird: My Department has an established policy of surveying staff satisfaction. Such surveys are by questionnaire, which are sent to all staff on an annual basis. However, 2004-05 was a transitional year leading up to the DCA's merger with the 42 magistrates courts committees in April 2005 and no survey took place that year.

In the last three years, two surveys have been conducted: one in 2003-04 one in 2005-06.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many abortions were performed on pregnancies of 18 weeks or more gestation in England and Wales in the last year for which figures are available; what the (a) age of mother, (b) residency of mother, (c) grounds for abortion, (d) marital status of mother, (e) number of previous children and (f) number of previous abortions were in each case; and how many and what percentage of those abortions were performed in the (i) public and (ii) private sector. [70882]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is shown in the table.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research her Department has (a) undertaken and (b) assessed on (i) the earliest point in its development an unborn child will experience pain, (ii) the earliest gestational age at which an unborn child may be capable of being born alive, (iii) the number of occasions when an unborn baby is wrongly diagnosed as being handicapped and is subsequently born without disability or handicap and (iv) the suicide rate among women who have had an abortion; and if she will make a statement. [70409]

Caroline Flint: The Department has not undertaken research on the following issues. However:

The Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologist's (RCOG) report 'Fetal Awareness, Report of a Working Party (1997)' concluded that before 26 weeks gestation the nervous system has not developed sufficiently to allow the fetus to experience pain.

Guidance from the British Association of Perinatal Medicine introduces the concept of a threshold of viability as being from 22 to 26 weeks gestation. At low gestation age, even if the fetus is born alive, there are high risks of death due to immaturity. Indeed, while the possibility of survival of extremely pre-term babies has improved, data suggest that, even with modern intensive care, chances of survival at 22 weeks gestation are only approximately 1 per cent.

There are currently variations in antenatal screening practice across England. The Government's aim is to move towards a more integrated policy to give women more informed choice in this area.

Research shows that newer tests will lead to more accurate screening results. The aim of the research has been to identify the most effective and safe method of antenatal screening.

In the confidential inquiry into maternal and child health's 2004 triennial report 'Why Mother's Die 2000-2002', none of the maternal suicides are attributed to abortion.

The RCOG's evidence-based guideline 'The Care of Women Requesting Induced Abortion (2004)' recommends that referral for further counselling should be available for the small minority of women who experience long-term post-abortion distress.

Anti-depressants

Dr. Naysmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many prescription items of (a) benzodiazepines and (b) each other anti-depressant were dispensed in England in 2005. [71954]

Andy Burnham: In 2005 the number of prescription items dispensed in the community in England were 29.4 million for antidepressants and 11.3 million for benzodiazepines. More detailed information is obtainable from www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/prescostanalysis2005.

Bedford Hospital NHS Trust

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people employed in Bedford Hospital NHS trust have been on (a) short-term and (b) temporary contracts in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [71707]

Andy Burnham: Information is not available in the format requested. However, the information in the following table shows the number of locum staff working in Bedfordshire hospitals national health service trust for the period that data is available covering the 2002 to 2005.

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government are taking to improve patient care at the Riverbank children's ward at Bedford hospital NHS trust; and if she will make a statement. [71709]

Andy Burnham: Improvements to the children's ward at Bedford hospital trust are in line with the Department's National Service Framework (NSF) for Children, Young People and Maternity Services which includes a standard on hospital care. This states that examples of good practice already exist but we expect all hospitals providing services to children to consider how to follow the best practices available. It is for NHS trusts to decide in the light of local priorities how to implement the hospital standard of the NSF. There are a number of good practice examples already on the Department of Health's emerging practice database, which is online at www.childrensnsfcasestudies.dh.gov.uk/children/nsfcasestudies.nsf. The NSF can be viewed at www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/06/72/51/04067251.pdf

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many full-time equivalent staff have been employed in children's wards at Bedford hospital NHS trust in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [71710]

Andy Burnham: Information is not available in the format requested. However, the information in the following table gives the numbers of medical and dental staff with a paediatric specialty working in Bedford hospital national health service trust by grade and year.

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment has been made of the impact on patient care of the staff reductions proposed by Bedford Hospital NHS Trust; what representations she has received about this; and if she will make a statement. [71713]

Andy Burnham: The Department has made no assessment of the proposed job cuts at Bedfordshire Hospital National Health Service Trust. The trust has said that any reduction in posts will be achieved through natural wastage and should any staff be displaced every effort will be made to redeploy them elsewhere in the trust. Every effort will be made to ensure that any reduction in staffing levels does not impact on patient care.

Choose and Book System

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 10 March 2006, Official Report, column 1812W, on the Choose and Book System, how many bookings were made through the Choose and Book system in each month between July 2004 and July 2005, broken down by geographical area; and how many bookings were made through the (a) directly and (b) indirectly bookable service in each month since July 2005, broken down by geographical area. [63117]

Caroline Flint: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Connecting for Health

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the status is of the Connecting for Health IT project. [69866]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 16 May 2006, Official Report, columns 939-40W.

Dentistry

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) new general dental services contracts and (b) new personal dental services agreements which have been offered to dentists have been (i) signed and (ii) rejected in (A) each primary care trust and (B) England; and what percentage of the previous NHS dentistry service level is now offered in (1) each primary care trust and (2) England. [64934]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 24 April 2006]: Data on provisional management estimates on the number of signed and rejected contracts which also set out the estimated level of national health service services associated with accepted contracts compared with that of rejected contracts, based on weighted courses of treatment or units of dental activity have been placed in the Library.

A contract may be for either a practice or an individual dentist.

Primary care trusts are using the funding associated with rejected contracts to commission additional services from other dentists.

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the merits of permitting dentists trained in (a) the USA and (b) Canada to work in the NHS; and if she will make a statement. [69630]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The General Dental Council is responsible for the registration of dentists who wish to practise in the United Kingdom. There is a long tradition of dentists from overseas coming to work here to extend their training and experience and contribute to national health service dental care and we intend that this practice should continue.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) formal and (b) informal advice her Department received from the British Dental Association following the meeting on 14 February 2006 to discuss the new NHS dental contracts. [60388]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The British Dental Association (BDA) met departmental officials on 22 February to discuss in more detail some of the issues raised at the meeting on 14 February 2006. The BDA is now represented on the implementation group that has been set up to review the impact of the reforms and identify any issues that need to be addressed.

Ms Diana R. Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average remuneration per full-time equivalent NHS general dental practitioner was in the East Hull and West Hull Primary Care Trust area in each year since 1997. [64093]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Average remuneration per full-time equivalent national health service general dental practitioner in the Eastern Hull and West Hull Primary Care Trust area alone is not identifiable from data available centrally.

All estimated average annual net incomes, between 1997-98 and 2004-05, of general dental services (GDS) dentists with a reasonable commitment to the GDS are shown in the following table. These are calculated by first estimating average gross GDS income of a dentist with a reasonable NHS commitment and then applying estimates of the expenses to earnings ratio covering all dentists.

Estimated average GDS net income for dentists with a reasonable GDS commitment, 1997-98 to 2004-05, England and Wales.

Financial year	Estimated average net GDS income (£)
1997-98	51,200
1998-99	54,300
1999-2000	55,700
2000-01	59,200
2001-02	60,500
2002-03	63,300
2003-04	66,700
2004-05	70,000

The income figures cover both estimated fees for treatments and patient capitation as well as other estimated payments such as seniority payments and commitment payments and payments for maternity and sickness. Income from private sources is excluded from these estimates.

When account is taken of the lower expenses ratio for dentists with a higher NHS commitment, the estimated average net GDS income for 2004-05 in the table would be about £74,000. In 2005-06, after allowing for the 3.4 per cent. fee increase, the average would be about £76,500 for a dentist with a reasonable NHS commitment.

Separate information from tax returns provided to HM Revenue and Customs gives new income after expenses from all self-employed work, both NHS and private. For the 2003-04 tax year, average net income for non-associate dentists with very high NHS commitment was £78,600. This average will include some dentists working part-time. Non-associate dentists work either on their own or else in a partnership arrangement with other dentists.

NHS dentists benefit from a contributory pension scheme. Dentists working privately have to fully fund their own pension arrangements.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of (a) adults and (b) children are registered with an NHS dentist in each primary care trust in England; and how many were registered in each category in 1997. [67670]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 3 May 2006]: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Destroyed Documents (Blood Products)

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department has carried out an internal review into the destruction in the 1990s of documents held by her Department relating to national health service blood and plasma products infected with HIV and hepatitis C; and if she will make a statement. [65509]

Caroline Flint: During the HIV litigation many papers were recalled, and following that we understand papers were not adequately archived and were unfortunately destroyed in error.

Officials subsequently established during the hepatitis C litigation that documents relating to the advisory committee on the virological safety of blood between 1989 and 1992 had been destroyed in error. Following this discovery, an internal investigation was undertaken in April 2000 by the Department's internal audit.

Drug and Therapeutics Bulletin

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate she has made of the savings to the NHS consequent on changes to the procurement arrangements for the Drug and Therapeutics Bulletin; [71822]

(2) what the cost is per copy of the Drug and Therapeutics Bulletin; [71823]

(3) how many NHS employees on average she estimates read each edition of the Drug and Therapeutics Bulletin; [71826]

(4) what methods for disseminating information will replace the Drug and Therapeutics Bulletin. [71827]

Andy Burnham: The cost to the Department for the purchase and distribution of Drug and Therapeutics Bulletin in 2005-06 was £1.4 million.

Under the terms of the Department's contract with the Consumers' Association, the Drug and Therapeutics Bulletin was distributed free of charge to all 120,000 national health service doctors in England 12 times a year. The cost of the contract in 2005-06 was £1.4 million which equates to a cost of approximately £0.97 per copy.

The Department has no information about the number of NHS employees who read each edition of the Drug and Therapeutics Bulletin.

Doctors and other prescribers have access to a wide variety of information resources to support their prescribing. These include the British National Formularies, advice and training from the National Prescribing Centre, guidance from the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence, the National Electronic Library for Health, the various on-line databases and reference resources, such as Medline, and various academic and professional journals.

Electromagnetic Fields

Mark Tami: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research her Department has commissioned into the effect of electromagnetic fields on public health in the last five years. [71576]

Caroline Flint: The Department supports two broad programmes of research into the potential effects of electromagnetic fields (EMF) and health: one on radiofrequency fields (as emitted by mobile phones) and the other largely on extremely low frequency (ELF) fields (such as associated with power lines and domestic electrical supply).

The mobile telecommunications and health research (MTHR) programme has been running since 2001. It is funded jointly by Government and industry and is managed by an independent scientific committee. A description of the programme and a list of ongoing and completed studies are available on the MTHR's website at www.mthr.org.uk.

The Department's radiation protection research programme supports a number of studies investigating the possible health effects of other electromagnetic fields (largely ELF-EMF). These range from laboratory work investigating possible cellular effects to large population studies. Descriptions of these studies are available on the World Health Organisation (WHO) EMF research database at www.who.int/peh-emf/research/database/en/.

In addition, the Department, along with the Health and Safety Executive, has supported the WHO's international EMF project since it started in 1997. Information about the EMF project is available on its web site at www.who.int/peh-mf/project/en/.

In the United Kingdom, the Health Protection Agency's radiation protection division (HPA-RPD) keeps the world-wide research findings on EMF and health continually under review. In 2004, the HPA-RPD, previously the National Radiological Protection Board, published a comprehensive review of scientific evidence in support of its current advice on limiting EMF exposure which is available on HPA's website at: www.hpa.org.uk/radiation/publications/documents_of_nrpb/abstracts/absd15-3.htm.

Emergency Contraception

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many morning-after pills have been distributed by the Greater Peterborough Primary Care Partnership in each of the last five years. [69047]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information available is shown in the tables. Information on emergency hormonal contraception (EHC) supplied under a patient group direction (PGD) is not held centrally.

Family planning clinic services for the Peterborough area are provided by North Peterborough primary care trust (PCT). The total number of occasions on which clinics run by this PCT prescribed post-coital contraceptives is published annually but the published figures include some instances where an intrauterine device was fitted.

EHC via family planning clinics is collected by financial year:

Food Businesses (EU Accreditation)

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many food businesses in England have (a) been accredited with ISO 22000 in line with EU regulation 852/2004 and (b) failed to meet ISO 22000 standard. [72068]

Caroline Flint: ISO 22000 accreditation is not required by Regulation (EC) No. 852/2004 on the hygiene of foodstuffs. The legal requirement is for a permanent procedure or procedures based on the hazard analysis and critical control point principles.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her assessment is of the British food industry's ability to comply with EU regulation 852/2004. [72158]

Caroline Flint: New hygiene legislation, including Regulation (EC) No. 852/2004, applied from 1 January 2006. It modernises, simplifies and consolidates the requirements previously contained in 17 European Union food hygiene directives. The United Kingdom negotiated for flexible legislation that enables businesses to apply effective, proportionate risk-based controls to protect consumer health. The Food Standards Agency has provided guidance and support to industry and food enforcement bodies to ensure that industry's ability to meet the requirements is maintained.

Funding (Northamptonshire)

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the capital expenditure on the (a) breast screening unit, (b) chest pain clinic, (c) intensive treatment unit, (d) stroke unit, (e) secure mental health unit, (f) integrated surgery unit and (g) orthopaedic theatres in Northamptonshire has been since 1997; [70815]

(2) what the capital expenditure on health services in Northamptonshire was in each year between 1990 and 2005; [70819]

Andy Burnham: Information on capital expenditure by individual national health service organisations is not held centrally. The table shows total capital expenditure across the Leicestershire, Northamptonshire and Rutland Strategic Health Authority (SHA) area.

Total capital expenditure by organisations within the Leicestershire, Northamptonshire and Rutland Strategic Health Authority area

1997-98	28,478
1998-99	23,047

2001-02	73,403
2002-03	95,078
2003-04	72,771
2004-05	73,065

Notes:
1. Revenue expenditure by strategic health authority area is taken as the total expenditure of the strategic health authority, predecessor health authorities and primary care trusts within the strategic health authority area. Capital expenditure includes NHS trusts within the area.
2. Capital expenditure is the expenditure on the purchased additions of fixed assets.
3. Levels of capital expenditure vary from year to year depending on local investment decisions.
4. Expenditure on general dental services and pharmaceutical services accounted for by the Dental Practice Board and Prescription Pricing Authority, respectively, are excluded. This expenditure cannot be included within the figures for the individual health bodies as they are not included in commissioner accounts.

Health Care Products

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she will publish the responses to her Department's consultation on arrangements for the provision of dressings, incontinence appliances, stoma appliances, chemical re-agents and other appliances to primary and secondary care; and if she will make a statement. [72843]

Andy Burnham: A summary of responses to the consultation has been published. It can be found on the Department's website at: www.dh.gov.uk/Consultations/ResponsesToConsultations/fs/en.

This summary also sets out next steps.

Health Services (Essex)

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many full-time equivalent nursing posts there are at Essex Rivers Healthcare Trust; how many are filled by agency staff; how many such posts were filled by agency staff on average in each of the past five years; and if she will make a statement. [68889]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of hospital and community health services qualified nurses employed at Essex Rivers Healthcare Trust for the last five years for which data is available is:

	Number
2001	1,014
2002	1,117
2003	1,009
2004	1,092
2005	1,100

The Department does not collect data in relation to the numbers of agency staff directly employed in the NHS. However, the Department does collect details of expenditure information on non-NHS staff.

The table shows the total nursing, midwifery and health visiting spend on agency staff for Essex Rivers Healthcare Trust for the previous five years.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many consultants per capita there were in Essex in each year since 1997; what the national average was in each year; and if she will make a statement. [68892]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The table shows the number of medical and dental consultants by organisation within Essex strategic health authority area per head of population and the average for England for each year since 1997 to 2005, which is the latest data available.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the per capita funding for (a) Colchester and (b) Tendring Primary Care Trust was in each year since 1997; what the national average was in each year; and if she will make a statement. [68894]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Revenue allocations were first made to primary care trusts in 2003-04. Prior to this, funding was allocated to health authorities (HAs).

Funding per head of population in each year since 1997-98 for Colchester PCT, Tendring PCT, the former North Essex HA and the national average is shown in the following table.

Funding per head of population

	Colchester PCT	Tendring PCT	North Essex HA	England average

2006-07	1,079	1,455	—	1,274
2007-08	1,178	1,610	—	1,388

Notes:
It is not possible to compare allocations rounds for the following reasons:
1. organisational changes and changes made to the weighted capitation formula for each allocations round, mean that comparisons between allocations rounds would not be on a like with like basis;
2. services for which PCTs are responsible for funding change over time. For example, 2006-07 is the first year that primary medical services were incorporated into revenue allocations.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the financial outturn for the Essex Rivers Healthcare Trust has been in each of the last 10 years; and if she will make a statement. [68895]

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time for (a) in-patient and (b) out-patient treatment at Essex Rivers Healthcare Trust was in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [68896]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The following table shows mean and median times waited in days based on elective finished admission episodes, waiting list and booked cases, at Essex Rivers Healthcare NHS Trust for each year since 1997-98 to 2004-05 which is the latest data available. However, data on outpatient treatment times is not held centrally.

Waiting time in days

	Mean	Median
1997-98	138	74
1998-99	155	73
1999-2000	153	75
2000-01	137	69
2001-02	135	79
2002-03	134	81
2003-04	131	85
2004-05	103	75

Notes:
Finished admission episodes
A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
Time Waited (days)
Time waited statistics from hospital episode statistics (HES) are not the same as the published waiting list statistics. HES provides counts and time waited for all patients admitted to hospital within a given period whereas the published waiting list statistics count those waiting for treatment on a specific date and how long they have been on the waiting list. Also, HES calculates the time waited as the difference between the admission and decision to admit dates. Unlike published waiting list statistics, this is not adjusted for self-deferrals or periods of medical/social suspension.
Ungrossed Data
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data that is the data is ungrossed.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the star rating that the Essex Rivers Healthcare Trust received for the number of cancelled operations was due to (a) clinical and (b) administrative causes; how many cancelled operations there were in (a) 2005-06 and (b) each of the previous 10 years; and if she will make a statement. [68900]

Andy Burnham: Essex Rivers Healthcare National Health Service Trust was given the lowest band of performance by the Healthcare Commission for the cancelled operations performance indicator in the 2004-05 star ratings. The Trust cancelled 2.97 per cent. of operations at the last minute for non-clinical reasons. Trusts that cancelled fewer than 0.5 per cent. of operations were given a score of five (good), trusts that cancelled fewer than 1.5 per cent. of operations were given a score of three and all other trusts were given a score of one (poor) by the Commission.

Requested information on cancelled operations is shown in the table.

Cancelled operations for non-clinical reasons—Essex Rivers Healthcare NHS Trust (RDE)

	Number of last minute cancellations for non-clinical reasons in the quarter
2001-02	444
2002-03	741
2003-04	815
2004-05	800

Notes:
Data were collected by Health Authority only prior to 2001-02. Trust level data were collected from 2001-02 onwards. Data for 2005-06 are not yet available.

A last minute cancellation is one that occurs on the day the patient was due to arrive, after they have arrived in hospital or on the day of their operation. For example, you are to be admitted to hospital on a Monday for an operation scheduled for the following day (Tuesday). If the hospital cancels your operation for non-clinical reasons on the Monday then this would count as a last minute cancellation. This includes patients who have not actually arrived in hospital and have been telephoned at home prior to their arrival.
An operation which is rescheduled to a time within 24 hours of the original scheduled operation should be recorded as a postponement and not as a cancellation. The quarterly monitoring of cancelled operations collection does not record the number of postponements.
Some common non-clinical reasons for cancellations by the hospital include: ward beds unavailable; surgeon unavailable; emergency case needing theatre; theatre list over-ran; equipment failure; admin error; anaesthetist unavailable; theatre staff unavailable; and critical care bed unavailable.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many incidences of abuse of staff by patients were reported in Essex Rivers Healthcare Trust in 2005-06; what the average number for trusts was in that year; and if she will make a statement. [68905]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Data relating to the average number of incidences of abuse by trust are not held centrally. Information on incidences of abuse on staff by patients relating to Essex River Healthcare can be obtained by writing to the Chief Executive of that trust.

Hospitals (Lancashire)

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people resident in West Lancashire were treated at (a) the Royal Liverpool Broadgreen NHS Trust, (b) Aintree Hospitals NHS Trust, (c) the Cardiothoracic centre, (d) Alder Hey Children's hospital, (e) Liverpool Women's hospital, (f) Walton Neuro centre and (g) Mersey Care in each of the last five years broken down by treatment received. [66845]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Insulin

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the preliminary guidance of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence not to recommend the use of insulin inhalers. [72066]

Andy Burnham: The preliminary recommendation issued by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE), on the use of insulin inhalers, that inhaled insulin should not be recommended for the treatment of type one or type two diabetes mellitus, except in the context of clinical studies, is not final guidance to the national health service, but a draft for consultation.

The consultation period concluded on 10 May 2006. Concerns raised by the responses to the consultation will be considered by NICE at its appraisal committee on 25 May. NICE expects to issue final guidance to the NHS later in the year.

Intensive Care

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many intensive treatment unit beds there were in Northampton General Hospital in (a) 1996 and (b) 2005. [70814]

Andy Burnham: The average daily number of available intensive care beds at Northampton General Hospital for the years specified is shown in the table. Data are not yet available for 2005-06.

Maternity Care

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of maternity care within the West Hertfordshire NHS Trust; and if she will make a statement. [70993]

Andy Burnham: The Department has made no assessment of maternity care within West Hertfordshire National Health Service Trust. However, there is a maternity services review currently being undertaken by West Hertfordshire Hospital Trust. The review is expected to conclude and report in late June of this year.

The review group is made up of health professionals, community representatives, that is local authorities, NHS managers, voluntary groups (including Dacorum Hospital action group) and the National Childbirth Trust (NCT). As part of its work, the review team has commissioned the NCT to conduct a postal survey involving every one of the 5,000 women who gave birth in West Hertfordshire last year. Every woman who gave birth last year has been sent a survey form and some have been asked to take part in more intensive focus groups.

The review's overall remit is to consider and make recommendations on future provision of safe and cost-effective maternity services which meet current national best practice.

Midwives

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many vacant midwife posts there are in (a) the Sussex Downs and Weald and (b) the Eastbourne Downs Primary Care Trust area; and what plans her Department has to recruit midwives in these areas. [71992]

Caroline Flint: A range of work force supply strategies have been developed to support the recruitment and retention of more healthcare professionals across England, including midwives. These include:

promoting careers in the national health service through NHS Careers and national, and local, recruitment campaigns; attracting back former staff to the service; and improving retention by becoming a better, more flexible and diverse employer.

The information on midwife vacancies is not available in the format requested. The information in the table gives midwife numbers and vacancies by NHS trust in the Surrey and Sussex Strategic Health Authority (SHA) region.

Notes:
Three month vacancy:
1. Three month vacancy information is as at 31 March 2005.
2. Three month vacancies are vacancies which trusts are actively trying to fill, which had lasted for three months or more (whole-time equivalents).
3. Three month vacancy rates are three month vacancies expressed as a percentage of three month vacancies plus staff in post.
4. Three month vacancy rates are calculated using staff in post from the non-medical work force census September 2004.
5. Percentages are rounded to one decimal place.
Staff in post
Staff in post data are from the non-medical work force census September 2004.

MMR Vaccination

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the percentage uptake of the MMR vaccination was in (a) the North East, (b) the Tees Valley and (c) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in each year since 1997. [67184]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Immunisation data by primary care trust, strategic health authority and nationally are published annually in the statistical bulletin, 'NHS Immunisation Statistics, England', which is available on the Department's website at: www.dh.gov.uk/PublicationsAndStatistics/Statistics/StatisticalWorkAreas/fs/en Data are not available by local authority or by electoral ward.

Alison Seabeck: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research her Department has undertaken on the effectiveness of the dosage of the MMR vaccine in preventing mumps. [71903]

Caroline Flint: A single dose of a mumps-containing vaccine used in the United Kingdom confers between 61 per cent. and 91 per cent. protection against mumps. Although there is limited information on the effectiveness of a second dose of mumps vaccine, a two dose schedule of measles mumps and rubella vaccine should protect most people who do not respond to the first dose[1].

NHS (Future Demand)

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate she has made of the level of demand for NHS provision in (a) 2007, (b) 2010 and (c) 2020. [62068]

(2) what planning assumptions are made in relation to the demand for health service provision. [62429]

Andy Burnham: Estimates of demand for national health service provision in 2007 are being made by strategic health authorities (SHAs) in line with "National Standards, Local Action: Health and Social Care Standards and Planning Framework 2005/06-2007/08" published by the Department in July 2004. This included the new national targets set out in the public service agreement arising out of the 2004 spending review.

The Department's role is to agree with SHAs their local delivery plans in the form of data trajectories to achieve national targets. These then form the basis of a business agreement with the SHA against which they are performance managed and held to account for the performance of the NHS within their area.

SHA plans are aggregated from local primary care trust (PCT) plans and must, as a minimum, meet national target levels and, where appropriate, SHA shares of targets, to be signed off by the Department. Changes may occur during the three year planning period in the light of fresh information and new factors.

Assessment of demand for 2010 will form part of the 2007 spending review process. The assumptions made in relation to the demand for health service provision in the longer term, including for 2020 are set out in the Wanless Report: "Securing Our Future Health: Taking a Long-Term View" and are subject to further consideration in the light of new developments and information.

NHS Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the expenditure of strategic health authorities (SHA) in the last year for which figures are available was, broken down by major cost area (a) in total and (b) for each SHA. [66000]

Andy Burnham: Strategic health authority (SHA) expenditure for 2004-05, the latest year available, is shown in the table. The majority of expenditure by SHAs relates to training and education and there will be variation in expenditure because SHAs fund training on behalf of other health bodies.

Audited summarisation forms of the strategic health authorities 2004-05

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what formula her Department uses to determine the payment made to each primary care trust under payment by results. [66534]

Andy Burnham: Revenue allocations are made to primary care trusts (PCTs) on the basis of the relative needs of their populations. A weighted capitation formula calculates target shares of available resources for each PCT based on the age distribution, additional need and unavoidable geographical variations in the cost of providing services. The 2006-07 allocations have been adjusted to reflect non-recurrently the transitional arrangements for PCTs to support the implementation of payment by results.

NHS Hospital Trusts

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Answer of 19 April 2006, Official Report, column 743W, on NHS Hospital Trusts, if she will set out the figures for fixed costs identifying those that arise in relation to private finance initiative projects. [65944]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 12 July 2005, Official Report, columns 988-89W. The table which has been placed in the Library gives the annual payments by each trust to its private sector partner on private finance initiative schemes which have reached financial close. This table has now been updated to reflect the Barts and London Hospital and the Hull and East Yorkshire private finance initiative schemes reaching financial close since then.

NHS IT Programme

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what models of IT provision were considered for the NHS IT programme. [63945]

Caroline Flint: Five commercial and organisational models were considered for delivering a national information technology programme for the national health service before the national programme was launched in its current form. Briefly, these models were to:

Outsource the whole programme, including local implementation arrangements;

Selectively outsource major components, whilst delivering some components at a national level via the NHS Information Authority;

Deliver all major components at a national level, primarily via the NHS Information Authority;

Decentralise the management of NHS information technology to strategic health authorities; and Continue local implementation - the status quo option.

All the options were considered and scored against a range of key criteria.

The options, and the option appraisal process, are described in greater detail in 'Delivering 21st century IT support for the NHS: national strategic programme', published in June 2002, which is available on the Department's website at www.dh.gov.uk.

Nursing (Thames Valley)

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many student places there are for (a) nursing and (b) community nursing at universities in the Thames Valley strategic health authority area. [72260]

Caroline Flint: Analysis of standard registration population data provided by the Higher Education Statistical Agency (HESA) for 2004-05 shows that there were 2,909 students on pre-registration nurse training courses at Thames Valley University and 790 at Oxford Brookes University. Thames Valley strategic health authority may not have commissioned all of these training places.

No information is currently available from the HESA data on students enrolled on community nursing courses.

Obesity

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her most recent estimate is of how many children in Torbay constituency are obese. [72183]

Caroline Flint: The data are not available in the exact format requested. The main source of data on the prevalence of obesity is the Health Survey for England (HSE). The sample size of the HSE does not allow figures to be produced to the level of Torbay constituency. We do however hold data by Government Office Region (GOR). Torbay falls under the South West GOR. The latest figures for the obesity prevalence of children in South West GOR are taken from 'The Health Survey for England 2002'.

For children aged two to fifteen in 2001-02 (2001 and 2002 combined), 4.5 per cent. of boys are classified as being obese in the South West. The figure for girls aged two to fifteen is 5.9 per cent.

Orthodontic Services

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many orthodontists were practising in (a) England, (b) West Yorkshire and (c) Huddersfield in each of the last 10 years. [70307]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of orthodontists in England is not available centrally as orthodontists are not separately identified within general dental services contracts or personal dental services agreements.

Paediatric Specialists

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many paediatric specialists are employed in each strategic health authority area. [67643]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The following table shows the paediatric specialists working in the national health service in each current strategic health authority (SHA) area.

Physiotherapy

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many physiotherapists were employed within the Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire Strategic Health Authority area in the last year for which figures are available; and how many physiotherapy training places were available in that year. [71192]

Caroline Flint: Information on number of physiotherapists employed within Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire Strategic Health Authority (SHA) area is shown in the table. 2,391 national health service physiotherapy training places were commissioned in 2004-05.

Primary Care Trusts

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department is taking to ensure that Guildford and Waverley Primary Care Trust meets the Government's commitment that (a) 80 per cent. of people with diabetes receive comprehensive retinopathy screening and (b) 70 per cent. of people with diabetes have received comprehensive retinopathy screening by June 2006. [71864]

Caroline Flint: The Department has a range of work in hand to support the national health service in delivering this target. The Department actively performance manages the strategic health authorities (SHAs) to ensure they have arrangements in place to ensure delivery. All primary care trusts (PCTs) are monitored on their progress towards achieving the target. The target is included within the local delivery agreements between SHA and PCTs which are reviewed quarterly through a data return.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the effect will be on consultations on major service changes being undertaken by existing primary care trusts if they are not completed before those primary care trusts are dissolved. [72752]

Andy Burnham: Where matters such as consultations have not been completed by the time the existing primary care trusts are dissolved, each successor primary care trust will have to decide whether, and if so how, to continue with them.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what powers primary care trusts have to direct the commissioning choices of general practitioners under practice-based commissioning. [72753]

Caroline Flint: Practice-based commissioning gives additional freedoms to general practitioner practices to commission innovative services.

Under practice-based commissioning, primary care trusts (PCTs) remain accountable for all funds allocated to them. Therefore, PCTs retain the power to ensure that all services commissioned meet all relevant quality standards and accreditation, as well as national and local priorities.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether new primary care trusts established on 1 October 2006 will be bound by decisions taken by existing primary care trusts that have not been implemented by that date. [72755]

Andy Burnham: Where any decisions have not been implemented by the time the existing primary care trusts (PCTs) are dissolved, each successor PCT will have to consider whether, and if so how, to continue with them.

Referral Management Schemes

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many primary care trusts operate referral management schemes; what representations she has received from (a) hon. Members, (b) NHS organisations and (c) other interested parties on the operation of such schemes; what the content of these representations was; and when they were received; [60396]

(2) pursuant to the oral answer of 7 March 2006, Official Report, column 71, on Clinical Advisory Liaison Services, to the hon. Member for Banbury (Tony Baldry), if she will place in the Library a copy of the letter sent by her Department's Director of Access to primary care trust chief executives in July 2005. [60414]

Andy Burnham: A copy of the letter has been placed in the Library. It is also available on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/PublicationsAndStatistics/Bulletins/ChiefExecutiveBulletin/BulletinCE/fs/en?CONTENT_ID=4115298&chk=9VoVmr

Information on the number of primary care trusts operating referral management schemes is not collected centrally.

Conducting a comprehensive trawl for all representations received by the Department for references to referral management schemes would incur disproportionate cost. However, a brief search has identified representations from:

Type of representation?parliamentary questions

(a) hon. Members

From	Date received	Content of representation
Tony Baldry MP	7 March 2006	The advice given primary care trusts about the use of clinical advisory liaison services Use of Referral

Restrictive Interventions

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if her Department will develop a framework for restrictive physical interventions in line with the Welsh Assembly Government's document Framework for Restrictive Interventions Policy and Practice. [70986]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department commissioned the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) to produce guidelines on the "Short-term management of disturbed (violent) behaviour in in-patient psychiatric settings" in as early as 2002. The guidelines were published in February 2005 and are available on NICE'S website at www.nice.org.uk/.

The National Institute for Mental Health in England (NIMHE) published guidance in 2004 entitled "Developing positive practice to support the safe and therapeutic management of aggression and violence in mental health inpatient settings" which is available on NIMHE's website at www.nimhe.org.uk.

NIMHE and National Patient Safety Agency project on the prevention and management of violence will publish guidance and a checklist in 2006 to ensure that all restraint procedures meet rigorous standards. The project team is also developing proposals for the accreditation and regulation of physical intervention trainers.

Sandwell and West Birmingham Acute Trust

Mr. Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the salary costs of the chief executive of Sandwell and West Birmingham Acute Trust have been in each year since 2001. [66504]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is shown in the table.

Annual salary of chief executive of Sandwell and West Birmingham Hospitals NHS Trust

	Salary band
2005-06	£135,000-£140,000
2004-05	£130,000-£135,000
2003-04	£125,000-£130,000
2002-03	£100,000-£105,000

Note:
Sandwell and West Birmingham Hospitals NHS Trust was created in 2002-03.

The figures show the full annual salary. In 2002-03, the chief executive was paid a lower salary since he was carrying out some work for the West Midlands regional health authority. The chief executive was appointed in July 2002, and was accordingly paid a proportion of the salary shown in 2002-03.

School Nurses

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many school nurses are employed in each primary care trust by (a) headcount and (b) whole-time equivalent. [69396]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The September 2005 census showed that there were 2,887 (1,913 full-time equivalent (fte)) qualified nurses working in the school nursing service, an increase of 478 (19.8 per cent.) since 2004.

Of these 943 (665 fte) have a post registration school nursing qualification, an increase of 87 (10 per cent.) since 2004.

Data on the total headcount and full-time equivalent number of qualified nurses in the school nursing area of work by primary care trust is available in the Library.

TB

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the incidence of tuberculosis in the United Kingdom in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [67433]

Caroline Flint: Tuberculosis (TB) rates per 100,000 population for England, Wales and Northern Ireland from 1999-2004 are shown in the table.

	TB cases
1999	10.8
2000	11.8
2001	12.4
2002	12.7
2003	12.5
2004	13.1

Notes:
1. The Scottish Executive's system for enhanced tuberculosis surveillance differs in some respects and is not entirely comparable with England, Wales and Northern Ireland data.
2. HPA ETS data is only available from 1999 onwards.

Sources:
Health Protection Agency (HPA) enhanced tuberculosis surveillance (ETS) scheme. Office for National Statistics mid-year population estimates. Data as at 10 May 2005

The Department is working with key partners and stakeholders to deliver the objectives of the chief medical officer's action plan for stopping tuberculosis in England (October 2004).

The plan includes a commitment to have a high quality surveillance system which aims to provide the information required at local, national and international levels to prevent and control TB. Following consultation with various stakeholders, the HPA intends to create a new web-based system for TB surveillance within the next financial year. The new surveillance system will enable the provision of information on TB cases at local, regional and national level that is timely, relevant, complete and accurate. It will facilitate monitoring of disease trends and treatment outcomes and will help with commissioning services for TB.

Type 2 Diabetes

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children have been diagnosed with type 2 diabetes in each of the last 10 years. [69355]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The data requested is not held centrally. However, data on the number of type 2 diabetes-related hospital treatment for children under the age of 18 are shown in the table.

All diagnoses count of finished consultant episodes (FCE) for selected diagnoses national health service hospitals England, 1995-96 to 2004-05

2003-04	459
2004-05	447

Notes:
Finished Consultant Episode (FCE)
An FCE is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Please note that the figures do not represent the number of patients, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the year.
Diagnosis (Primary Diagnosis)
The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 14 (seven prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) data set and provides the main reason why the patient was in hospital.
Secondary Diagnoses
As well as the primary diagnosis, there are up to 13 (six prior to 2002-03) secondary diagnosis fields in Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) that show other diagnoses relevant to the episode of care.
Definition of Selected Diagnoses (ICD-10 Codes)
Type 2 diabetes defined as:
E11 (non-insulin-dependent diabetes mellitus) or O241 (pre-existing diabetes mellitus, non-insulin-dependent) recorded in primary diagnosis or in any of the secondary diagnoses fields.
Ungrossed Data
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).

Waiting Lists/Times

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were waiting for more than six months for an NHS inpatient operation at the end of each month from November 2005 to April 2006, broken down by hospital trust. [70898]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 15 May 2006]: The information requested, apart from the data for April 2006, which are not yet available, has been placed in the Library.

Figures at provider level include patients resident in Wales waiting for treatment in England, where local health groups have instructed the hospital to apply Welsh waiting time standards. The numbers of patients resident in Wales are not separately identifiable from the provider level data. Consequently, the provider level figures sum to a higher total than the primary care trust/strategic health authority level figures, which do not include patients resident in Wales.

Any breaches of the waiting time standards are unacceptable and the Department will continue to work closely to support the small number of national health service organisations where patients are waiting over six months.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Answer of 28 March 2006, Official Report, column 967W, on NHS finance, what level of increased activity in 2006-07 will be necessary for the delivery of the 18-week waiting time target by 2008. [69606]

Andy Burnham: To meet the 18-week patient pathway target for the end of December 2008 a series of milestones have been established. The milestones for March 2007 are maximum waits of 11 weeks for first out-patient appointments following general practitioner (GP) written referral, 13 weeks for diagnostics tests and procedures, and 20 weeks for elective in-patient treatment.

Last spring, the national health service submitted activity plans for 2006-07. These were for 8.2 million first out-patient attendances following GP referral (all specialties), 12.0 million total consultant-led first out-patient attendances (general and acute specialties), and 5.9 million elective hospital admissions (general and acute specialties). Activity plans for 2006-07 are currently being updated and resubmitted by the NHS.

Walk-in Health Care

John Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) minor injuries departments, (b) accident and emergency departments and (c) walk-in centres were operational in England in each of the last five years. [65431]

Ms Rosie Winterton: National health service trusts self-report the number of accident and emergency (A&E) departments that they provide against definitions that the Department has set for each type of A&E. Separate information is also collected specifically on the number of walk-in centres in England. The information available is shown in the table.

	Number of type one (major) A&E departments[1,2,4]	Number of type three A&E departments (minor injury and illness services including minor injury units)[1,2,4]	Number of walk-in centres[3,4]
2001-02	196	149	42
2002-03	209	214	42
2003-04	208	225	44
2004-05	207	238	64
2005-06	204	252	69

Notes:
1. QMAE data used for type one and type three A&E departments for years 2002-03 to 2005-06.
2. KH03 data used for type one and type three A&E departments for year 2001-02.
3. Walk-in centre figures were not collected in QMAE prior to 2003-04, therefore figures from the walk-in centre monthly service report have been used for 2001-02 and 2002-03.
4. As at end March of relevant year except 2005-06 where position is at end December.

Work Force Statistics

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will break down the Health and Social Care Information Centre NHS workforce statistics for (a) 1995 and (b) 2005 by Government office region. [69658]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 9 May 2006]: The national health service workforce statistics for 1995 and 2005 by Government office region have been placed in the Library.

Asbestos-related Cancer

9. Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of the death rate attributable to asbestos-related cancer in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [72228]

Paul Goggins: The number of asbestos-related cancers cannot be assessed directly, since asbestos-related lung cancers are clinically indistinguishable from other lung cancers. However figures are available on the cancer mesothelioma, which is almost always caused by asbestos exposure.

In 2004, the last year for which validated figures are available, 51 deaths were registered in Northern Ireland where the underlying cause was recorded as mesothelioma. This represents a death rate of 3.0 per 100,000 population.

Education Provision

10. Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to improve education provision and support for looked-after children and vulnerable adults in Northern Ireland. [72229]

Maria Eagle: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave earlier.

Power-sharing Initiatives

11. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the likely effectiveness of continuing to pay salaries and expenses as an inducement to encourage members of the Northern Ireland Assembly to rejoin power-sharing initiatives. [72230]

Mr. Hanson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier.

Provisional IRA

12. Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps the Government are taking to encourage the Provisional IRA to disband. [72231]

Mr. Hanson: The Independent Monitoring Commission 10th report published on 26 April, states that "PIRA has taken a strategic decision to follow a political path" and that it does not in its view "present a terrorist threat". This is consistent with the chief constable's assessment.

Decommissioning

13. Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the decommissioning of arms and explosives held by paramilitaries. [72232]

Paul Goggins: The IICD has stated that it will submit a full report on armaments when its mandate is complete.

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many and what types of weapons were decommissioned by the Provisional IRA in the recent act of decommissioning. [71318]

Paul Goggins: On 26 September 2005 the Independent International Commission on Decommissioning

"determined that the IRA had met its commitment to put all its arms beyond use in a manner called for by the legislation."

The Government expect a full report on armaments to be published when the IICD have fully concluded their work.

Antisocial Behaviour Strategy

14. Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what co-operation there is between local authorities, the Police Service of Northern Ireland and housing authorities in respect of implementing an antisocial behaviour strategy in Northern Ireland. [72233]

Mr. Hanson: Tackling antisocial behaviour is part of the broader community safety strategy for Northern Ireland. The Police Service of Northern Ireland, local councils and the Northern Ireland Housing Executive work together on all 26 Community Safety Partnerships to deal with the community safety matters, including antisocial behaviour, which have been identified as priorities in their local community safety strategies and action plans.

Arts Council

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been allocated to the Arts Council of Northern Ireland in each year since 1997; and how much this represents per head of population in Northern Ireland. [71049]

Maria Eagle: Funds allocated to the Arts Council from DCAL since the Department came into existence in 1999 are shown in the tables below. Figures for earlier years are not readily available.

Government grants to the Arts Council of Northern Ireland since 1999

1999-2000	7,249,090
2000-01	6,956,000

Classroom Assistants

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when the evaluation of classroom assistants' jobs in Northern Ireland commenced; and if he will make a statement on the evaluation. [71366]

Maria Eagle: Classroom assistants are part of the Education and Library Boards' overall Job Evaluation exercise that commenced in 1995. Since that time, Boards have been conducting a range of job evaluations for some 25,000 staff in total. It was acknowledged at the start that this would be a complex exercise that would take a considerable amount of time. It was therefore agreed that the effective date of any re-grading would be 1 January 1995 so that no member of staff would be disadvantaged by having to wait for the evaluation of their post.

Classroom assistants are the last major group of staff (some 7,000) for which Job Evaluation agreement remains outstanding and I am told that negotiations between the Education and Library Boards and the trade union side on the job evaluation process for classroom assistants are at an advanced stage. A total of £25.7 million has already been made available to cover costs resulting from the evaluation exercise. My Department has made clear to the Boards, as employers, the importance of reaching a speedy settlement that is affordable within those sizeable resources already provided and awaits further details from them as to how this objective will be delivered.

Credit Card Fraud

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the change in credit card fraud in Northern Ireland since the introduction of the Chip and PIN technology. [69185]

Paul Goggins: Chip and PIN has had a phased introduction into Northern Ireland, with some outlets offering the facility prior to 14 February. After that date, the use of PIN became mandatory with some exceptions, including cases where cardholders had not received upgraded cards or where outlets had not yet introduced the appropriate technology. It is therefore early to make a sound estimate of the impact of Chip and PIN.

The PSNI have provided the figures which are an estimate of criminal benefit obtained as a result of credit card fraud, from 2002 to date in the table. These figures are based on incidents reported to the PSNI for investigation; however it is accepted that the true figure could be significantly higher, as many incidents are reported directly to financial institutions that in turn may not make a report to police.

	Investigation files	Criminal Benefit
2002	626	1,279,286
2003	597	330,774
2004	551	281,512
2005	646	449,100
2006 to date	321	159,763

There are many types of 'plastic card fraud' and while early indications suggest that chip and PIN has made an impact on 'Card Present Fraud' where a PIN is required, there could be a migration to other forms of card fraud such as CNP (Card Not Present). An example of CNP fraud is internet, mail order type transactions where a PIN is not required.

In 2005, 'Plastic losses' (including ATM fraud such as skimming, account/identity takeover, fraudulent application fraud and compromised card use) amounted to approximately £532,000; the level of cheque crime for 2005 was estimated to be £4,128,000.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many staff in (a) each Northern Ireland Department and (b) the Northern Ireland Office, have had (i) five or more, (ii) four, (iii) three and (iv) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in each of the last three years. [73083]

Mr. Hanson: The following tables set out the number of staff who have (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick absence of less than give days in each of the past three years.

Diversiton Multi-faith Calendar

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was donated to the diversiton multi-faith calendar 2006 by the (a) Northern Ireland Office and (b) Police Service of Northern Ireland. [65351]

Mr. Hain: As sponsors of the 2006 multi-faith calendar (a) Northern Ireland Office purchased 500 calendars at a cost of £2,375 and (b) the Police Service of Northern Ireland purchased 250 calendars at a cost of £1,500. The calendars were widely distributed throughout each organisation as part of ongoing work to improve understanding of diversity.

Eid-ul-Adha Reception

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the total travelling and subsistence costs were associated with the attendance by civil servants from the Northern Ireland Office and Northern Ireland departments at the recent Eid-ul-Adha reception in London hosted by the Civil Service Islamic Society. [65350]

Mr. Hain: The total travelling and subsistence costs for three Northern Ireland Office officials to attend the Reception were £338.

IRA Army Council

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland who he has identified as the members of the Army Council of the Provisional IRA. [71319]

Paul Goggins: The hon. Gentleman will be aware that it is the long-standing policy of the Government not to comment on matters of intelligence or individual cases.

National Stadium

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what work has been carried out by each of the responsible Northern Ireland Departments in respect of preparing an estimate of the costs of building a new national stadium. [71117]

Mr. Hanson: An economic appraisal has been carried out by independent consultants on behalf of the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure (DCAL) and the Strategic Investment Board (SIB) on the costs of building a multi-sports stadium in Northern Ireland and was completed in September 2005. This estimated the costs of building a new 42,000 seater stadium to be c.£88 million in April 2005 prices.

Raymond McCord

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects to receive the Police Ombudsman for Northern Ireland's report on her investigation into the 1997 murder of Raymond McCord Jr. [72714]

Paul Goggins: The Police Ombudsman has advised that at report of the investigation into matters related to the murder of Raymond McCord Jr. is nearing completion. The Police Ombudsman's investigation is as a result of a complaint from Raymond McCord Sr. about the handling of the police investigation of his son's murder, not about the murder itself.

South Eastern Music Centre

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much funding was made available by the Department for Education to the South Eastern Music Centre in each of the past five years for which figures are available; and what plans he has to increase funding. [72511]

Maria Eagle: The music service is funded from within the South Eastern Education and Library Board's (SEELB) Curriculum Advisory and Support Service (CASS) budget. It is therefore a matter for the SEELB to decide how to distribute their overall funding across the services that they provide.

The budget allocated to the music service by the SEELB in each of the last five years was as follows:

	Amount (£)
2001-02	942,000
2002-03	856,000
2003-04	800,000
2004-05	790,000
2005-06	600,000

Special Advisers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been paid in (a) salary, (b) travelling expenses, (c) subsistence allowance and (d) removal expenses to special advisers in the Northern Ireland Office in each of the last five years. [69228]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is as follows.

(a) Since 2003, the Government have published on an annual basis the names and overall cost of special advisers and the number in each pay band. For information relating to the last financial year I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement made by my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister, on 21 July 2005, Official Report, columns 158-61WS.

Information on special advisers for this financial year is currently being collected and will be published in the normal way when it is ready.

(b) in 2005-06 travel costs for special advisers totalled £42,536.18.

(c) in 2005-06 subsistence costs for special advisers totalled £1,641.23.

(d) in 2005-06 there was no expenditure on removal expenses.

All official travel by special advisers is undertaken in accordance with the requirements of the Ministerial Code and the Civil Service Management Code.

Information on prior years could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

University of Ulster

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many non-EU students have been enrolled at each University of Ulster campus in each of the last three years. [73203]

Maria Eagle: The information requested is as follows.

Non-EU domiciled enrolments at the University of Ulster by campus 2002-03 to 2004-05

Unpaid Fines (Imprisonment)

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people spent time in prison for unpaid (a) fines and (b) other forms of fixed penalty in Northern Ireland during 2005. [70912]

Paul Goggins: In 2005, there were 1,814 prison receptions for fine default in Northern Ireland. The number of individuals received into prison for fine default was 1,599. The majority served only one period in custody for fine default; 175 individuals served multiple periods in custody (one up to seven periods).

Of the 1,599 individuals received into prison for fine default, 16 related to failure to pay fixed penalties; each served one period in custody.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Alternative Education

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what policy he has for alternative education for the socially excluded; and if he will make a statement. [72840]

Jim Knight: Every person of compulsory school age has a right to education. For those who cannot be educated in mainstream schools for whatever reason, local authorities have a duty to make arrangements for these children to receive suitable alternative education. Where alternative education is provided, local authorities must ensure the appropriateness of the education taking account of the learners' age, ability, and aptitude and to any other educational needs they may have.

Accommodation

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discounts are available in relation to hotel accommodation used by (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers in his Department. [69037]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department uses a formal contract with a hotel booking agent to book rooms required for overnight stays on official business. On average the Department receives 8 per cent. discount on room bookings and is charged a management fee by the Agent for the administration of the contract.

PE Teachers

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many sports and physical education teachers have been employed in schools in England in each year since 1997. [73234]

Jim Knight: Information on subject teaching is collected in periodic staffing surveys. Estimates from the two most recent surveys show that number of full-time teachers in maintained secondary schools teaching physical education, to year groups 7 to 13, was 20,000 in 1996 and 21,400 in 2002.

School Sports

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much his Department has spent on school sports facilities in each year since 1994. [73235]

Jim Knight: Central records on capital expenditure are held from 1996-97. Information on capital expenditure on school sports facilities is not held centrally, as decisions on how resources should be invested in schools, including sports facilities, are taken by each local authority and its schools in accordance with their priorities and locally prepared asset management plans.

The following table sets out the total capital resources allocated to local authorities and schools since 1996-97.

1996-97	0.5
1997-98	0.6
1998-99	1.3
1999-2000	1.6
2000-01	2.5
2001-02	2.5
2002-03	3.3
2003-04	4.2
2004-05	4.9
2005-06	5.5
2006-07	5.8

Capital allocations to local authorities and schools are higher than ever before, and are planned to rise to £6.3 billion in 2007-08.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Asian Tsunami

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate he has made of the total amount of (a) relief and (b) development overseas aid Sri Lanka has received since the tsunami in December 2004. [71635]

Mr. Thomas: The total cost of tsunami rehabilitation and recovery in Sri Lanka has been estimated at £1.3 billion. Support in excess of £1.7 billion has been pledged, plus a further £800 million from non-governmental organisations. The Government of Sri Lanka's Development Assistance Database records most major recovery programmes and shows that to date approximately £650 million has been disbursed on 686 projects and programmes. There will also be a range of programmes, particularly in the NGO sector, which are not recorded on the database. Within these figures, DFID has committed £19.8 million for tsunami relief of which some £18.6 million has been disbursed. In addition we have pledged some £41 million for debt relief, of which approximately £4 million has been spent.

At present, the database does not record non-tsunami expenditure and there is no consolidated and up to date record of all donor flows. The latest figures available are for 2003, during which Sri Lanka received approximately £395 million in Official Development Assistance. The UK contributed £7.2 million of this amount.

Burma

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he (a) is taking and (b) plans to take to assist the internally displaced Karen, Karenni and Shan people in eastern Burma. [71177]

Mr. Thomas: DFID provides direct support to the internally displaced Karen, Karenni and Shan people in eastern Burma through the International Committee of the Red Cross, to which we provide £500,000 a year, of which approximately 75 per cent. is attributable to work with displaced people in this area. These funds are able to reach internally displaced people in areas where fighting is actually occurring.

In addition, our health, education and rural livelihood projects provide assistance in eastern Burma, and support internally displaced people who have resettled there, as well as other vulnerable people. For example, in Karen State, our fund for HIV/AIDS in Myanmar enables World Vision to deliver projects in two townships, Save the Children UK in four townships and Care in five townships, as well as funding other national NGOs. DFID-funded projects supporting the development of rural livelihoods, and pre-primary education are both about to start in Karen State.

In response to the growing numbers of internally displaced people in eastern Burma, we are providing finance which enables the provision of emergency support through local community groups. We will continue to monitor the situation closely and assess whether we need to supplement those funds.

Consultants

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will list the companies which were paid consultancy fees by his Department in 2005-06; how much each was paid; and what each of the companies was used to accomplish. [69691]

Hilary Benn: I have arranged for copies of the document entitled 'Paid Consultant Fees: 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006' which gives details of the companies and the fees paid to them by the Department for International Development (DFID), to be placed in the Libraries of the House. The terms of reference are specific to each contract and are generally part of a larger project which has been agreed by overseas partners. The contract titles on the report reflect the type of activity carried out. The report does not include low value contracts issued by DFID's overseas offices, of which there are no consolidated central records. It would require disproportionate cost to produce a list of these contracts.

Democratic Republic of Congo

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the work his Department is undertaking in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. [72811]

Hilary Benn: DFID has a rapidly increasing programme of development assistance in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC). In 2001-02 the UK had a £7 million programme of humanitarian aid. In 2005-06, the UK spent approximately £57 million on a package of emergency humanitarian aid and longer term development activity. We have £63 million available this financial year. Since October 2005, DFID has had a fully devolved office of 33 staff in the DRC (11 UK based and 22 staff appointed in country). The UK is committed to supporting poverty reduction and sustainable development in the DRC in the long-term.

Our current programme in the DRC is divided into four themes that reflect the transition context in the country—the first democratic elections for 40 years are due to be held this summer. As the DRC moves out of transition, the nature of our engagement will evolve accordingly. Where possible, we work in a collaborative or harmonised way with other partners and, as far as we can, in support of the Government's processes and systems.

We are in the process of developing a full Country Assistance Plan for the DRC—which will be completed over the course of 2006, after discussion with the new Government. We will do this as much as possible in conjunction with other donors.

Our current transition programme follows the following themes:

Security and the Rule of Law

Support for the disarmament, demobilisation and reintegration of ex-combatants through the Multi-Country Demobilisation and Re-integration Programme (MDRP), support to army integration, reform of the police and justice sector, and local level peace building and dialogue initiatives through non-governmental organisations (NGOs).

Functioning State

This includes support for the transition institutions (such as the Parliament, Electoral Commission and High Media Authority), the establishment of a professional and impartial media sector, and preparation for elections. The UK is the largest bilateral donor to the electoral process in the DRC.

Reconstruction

Support for infrastructure within the Government's reconstruction plan, especially transport links; the development of a poverty reduction strategy (PRSP); support to the social sectors (health, education and water) largely through NGOs; and the fight against HIV/AIDS through UNAIDS and NGOs.

Natural Resources and Enhanced Revenue Generation

We have funded research by Global Witness into the current state of natural resources management in the DRC. We are supporting the implementation of the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative (EITI) in the DRC and developing our plans for further support for effective and transparent natural resource extraction and the re-establishment of border control systems.

Humanitarian

Around half of our programme is spent on humanitarian interventions either through UN agencies or NGOs, to address the complex and chronic humanitarian emergency that has faced the people of the DRC since the war. Our funding is principally channelled to the UN's Action Plan for the DRC through its pooled donor funding mechanism.

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans he has to visit the Democratic Republic of the Congo. [72812]

Hilary Benn: I hope to visit the Democratic Republic of the Congo in the autumn; once the elections have finished and the new government is installed.

Departmental Credit Cards

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what facility is available for senior civil servants in his Department to use credit cards supplied by the Department. [70508]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development (DFID) operates a Mastercard system supplied by the NatWest bank, under an arrangement set up by the Welsh Procurement Initiative. The card is used for low-value, high-volume purchases by senior civil servants as required. It has both individual and overall spending limits, and usage is closely monitored to ensure compliance with Government accounting rules.

Genetic Resources

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what assistance his Department has provided to enable countries to consider different forms of sui generis systems for plant varieties; and what studies his Department has carried out to assess the impact of Trade-Related Intellectual Property Rights on the availability of seeds for farmers and researchers in developing countries; [72659]

(2) what studies his Department has carried out to assess the effectiveness of different forms of sui generis systems for plant varieties for allowing continuing access by farmers and researchers to seeds; [72660]

(3) what assistance his Department has provided to developing countries to develop a definition of 'micro-organisms' to enable free access to genetic resources consistent with Trade-Related Intellectual Property Rights; and what studies his Department has carried out to assist the development of such a definition; [72661]

(4) what measures his Department has taken to support developing countries to restrict the application of patents to plant and animal genetic resources in ways which are consistent with Trade-Related Property Intellectual Rights; [72662]

(5) what assistance his Department has provided for the purpose of ensuring that patent protection legislation in developing countries includes specific exemptions for plant breeding and research and the harvested seed intended for re-sowing by the producing farmer; and what studies his Department has carried out to assist the development of such legislation; [72663]

(6) what his Department's policy is on preserving the rights of countries not to grant patents for plants and animals, includes genes and genetically modified plants and animals, in order to protect varieties for research and breeding, to provide for the rights of farmers to save and plant-back seed and to allow informal sale and exchange of seeds. [72664]

Mr. Thomas: The UK Government believe that the question of patenting of plants and animals should be carefully considered by developing countries. The UK Government also strongly believe that the flexibilities contained in the Trade Related aspects of Intellectual Property Rights agreement, Article 27.3(b), are important and should be used. The TRIPs agreement indeed allows the World Trade Organisation members to exclude plant varieties from patentability. However, the WTO members are required to provide for plant varieties protection either by patents or by an effective sui generis system or by any combination thereof. The TRIPS agreement also makes clear that WTO members have to provide patents for inventions involving microbiological and non-biological processes, which would include genetic modification technology.

The UK Government agree that sui generis systems for protecting plant varieties may be a more suitable option for many developing countries.

There are a certain number of issues to consider when restricting the application of patenting in agricultural biotechnology. The interpretation of the TRIPS provisions is one of them, as there is no agreed international legal definition of "micro-organism". We believe that it is legitimate for the WTO member states to make a reasonable definition of "micro-organism" for themselves. The UK Government are also of the view that developing countries could consider in sui generis systems the use of exceptions to exclusive rights for research and plant breeding purpose, as well as to enable farmers to save and plant back seed, including the possibility of informal exchange and sale.

The UK Government are supporting the rapid implementation of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) International Treaty on Plant Genetic Resources for Food and Agriculture which came into force in 2004. The ITPGRFA has the objective to facilitate access to genetic resources, and recognises the contribution of farmers in conserving, improving and making these resources available. It also covers the question of farmer's rights. DFID supported the International Plant Genetic Research Institute in advising the FAO on development of the ITPGRFA.

DFID has funded analytical work that takes these issues into consideration. DFID provided support to the Secretariat of the independent UK Commission on Intellectual Property Rights, which reported in September 2002 and provided a breakthrough analysis of the implications of intellectual property protection for development. DFID has since provided funding for a UNCTAD—International Centre for Trade and Sustainable Development joint project on intellectual property in Geneva, as well as work carried out by the Quaker United Nations Office in Geneva. These projects have produced highly valued analytical papers, technical dialogues and research cooperation projects with regional institutions, covering agricultural and plant variety patent protection.

DFID has not provided any direct technical assistance or capacity building support to developing countries to help them define restrictions to the application of patenting in agricultural biotechnology in a manner consistent with the TRIPS Agreement. DFID's development assistance is recipient driven, and countries are defining their own development priorities. Should interested developing countries formulate future requests for assistance in these issues, DFID will consider how to answer such needs. Specialised international and national intellectual property agencies or offices are technically better placed to provide such assistance and the UK Patent Office has provided training and assistance to developing countries and less developed countries when requested.

State Failures

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the extent of state failure in (a) Sudan, (b) Democratic Republic of the Congo, (c) Cote d'Ivoire, (d) Zimbabwe, (e) Chad, (f) Somalia, (g) Haiti, (h) Pakistan, (i) Guinea and (j) Liberia; and what steps are being taken by his Department to reduce the incidence of state failure. [69966]

Hilary Benn: There is no international agreement on what constitutes state fragility: the World Bank's Country Policy and Institutional Assessments (CPIA) can be used to measure fragility. The CPIA measures countries performance and divides low-income countries into five categories. There is one "unranked" group of countries not scored in any given year. The lowest two categories plus the unranked group are used by DFID and other donors as a list of fragile countries. Of the countries listed, all except Pakistan fall into this proxy list.

Poverty is widespread and particularly severe in fragile states. Aid that has been given has often been volatile, fragmented and poorly co-ordinated. The Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) cannot be achieved without more progress in fragile states.

Following the publication of our policy paper 'Why we need to work more effectively in fragile states' in January last year, DFID has made a commitment to increase engagement in fragile states. We have, with our partners, been developing more appropriate ways of working together to improve the way the international system organises itself to respond and deliver aid. DFID has led work in the OECD's Development Assistance Committee including on agreeing 'Principles for good international engagement in fragile states'. These were endorsed in 2005 and are currently being piloted in nine countries. DFID is leading three of the nine pilots.

Copies of the 2005 policy paper are available in the Library of the House.

Our engagement in the fragile states listed is as follows:

Sudan

The UK share of EC and multilateral assistance was £9 million in 2004. Total DFID Bilateral Aid in 2004-05 was £84 million (of which £77.7 million was humanitarian assistance). The Comprehensive Peace Agreement to the North- South conflict and the recently signed 'Darfur Peace Agreement' offer the people of Sudan genuine opportunities for political representation and security. DFID will spend £109.8 million in 2006-07 helping to meet the humanitarian, developmental and conflict resolution needs in Sudan, split roughly humanitarian: £67 million and development/conflict resolution: £42 million. Furthermore, we are working closely with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office to support the Abuja peace process and the African Union peacekeepers in Darfur.

Democratic Republic of Congo

The UK share of EC and multilateral assistance was £31.3 million in 2004. In the last five years, DFID bilateral assistance to the DRC has risen rapidly, from £5.6 million in 2001-2 to £29.2 million (of which £22.2 million was humanitarian assistance) in 2004-05. A fully devolved DFID programme was established in the country in late 2005. Expenditure of £132 million is planned over the next two years. The increase in DFID's assistance reflects the UK's determination to support the people and the Government of the DRC to complete successfully the transition process, including the elections, and find a sustainable path to peace, prosperity and poverty reduction.

Cote d'Ivoire

DFID has no bilateral development programme with Cote d'Ivoire, but since the start of hostilities in 2002 we have provided £900,000 in humanitarian assistance including displaced people and refugees of many nationalities. We are working closely with the international community to help bring about a swift and peaceful resolution. Our share of EC and multilateral assistance totalled about £13.2 million in 2004.

Zimbabwe

Since the crisis in Zimbabwe began in 2000 until 2004-05 (most recently published figures), DFID Zimbabwe has provided £117.1 million to support poor people in Zimbabwe through our bilateral programme. Our share of EC and multilateral assistance was £5.6 million in 2004. DFID has focused on humanitarian assistance, tackling HIV and AIDS and providing support to orphans and vulnerable children. DFID channels resources through the UN agencies and civil society: none of our funding goes through the Government of Zimbabwe. We work closely with other donors and international organisations in identifying and responding to the immediate needs of Zimbabwe's poorest people.

Chad

There is no bilateral development programme, but humanitarian assistance was £2 million in 2004-05. Our share of EC and multilateral assistance totalled £7.6 million in 2004. DFID continually monitors the humanitarian situation and undertakes periodic assessments in the east of the country. Humanitarian funding totalling £4.million is planned this year.

Somalia

The UK share of EC and multilateral assistance was £4.2 million in 2004. DFID's programme has increased from £1.7 million in 2001-02 to £5.3 million in 2004-05 (of which £3.5 million was spent on humanitarian activities) and is set to reach £21 million in the financial year 2007-08. The majority of last year's spend was focused on emergency humanitarian activities due to the drought in early 2006. We work with a range of Somali partners, UN system and NGOS. The overall goal of the programme is a peaceful, politically stable, and economically viable Somalia.

Haiti.

DFID assists Haiti through multilateral contributions to the amount of £15.3 million over the period 1999-2004 through the UK imputed share to the European Commission, United Nations, World Bank and others. We made bilateral contributions to humanitarian needs in 2004-05 of £1.9 million. We are hoping to put a DFID placement in the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) in Port au Prince to assist in donor harmonisation/aid effectiveness and humanitarian assessments.

Guinea

DFID has no bilateral development programme with Guinea, but our share of EC and multilateral assistance totalled £6.4 million in 2004. DFID undertakes regular assessments of humanitarian need and has provided assistance totalling £2.3 million over the period 2000-01 to 2004-05. Last year's programme (figures not yet available) included assisting people affected by conflict, and supporting an emergency immunisation programme. We are also planning support for conflict prevention activities to help minimise the risks of political transition.

Liberia

DFID is working closely with the new government of Liberia to strengthen its capacity, particularly in anti-corruption and civil service reform. DFID has provided over £17.4 million of bilateral aid from 2002-03 – 2004-05 (including £12.5 million humanitarian assistance), and is also supporting the resettlement of refugees and reintegration of ex-combatants (£3 million this year). The UK share of EC and multilateral support was £3.5 million in 2004.

DFID also has a significant engagement in:

Pakistan

Which we would not class as a fragile state, where we spent £31.4 million in 2004-05. UK share of EC and multilateral assistance was £18.9 million in 2004. Last year DFID's bilateral expenditure increased considerably and £236 million expenditure is planned over the next three years. In addition to all this, last year's earthquake relief is being followed up with £70 million towards reconstruction over the next 3 to 5 years. DFID works closely with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in country to alleviate the causes of state fragility.

Traditional Knowledge

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what research his Department has carried out to assess what systems are best for protecting traditional knowledge; [71453]

(2) what steps he has taken to ensure that the holders of traditional knowledge from developing countries are protected when patent applications are made; [71454]

(3) what studies his Department has carried out to assess the effectiveness of the Food and Agriculture Organisation Treaty on Plant Genetic Resources, in countries where it has been ratified, in (a) protecting traditional knowledge, (b) ensuring the equitable sharing of benefits from utilisation of genetic resources, (c) securing the right to be consulted about the sustainable use and conservation of genetic resources and (d) protecting other rights of farmers; [71458]

(4) what fora (a) he and (b) his officials participate in to consider the protection of traditional knowledge. [71464]

Mr. Thomas: DFID recognises the importance of traditional knowledge to communities, and especially poor farmers, in developing countries and to ensure their rights to, and benefits from this knowledge are protected. DFID has taken a number of steps to help achieve this.

In relation to DFID funded research, all our contracts specify that the retention of intellectual property rights (IPR) should be freely available for non-commercial use by any organisation or individual. This ensures DFID research outputs cannot be captured in patents, and that traditional knowledge is protected.

DFID has directly commissioned work on traditional knowledge. This included a survey on IPR and sustainable human development in 2000. This review investigated the suitability of IPR regimes for protecting traditional knowledge and concluded that patents are generally unsuitable, but that other IPR regimes required further investigation.

In 2003, DFID produced a briefing on TRIPS (the Trade Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights Agreement) and development. This investigated how IPR regimes could take greater account of developing country interests, and raised the concern that TRIPS does not cover traditional knowledge. We are working with the World Intellectual Property Organisation (WIPO) on this. This issue was again recognised by the Commission for Africa which my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for International Development was a member. The Commission's Report stated that developed countries should increase technical support to Africa for the extension of IPR to indigenous innovation and knowledge.

We also support the Centres of the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research to conduct work on traditional knowledge and genetic resources. For example, the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI) is conducting ethnobotanical research to identify where and how genetic diversity in crops is found and valued. The International Plant Genetic Research Institute (IPGRI) has developed an Indigenous Knowledge Journal to help empower knowledge holders. Under this farmers document their knowledge on a topic on audio tape, or any media, in their own language which can then be listed in scientific journals.

At the national level DFID has supported a range of initiatives on traditional knowledge. For example, in Indonesia we are supporting local NGOs in partnership with the Government to explore opportunities for supporting traditional forest management systems where communities directly benefit from their traditional knowledge.

We supported the IPGRI in advising the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organisation (FAO) on development of the International Treaty on Plant Genetic Resources for Food and Agriculture. DFID has not yet carried out any studies to assess the effectiveness of the Treaty as it only recently came into force in June 2004.

Alongside the Treaty the Global Crop Diversity Trust was established and this will set up gene banks to preserve existing plant material. The issue of the diversity in animal genetic resources is under discussion including the possibility of a new Treaty. DFID is financing studies on this to help inform discussion in the FAO.

We have funded dialogues on traditional knowledge, for example through a joint project with the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) and the International Centre for Trade and Sustainable Development (ICTSD). This project contributed to enhancing developing countries' engagement in World Trade Organisation (WTO) and WIPO discussions.

DFID has supported the work of the 2002 Commission on Intellectual Property Rights (CIPR). The Commission reported that traditional knowledge was an important area where intellectual property protection needed to be developed. The UK Government broadly endorsed the analysis of the CIPR.

DFID officials participate in the intergovernmental discussions that take place under article 8j of the UN Convention on Biological Diversity. There is a Working Group on Article 8j, which DFID officials participate in, this has worked on (a) improving participation of indigenous communities in decision making processes (b) mechanisms for maintaining traditional knowledge relevant to the conservation and sustainable use (c) promoting the wider application of this traditional knowledge, subject to the consent of communities concerned and (d) encouraging the equitable sharing of benefits arising from the use of traditional knowledge.

Uganda

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department has allocated to aid for the Ugandan Government for the purposes of conducting public prosecutions, with particular reference to the trial of Dr. Kizza Besigye; and if he will make a statement. [73124]

Mr. McCartney: I have been asked to reply.

The UK has not allocated any aid to Uganda for the specific purpose of conducting public prosecutions. The trial of Dr. Kizza Besigye is funded from the Government of Uganda's budget for justice, law and order. A number of development partners, including the UK, provide budget support to Uganda. This form of aid is the best way to support the Government's programmes in education, health and in other areas essential to reduce poverty. A recent evaluation of budget support in Uganda concluded that budget support had led to a major increase in the Government's spending to reduce poverty and improved the efficiency of public expenditure and financial management systems.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

2012 Olympics

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what the estimated budget is for security at the London 2012 Olympics; [72526]

(2) what recent revision she has made of the £220 million figure for security costs at the London 2012 Olympics; and what the total security costs were at (a) the Sydney 2000 Olympics and (b) the Athens 2004 Olympics. [72324]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The overall responsibility for security for the Olympic and Paralympic Games rests with the Home Secretary. He has appointed a senior Metropolitan officer as the security director with day-to-day responsibility for all security related matters.

The security director is currently reviewing the requirement for providing a safe games for all concerned, and will report to Ministers shortly. We will, with the security director, keep the developing security situation under constant review until the Games are complete so as to be able to respond to changing threats and circumstances.

Security costs at the Sydney Olympic Games quoted in their post Games report totalled A$170 million (approximately £70 million at today's exchange rate). The approximate cost of security at Athens was €900 million.

However, as the international security situation continues to change we do not believe that valid cost comparisons can be made with previous games. The Metropolitan police and other agencies are nevertheless in contact with their counterparts in other countries to learn from their operational experiences.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent revision she has made of the estimate of 3 per cent. building cost inflation for the London 2012 Olympics; and how the estimated figure compares with market data. [72325]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 22 May 2006]: Cost work conducted in support of the Olympic bid suggested building cost inflation of 3.5 per cent. in the period 2003-06 and 6.5 per cent. from 2006 onwards.

Building costs are among those being looked at by the review of Olympic costs, which is ongoing. I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Manchester, Blackley (Graham Stringer) on 10 May 2006, Official Report, column 311W.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games announced that its budget had risen from £1.5 billion to £2 billion; what the reason is for the increase; and on what basis the extra £500 million has been calculated. [72329]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 22 May 2006]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by the Minister for Sport, my right hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield, Central (Mr. Caborn) on 12 May 2006, Official Report, column 634W.

There has been no increase in the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games (LOCOG) budget. LOCOG always anticipated that the budget would be around £2 billion. However, the International Olympic Committee asked bidding cities to submit budgets at 2004 prices, which is why the bid files show a budget of £1.5 billion.

On 24 January 2006, LOCOG published a press notice stating their budget at out-turn prices. In arriving at the figure of £2 billion, LOCOG has applied the relevant compound inflation rates to the appropriate elements of their budget

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent assessment she has made of whether the funding package of £2.375 billion for the London 2012 Olympic Games is sufficient to cover the capital costs. [72333]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 22 May 2006]: This is under consideration as a part of the Olympic cost review, which is ongoing. I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Manchester, Blackley (Graham Stringer) on 10 May 2006, Official Report, column 311W.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the most recent Government estimate is of the funding necessary for infrastructure improvements required for the London 2012 Olympics in addition to the £2.375 billion agreed funding package. [72339]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 22 May 2006]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to him on 2 February 2006, Official Report, column 640W.

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with organisations with a view to extending the benefits of the 2012 Olympic Games into the north-west of England and Greater Manchester. [72649]

Mr. Caborn: The Government are determined that the whole of the UK, including the north-west of England and Greater Manchester, can contribute to and benefit from the Games in 2012.

A Nations and Regions Group (NRG), has been established to provide leadership and strategic direction in ensuring that the whole of the UK is engaged with and benefits from the Games in 2012. Each nation and region, including the North West, is represented on the NRG and has been tasked with developing a delivery plan to ensure that it gains the maximum benefits from the Games.

The north-west has established its own Steering Group to drive forward this agenda. The group, chaired by the north-west Sports Board, includes representation from the Northwest Regional Development Agency, the North West Tourism Forum, Government Office North West, Culture North West, Liverpool Culture Company, Manchester city council and Preston city council.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she first informed Parliament that the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games had raised its budget from £1.5 billion to £2 billion. [72759]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 22 May 2006]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Minister for Sport on 12 May 2006, Official Report, column 634W.

The London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games (LOCOG) planned on the basis of a budget at outturn prices of 'around £2 billion'. However, because the International Olympic Committee asked bidding cities to submit budgets at 2004 prices, the bid files show a budget of £1.5 billion. The 'around 2 billion' figure was published by LOCOG on 24 January.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the Minister for Sport's letter of 17 May 2006 to the hon. Member for Faversham and Mid Kent, whether the different inflation rates referred to have also been applied to the £2.375 billion infrastructure budget. [72818]

Tessa Jowell: In the costings work prior to the bid different inflation rates were applied to different cost elements. These different rates of inflation reflect the rates appropriate to each element.

Betting and Gaming

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment the Government have made of the effects on the economy of the liberalisation of the betting and gaming industries. [73195]

Mr. Caborn: The Government commissioned economic studies to inform the policies that are incorporated in the Gambling Act 2005. The results of some of these studies are included in the Regulatory Impact Assessment which accompanied the Act assent and can be found in the Libraries of both Houses.

Departmental Bills (Amendments)

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the occasions when an amendment has been moved by (a) a Labour backbencher, (b) an Opposition backbencher and (c) an Opposition Front Bench spokesman to a Bill sponsored by her Department that has been accepted by her Department during the current Session; and if she will make a statement. [72123]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport has sponsored the following Bills during the current Session:

The London Olympic Games and Paralympic Games Bill

The National Lottery Bill

Information on amendments moved and accepted during the Committee and Report Stages on these Bills is published in the Official Report.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list responsibilities which her Department has lost since 1997; what the (a) date and (b) destination Department was in each case; what responsibilities the Department has taken on since 1997; and what the (i) date and (ii) source Department was in each case. [71135]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 15 May 2006]: Ministerial responsibilities are set out in the list of ministerial responsibilities, which is updated regularly. A revised version will be published shortly. Copies of previous versions are available in the Libraries of both Houses.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what incentives her Department offers to encourage staff to share vehicles when travelling to work. [73015]

Mr. Lammy: DCMS employs 500 staff in central London and offers parking spaces only to disabled staff, and to cyclists. The vast majority of staff travel to and from work using public transport. The Department is currently investing in improved facilities for cyclists so as to encourage more staff to cycle to work.

Gambling Commission

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what powers the Gambling Commission has to attach conditions to codes of practice about how gambling operators advertise or describe their products. [73438]

Mr. Caborn: Under the Gambling Act 2005 the Gambling Commission has the power to attach a licence condition making provision for how gambling facilities may be advertised or described.

The Advertising Standards Authority is working with the Gambling Commission to draw up new codes for non-broadcast gambling advertising, on which it will begin consulting shortly. The Secretary of State also has reserve powers under the Gambling Act to make regulations with regard to the form, content, timing and location of gambling advertising. She will not hesitate to use these powers if it becomes clear that self-regulation is not sufficient to protect children and vulnerable people from exploitation.

Under the Act Ofcom will continue to set, review and revise standards for broadcast advertising by gambling operators. In doing so Ofcom must consult with the Gambling Commission, and reflect any relevant regulations made by the Secretary of State.

Horse Racing Levy

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was received by the horse racing industry from the Statutory Levy payment by UK bookmakers in each of the last six years; and what the total VAT payment on the Levy payment was in each year. [73194]

Mr. Caborn: For the last six years the Horserace Betting Levy contributed the following amounts to the horse racing industry:

2005-06	[1] 91
2004-05	97.3
2003-04	102
2002-03	74.5
2001-02	67
2000-01	55.2

[1] estimated

To date the Levy has not been liable for VAT.

Lottery Funds

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much has been allocated from the National Lottery Distribution Fund to (a) the Heritage Lottery Fund, (b) UK Sports Lottery Distributors, (c) UK Arts Lottery Distributors and (d) the Community Fund in each financial year since 1994, not including investment income. [73236]

Mr. Caborn: The following table shows non-investment income to the Heritage Lottery Fund, the UK Sports Lottery Distributors, the UK Arts Lottery Distributors and the Community Fund.

£ million

Financial year	Heritage Lottery Fund	UK Sports Lottery Distributors	UK Arts Lottery Distributors	Community Fund
1994-95	57.8	57.8	57.8	57.8
1995-96	288.7	288.7	288.7	288.7
1996-97	291.5	291.5	291.5	291.5

2005-06	230.6	230.6	230.6	230.6

Private Members' Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list those private Members' Bills in respect of which her Department adopted a policy of neutrality in each session since 2001-02; and if she will make a statement. [72121]

Mr. Lammy: Unfortunately, the information requested is not collected by the Department and it could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Action Teams

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether (a) Pathways to Work, (b) employment zones and (c) resources from the Deprived Areas Fund will be available in areas served by action teams. [70470]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 16 May 2006]: Pathways to Work and Employment Zones are already operating in many areas where Action Teams operate. The Action Team programme is due to finish later this year.

The rationale for Action Teams as originally conceived—reaching out to those on benefit who would not otherwise have come into contact with our services—has now, to some extent, been superseded by the creation of Jobcentre Plus and the regime of compulsory work-focused interviews for almost all benefits recipients.

We recognise, however, that some form of continuing outreach activity will be necessary to encourage the most socially excluded—some of whom will not even be claiming benefits—to make use of the support into work we can offer.

The purpose of the Deprived Areas Fund is primarily to add value to current mainstream services offered by Jobcentre Plus and it is envisaged that this will build on the most effective elements of community based initiatives such as Action Teams, Working Neighbourhoods and Ethnic Minority Outreach. This will involve continued partnership working with local stakeholders.

Our recently published Green Paper, "A new deal for welfare: Empowering people to work" sets out proposals for piloting new initiatives to help local partners work together to improve economic regeneration through skills, employment and health.

Each local area will be asked to develop a consortium comprising local partners with a shared interest in working together to raise local employment rates and improve the local economy. This may include local authorities, employers, learning and skills councils, regional development agencies, primary care trusts and Jobcentre Plus. The key aim of this initiative will be to provide a solution that offers the maximum degree of local flexibility, so that local areas can provide local solutions to local problems.

Child Support Agency

Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many constituents in Midlothian have migrated from the old Child Support Agency system to the new system. [72704]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not currently available at the geographical level requested.

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in Denton and Reddish constituency have had their Child Support Agency cases migrated from the old to the new system. [73133]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not currently available at the geographical level requested.

Jim Sheridan: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many constituents in Paisley and Renfrewshire, North have migrated from the old Child Support Agency system to the new system. [73191]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not currently available at the geographical level requested.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many non-resident parents were non-compliant with the Child Support Agency in each of the last five years. [69527]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the right hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many non-resident parents were non-compliant with the Child Support Agency in each of the last five years.

There are two ways in which non-resident parents can be non-compliant. Information on these is available in the Child Support Agency's Quarterly Summary Statistics (QSS), published on 27th April 2006. A copy of this document is available in the House of Commons Library. Specifically:

Table 7.1 shows Case Compliance - the number of cases that have made a payment (either regular maintenance and/or arrears) via the collection service over the preceding quarter as a percentage of all open cases for which maintenance was charged.

Table 7.2 shows Maintenance Outcomes - the number of cases with a positive maintenance liability that have made a payment (either regular maintenance and/or arrears) via the collection service or have a Maintenance Direct arrangement in place over the preceding quarter.

Note that the Agency measures compliance on the basis of cases, rather than non-resident parents, the data therefore reflects this.

I hope you find this useful.

1. The above includes those old-scheme cases with a Full Maintenance Assessment, and those new-scheme cases with either a Full Maintenance Calculation, or a Default Maintenance Decision. Old-scheme cases with a punitive Interim Maintenance Assessment are excluded from this analysis in line with the Agency's case compliance target definition, as are new-scheme cases being processed clerically.
2. Cases are classed as compliant if they are currently open, and have been charged and paid money via the collection service (either regular maintenance and/or arrears) over the preceding quarter.
3. Volumes are rounded to the nearest thousand and percentages to nearest whole percent.
4. Robust data from the new IT system (CS2) covering the period March 2003-March 2004 is not currently available, and is under development. Data prior to November 1995 is not currently available.

Data Protection (Processing of Sensitive Personal Data)

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what training is given to (a) Jobcentre Plus and (b) other benefits staff on dealing with queries from hon. Members in relation to the Data Protection (Processing of Sensitive Personal Data) (Elected Representatives) Order 2002. [64438]

Mrs. McGuire: No specific training on this particular Order is provided to Jobcentre Plus or other DWP staff. However, all staff in the Department must use the Personal Information Policy Guide when dealing with requests for personal information relating to our customers or staff. This is the primary guidance within the Department dealing with personal customer information and when it may be passed to third parties. The Guide contains specific instructions for staff to follow when a request is received under The Data Protection (Processing of Sensitive Personal Data Elected Representatives) Order 2002: SI 2002 no. 2905.

Departmental Expenditure

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will list the 10 non-public sector entities that have received the largest total sum of payments from his Department in each of the last five years. [71818]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Department was formed in June 2001. The information for 2001-02 relates to the former Department of Social Security only. Information for 2005-06 will not be available until July 2006. This response covers disbursements (and the value of any other consideration) for goods and services provided under a contract.

Departmental Targets

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what targets his Department has set for the number of days taken to rate claims for (a) income support, (b) jobseeker's allowance and (c) incapacity benefit in Tamworth constituency; [71234]

(2) how many days it took to rate a claim for (a) income support, (b) jobseeker's allowance and (c) incapacity benefit in Tamworth constituency in the most recent period for which figures are available. [71235]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions asking what targets we have set to process claims for Income Support, Jobseeker's Allowance and Incapacity Benefit and how many days it took to process a claim, in the most recent period for which figures are available, in the Tamworth constituency. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The time taken to process benefit claims is measured within Jobcentre Plus as Average Actual Clearance Times (ACCT), which are included as a Jobcentre Plus Target for 2006/07.

The current AACT targets for Income Support, Jobseeker's Allowance and Incapacity Benefit, and the performance levels for Hanley Benefit Delivery Centre (BDC) where claims are now processed for most of Staffordshire, including Tamworth, are in the table below.

	Jobcentre Plus Target AACT 2006-07	AACT Hanley BDC April 2006
Income Support	11 days	11.4 days
Jobseeker's Allowance	12 days	14.6 days
Incapacity Benefit	18 days	11.7 days

The ACCT for all three benefits are showing a month on month improvement. A national initiative is currently underway to further improve AACT performance across all three benefits. To drive this, a weekly review of outstanding claims was instigated from 15 May 2006.

Equal Pay

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) women and (b) men are employed in the Department; what the average pay was for (i) women and (ii) men in the Department in (1) 1997 and (2) 2006; what women's average pay is as a percentage of men's average pay; and how many (A) women and (B) men the Department employed in each of the last five years, broken down by grade. [67791]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is as follows:

1. How many women and men are employed in the Department:

The Cabinet Office collects and publishes annually statistical information on the civil service by Department. This includes data on the employment of men and women.

2. Average pay for women and men in the Department in 1997 and 2006:

Table 1 shows the number of men and women by salary band at 31 October 2002, the first period available following the creation of DWP in 2001 and subsequent reorganisations as a result of its formation.

The salaries do not include any allowances or overtime, nor are they adjusted for liabilities such as national insurance, income tax or occupational pension contributions. The numbers are a headcount, that is, all staff are counted as one irrespective of their working pattern.

The 25 records where salary is below £10,000 (which is below the minimum of the lowest pay scale in DWP) relate to those staff on recurring periodic appointments who are paid manually. The records therefore show their salary as 0.

Financial Assistance Scheme

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average length of time has been between a pension scheme member applying for and receiving payments under the Financial Assistance Scheme. [70890]

James Purnell: Individual scheme members do not make applications to the Financial Assistance Scheme. Qualifying pension schemes are required to supply data on their members once liabilities to their members have been discharged: this could be some considerable time after they initially contacted the Financial Assistance Scheme Operational Unit (FAS OU). Trustees may request that initial payments are made to qualifying members before liabilities have been discharged.

FAS OU issues payments (including any arrears due) to qualifying members as quickly as possible once usable member data has been received and members have confirmed their personal details. Payments are made on the 21st of each month.

Housing Benefit

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was spent on housing benefit for tenants in (a) council property, (b) housing association property, (c) registered social landlord property and (d) private sector housing in Tamworth constituency in each of the last three years. [68358]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested. Expenditure figures are not available broken down by landlord type. The most recent available information is in the table.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many incapacity benefit claimants are expected to have access to pathways to work support by the end of 2006. [67956]

Mrs. McGuire: 900,000 incapacity benefits claimants are expected to have access to Pathways to Work support by the end of 2006, one third of all claimants. By 2008 we will have extended this successful approach further, offering access to all incapacity benefit claimants.

Kvaerner Pension Fund

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the decision of the Pensions Regulator relating to the future contributions of TH Global to the Kvaerner Pension Fund. [73212]

James Purnell: None. This is a matter for the Pensions Regulator.

Pensions Regulator

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what measures are in place to ensure transparency in the process used by the pensions regulator for taking decisions; and to whom the pensions regulator is accountable for his decisions. [73213]

James Purnell: Any information concerning decisions taken by the pensions regulator needs to respect both legislative prohibitions and the confidentiality of information exchanged between the parties and the regulator. The regulator has published a number of documents containing guidance as to its approach on its website.

The regulator is accountable to the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions and thus ultimately to Parliament.

Rehabilitation Services

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what recent discussions he has had with (a) the Treasury, (b) the Department of Health and (c) the Department for Trade and Industry on promoting the provision of rehabilitation services by employers; [64498]

(2) what is his Department's policy for promoting the provision of rehabilitation services by employers; and if he will make a statement; [64499]

Mrs. McGuire: The Government, through their Health, Work and Well-being Strategy, wish to work in partnership with employers, employees, health professionals and insurers to promote the development of comprehensive packages of support. Our aim is to encourage the development of healthy workplaces, to enable employers to retain and rehabilitate employees when they fall ill and to maximise the effectiveness of healthcare in restoring well-being.

To take this forward we have established a ground-breaking partnership with the Department of Health, and its Scottish and Welsh counterparts, and the Health and Safety Executive. This work is overseen by a Joint Ministerial Group which also includes the Department for Trade and Industry and the Treasury.

Under the Strategy we have, for example, started to pilot Workplace Health Connect which provides small and medium-sized employers in England and Wales with advice on occupational health and return to work issues via a national help line. The pilot also offers more personalised support across regions covering some 40 per cent. of the country's small and medium-sized enterprises.

Ministerial Visits (Accommodation)

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what the total cost was of overnight accommodation for Ministers of State in his Department on foreign visits in each of the last three years. [69099]

David Cairns: Since 1999, the Government have published an annual list of all visits overseas undertaken by Cabinet Ministers costing £500 or more during each financial year; this information includes accommodation costs. Copies are available in the Library. In the last three years, none of the Parliamentary Under-Secretaries of State have travelled abroad on official business.

Portland PR

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what meetings officials in his Department have had with representatives of the public relations company Portland PR; what contracts Portland PR has with his Department; and what the nature of the contract is in each case. [70049]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office does not maintain a central list of such meetings. Civil servants meet many people as part of the process of policy development and business delivery. All such meetings are conducted in accordance with the requirements of the civil service code and guidance for civil servants on contacts with lobbyists and people outside Government.

The Scotland Office has no contracts with Portland PR.

Promotion Boards

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what promotion boards have been held in his Department in each of the last five years. [70624]

David Cairns: Staff in the Scotland Office are on loan from the Scottish Executive or the Department for Constitutional Affairs and the Office normally advertises vacant positions in those Departments. Posts can be filled on level transfer or by promotion; checking which posts were filled by promotees over the last five years would involve revisiting the files held by the Scottish Executive and the Department for Constitutional Affairs over this period and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

DEFENCE

Air-to-Air Refuelling

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to maintain existing air-to-air refuelling capability following delays to the Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft programme. [71919]

Mr. Ingram: We expect the air-to-air refuelling capability provided by the current VC10 and TriStar fleets to meet our requirements until the introduction of the Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft.

Army Discharge Applications

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many serving soldiers have made an application for discharge; and what the grounds were for each application. [71508]

Mr. Watson: The following table shows the number of applications, from both regular army officers and other ranks, to leave the Army in each financial year since 1996. Details of the reasons for the applications to leave are not held centrally and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

	Applications to leave the Army from:
Financial year	Officers[1,2]	Other ranks[2]	Total number of applications to leave the Army
1996-97	490	7,760	8,250
1997-98	550	7,620	8,180
1998-99	520	7,820	8,330
1999-2000	550	7,360	7,910
2000-01	690	7,840	8,530
2001-02	530	7,280	7,810
2002-03	520	6,350	6,870
2002-04	600	6,650	7,250

Financial year	Applications to leave the Army from: Officers[1,2]	Other ranks[2]	Total number of applications to leave the Army
2004-05	710	7,380	8,090
Total[3]	5,150	66,070	71,220
2006[4]	730	7,090	7,820

[1] Officer numbers comprise applications and resultant exits for premature transfer to the reserve, premature voluntary retirement and voluntary relinquishment or resignation of commission.
[2] For certain groups of female personnel, data on exits on marriage or pregnancy grounds are available, but data on applications are not. In these cases, the number of applications in a period has been counted as the number of exits during that period. This affects:
(a) Army officers who exit on pregnancy;
(b) Army soldiers who exit on marriage or pregnancy.
[3] Total is the sum of complete financial years only. March 2006 shows VO applications and exits for 12 months up to 1 March 2006 and is not included within the total.
[4] March 2006.

Notes:
1. UK regular army includes nursing services and excludes full time reserve service personnel, Gurkhas, the home service battalions of the Royal Irish Regiment and mobilised reservists.
2. Data are for financial years.
3. The term premature voluntary release (PVR) has been changed to voluntary outflow (VO) although the methodology remains the same.
4. For this purpose, VO is defined as all applications and exits from trained personnel which are generated by the individual before their time expiry.
5. Females who leave on pregnancy grounds are included in both VO applications and exits wherever possible. It should be noted that since August 1990, female personnel who are pregnant are no longer required to leave the services, but have an option of either leaving or returning to work after maternity leave. All applications are counted according to the date received in MOD.
6. Due to the rounding methods used, totals may not always equal the sum of the parts. When rounding to the nearest 10, numbers ending in 5 have been rounded to the nearest multiple of 20 to prevent systematic bias.

Budgetary Statistics

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the letter of 30 March 2006 from the Minister of State, when he will provide the hon. Member for the Forest of Dean with the tables setting out the breakdown of main and supplementary outturn data by top level budget holder, request for resources, departmental expenditure limit near cash and non-cash, annual managed expenditure and non-budget for financial years 2001-02 to 2004-05. [73123]

Mr. Ingram: I have placed copies of the tables in the Library of the House today.

Camp Ashraf

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what protection is provided for members of the Mujahedin-e Khalq Organisation by (a) Coalition forces and (b) Iraqi Security forces at Camp Ashraf in Iraq; [63940]

(2) whether members of the Mujahedin-e Khalq Organisation at Camp Ashraf in Iraq are being held indefinitely by Coalition forces. [63941]

Des Browne: The Government of Iraq is responsible for the well-being of all individuals in Camp Ashraf. At the request of the Iraqi Government, the Multi-national Force-Iraq (MNF-I) provide perimeter security for the camp. Members of the Mujahedin-e Khalq are not detained by the Coalition forces at Camp Ashraf and may leave at any time. Those with the appropriate documentation are free to return to their country of origin.

Central Wales Tactical Training Area

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what geographical area makes up the Central Wales Tactical Training Area. [69486]

Mr. Watson: I will write to the hon. Member, and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Conscientious Objectors

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many applications to be discharged from the Army on the grounds of conscientious objection to military service have been submitted to his Department by (a) Army reserves and (b) long-term reserves for each of the last five years. [71507]

Mr. Watson: Seven applications have been received in the last five years from members of the Army reserves or long-term reserves to be discharged on the grounds of conscientious objection to military service.

Deepcut

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 10 May 2006, Official Report, columns 280-81W what evidence he has received that suggests that media coverage of Deepcut has been a factor affecting recruitment; and in which studies the evidence appears. [71141]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 15 May 2006]: As stated in my answer of 10 May 2006, Official Report, columns 280-81W, the Ministry of Defence has not undertaken any specific research or study into the impact of Deepcut on recruitment levels. Any such evidence we have received in respect of media coverage of Deepcut is anecdotal, and is based primarily on opinions provided to armed forces recruiting teams out in the field by those who influence the decisions of young men and women, including parents and guardians.

Negative media coverage of any aspect of the armed forces life may have contributed to a downturn in the number of inquiries in recent years. Conversely, positive media stories, for example Victoria Cross and George Cross awards and successful rescue missions, may contribute to some applicants, who had not previously considered an armed forces career, to inquire.

Departmental Estate

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the highest valuation is of each of the army bases in Northern Ireland for which closure was announced on 10 May. [72542]

Mr. Watson: We have not yet assessed the value of the properties which are intended to close, as recently announced, but when we do so, it would be unlikely that such information would be disclosed because providing details of the open market valuation could prejudice the commercial interests of the Department by unduly influencing the market if and when properties were sold.

Departmental Expenditure

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the 10 non-public sector entities that have received the largest total sum of payments from his Department in each of the last five years. [71880]

Mr. Watson: The following tables list the 10 non-public sector entities (in alphabetical order) that have received the largest total sum of payments from the Ministry of Defence in each of the last five financial years.

The term 'non-public sector entities' has been taken to refer to all UK and foreign owned private companies and firms with whom the MOD contracts. It includes all subsidiaries and individual units of a company and is therefore not organised by holding company. A listing aggregated to holding company could only be provided at disproportionate cost due to the high volume of work required to map the changing corporate structure and ownership of large defence suppliers on a yearly basis.

The listings exclude all public sector bodies as listed in the "Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations 2005" including all Government Departments, Agencies, Trading Funds, Non departmental Public Bodies (NDPBs) and Government Owned Contractor Operated (GOCO) entities.

Payment of grants, credits and subsidies under statutory obligations for which the Ministry of Defence is responsible are out of the scope of this question.

Eurofighter

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions the Government have had with BAE Systems regarding the conversion of Eurofighter to land on the Royal Navy's two new aircraft carriers. [70272]

Mr. Ingram: The necessary actions have been and will continue to be undertaken to ensure that we have the necessary contingency plans for the JSF project. However, we are not prepared to go into the detail of what our contingency plans are.

Falklands War Medal

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will take steps to amend the criteria to enable the Falklands War Medal to be awarded to those who served on RMS St. Helena in support of the UK Government; and if he will make a statement. [72547]

Mr. Watson: The eligibility criteria for the South Atlantic Medal 1982 were carefully and extensively considered at the time. There are no plans to review these criteria.

Gulf War Syndrome

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many cases of Gulf War Syndrome have been accepted by his Department as being well-founded; [72396]

(2) how many (a) service personnel, (b) former service personnel and (c) civilian personnel have lodged a claim with his Department for Gulf War Syndrome. [72397]

Mr. Watson: In a decision welcomed by the Ministry of Defence, a Pension Appeal Tribunal (PAT) found that Gulf War Syndrome was a 'useful umbrella term' to cover accepted conditions which are causally linked to the 1990-91 Gulf Conflict but that Gulf War Syndrome does not exist as a 'discrete pathological entity', or in other words as a recognised disease. A written statement was published on 24 November 2005, Official Report, columns 128-29WS, setting out our position on this issue. We do not hold figures for those claiming 'Gulf War Syndrome' but since the PAT decision the umbrella term has been applied in six cases.

The latest figures, as at the end of December 2005, show that about 3,025 veterans whose time in the armed forces includes service in the Gulf were in receipt of a war disablement pension for any condition for which an award would be payable. In addition, at that date, 2,515 such veterans had received a gratuity for disablement assessed at under 20 per cent. There will be some overlap between those figures, as some individuals will have received first a gratuity and then a pension. The figures include awards for both Gulf-related and non-Gulf-related injuries or illnesses, as our records do not distinguish the origin of the disablement (including awards where Gulf War Syndrome is appropriate as an umbrella term). The claimants are former members of the armed forces. Serving members of the armed forces are not covered by the War Pension Scheme but they and MOD) civilians are covered by other occupational schemes.

In addition, some 2,000 veterans, dependents and civilians have notified the MOD of their intention to claim common law compensation for Gulf War Syndrome or Gulf illnesses but as yet the claimants' solicitors have served no writs or claims of sufficient detail for the Department to be able to start considering these claims.

Iraq (Nuclear Programme)

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the proliferation risks associated with the former Iraqi nuclear programme; and if he will make a statement. [69166]

Des Browne [holding answer 8 May 2006]: Saddam Hussein ended the Iraq nuclear programme in 1991 following the Gulf war. The Iraq Survey Group (ISG) concluded that although Saddam clearly assigned a high value to the nuclear work that had taken place up to the 1991 war, the programme had ended and the intellectual capital had decayed in the succeeding years. In the comprehensive report of the special advisor to the director of Central Intelligence on Iraq's WMD, issued in September 2004 and finalised in April 2005, the ISG identify two residual risks—the proliferation of equipment and material, and the proliferation of knowledge.

In the 1990s IAEA inspectors identified, collected or destroyed all the key dedicated equipment and materials remaining from the pre-1991 nuclear weapon programme. The ISG concluded that the remaining dual-use nuclear equipment does not pose a proliferation risk, provided the Government remains in control of such equipment.

The ISG also concluded that the risk of (proliferation from scientists passing on information and knowledge is small. It emphasised that the numbers concerned are in fact far less than Saddam had previously led the international community to expect and that such individuals, despite Saddam's efforts, had not maintained their knowledge base/skills as a result of the sanctions regime.

The UK Government agreed with the conclusions in the ISO report and, in response to the risk of proliferation from scientists passing on information and knowledge, has been holding workshops to help Iraqi scientists to apply for civilian employment.

Joint Strike Fighter Programme

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made in discussions with the United States on the joint strike fighter programme in March and April 2006. [69674]

Mr. Ingram: I refer my hon. Friend to the statement made in my answer of 10 May 2006, Official Report, column 284-85W, to the hon. Member for Bolton, North-East (Mr. Crausby).

Nuclear Weapons

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence against which countries the UK nuclear deterrent has been targeted since the demise of the Soviet Union. [71990]

Des Browne: Since May 1994, the UK's nuclear missiles have not been targeted at any country.

Pest Control (Iraq)

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the companies which have received contracts from his Department for pest control in the south-east region of Iraq. [71518]

Mr. Watson: The Ministry of Defence has two contractors who provide pest control services to military bases in South Eastern Iraq as part of their operation and maintenance contracts. They are:

Turners Facilities Management Limited

Kellogg Brown and Root (UK)

Promotion Boards

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many promotion boards have been held in his Department in each of the last five years. [70616]

Mr. Watson: We currently have no centralised system for tracking the numbers of staff obtaining substantive promotion in the Ministry of Defence. To provide the information sought would require asking TLBs to trawl their records to ascertain how many promotion boards have been held. This could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Each year, we hold two Assessment and Development Centres (A and DC); one for staff seeking promotion to Band D (EO), the first of which was held in May 2005; and one for B2 (Principle) grade, the first of which was held in 1993.

Veterans

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will include a web link and contact details for the Ex-Service Fellowship Centre on the Homeless and Need Help "page on the Veteran" Agency website. [72285]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The web link and contact details for the Ex-Service Fellowship Centre have been included on the "Homeless and Need Help" page on Veterans Agency website.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Child Protection

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 3 May 2006, Official Report, column 1630W, on sex offender vetting, if she will introduce vetting procedures for local councillors on the Sexual Offenders Register who have access to schools and vulnerable people; and if she will make a statement. [71382]

Mr. Woolas: We have no plans to introduce procedures of the sort suggested. Existing measures provide that, where offenders are considered to pose a risk of harm, impositions and restrictions may be imposed on them, which can prevent their access to schools and vulnerable people.

Congestion Charging

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate the Government have made of the total revenue raised from congestion charge fines in England in the most recent year for which figures are available. [70720]

Dr. Ladyman: I have been asked to reply.

The Government make no such estimates. The congestion charge schemes in London and Durham are the responsibility of the Mayor of London and Durham county council respectively. Individual drivers who evade the applicable congestion charge on the Dartford Crossing may be subject to prosecution, but the Government do not keep a central record of any fines imposed by the courts for these offences.

Correspondence

John Bercow: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister when he will reply to the letter of 21 March from the hon. Member for Buckingham. [66668]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has no record of receiving the hon. Member's letter of 21 March 2005. Officials have now obtained a copy of the letter from the hon. Member and a reply has been sent today.

Home Information Packs

Michael Gove: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the number of transactions in the residential property market where the lender will require a separate valuation inspection following the introduction of home information packs. [64944]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The Home Condition Report and the associated certification arrangements for Home Inspectors have been developed in consultation with industry to ensure that lenders can have confidence in the report, and that it contains the information they need to generate valuations for mortgage purposes without the need for a further inspection report in the majority of cases. The HCR is far more extensive than the surveys on which most valuations are based. Lenders are already moving to automated valuation models. Even in cases where lenders believe additional information is needed we would expect the HCR to cut the costs of the valuation process.

Local Government Funding

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what total amount of Local Government grant is affected by the use of mid-year population data. [72954]

Mr. Woolas: The 2006-07 and indicative 2007-08 Local Government Finance Settlements, announced in the House on 31 January 2006, included the use of sub-national population projections as the dominant data drivers of population. Mid-2004 population estimates were also used within wider indicators used in the calculation of top-ups in the formulae for these settlements.

Population data are used throughout the distribution system. Both the population projections and mid-year estimates are used in Relative Needs Formula indicators. Population projections are also used to determine the Relative Needs Amount, Relative Resource Amount and Central Allocation as these are calculated on a per head basis. The distribution of formula grant is also affected by the social and economic characteristics of an area, a council's relative ability to raise council tax, and floor damping.

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government plans to take to ensure local authorities do not experience funding shortfalls from under-estimates of the level of migration in their mid-year population estimates. [72955]

Mr. Woolas: The Local Government Finance Settlements for 2006-07 and 2007-08 were laid before the House on the 31 January 2006 and the settlement for 2006-07 was agreed on the 6 February 2006.

For formula grant allocations, the DCLG use the best data available on a consistent basis for all authorities that are available at the time. For population, these are the 2003-based population projections and mid-2004 population estimates published by the Office for National Statistics. The population projections have been used as the dominant driver for population in the formula, while mid-year estimates of population have been used as a component of indicators used in the calculation of top-ups.

The DCLG protect all local authorities from detrimental changes to their grant allocation through the floor damping mechanism, which is a component of the formula grant distribution system.

Minister for Women

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much the Parliamentary Secretary for Women and Equality will be paid per year. [70582]

Hilary Armstrong: I have been asked to reply

In line with the rate of pay for parliamentary secretaries across Government, the salary of the Parliamentary Secretary for Women and Equality is currently £29,786 and will increase to £30,081 from 1 November.

Ministerial Visits (Accommodation)

David Simpson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what discounts are available in relation to hotel accommodation used by (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers in his private office. [69053]

Angela E. Smith: I have been asked to reply.

Some hotels offer a reduced rate for those on government business. My private office staff travelling on official business use these when available.

Regional Government

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how the regional sustainable development round tables will be funded. [70709]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply.

Regional sustainable development round tables are resourced by regional bodies which are members of their round tables, including regional development agencies, Government offices and regional assemblies.

In April 2006, the Government launched "Securing the Regions' Futures" to strengthen regional delivery of sustainable development. In this publication Government recognised the role of round tables and committed to contributing to a two-year programme of regional sustainable development activities which each round table puts forward.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Crown Prosecution Service

Mr. Amess: To ask the Solicitor-General who in the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) is responsible for progress on each of the targets set out on page 7 of its Business Plan 2006-07; to whom each person reports; what discussions he has had with stakeholders about implementation of each target; and if he will make a statement. [66858]

The Solicitor-General: The CPS headquarters directors responsible for delivering the targets set out on page 7 of the CPS Business Plan 2006-07 are given in the section of the Plan entitled "Delivering the CPS Priorities for 2006-07." They all report to the Chief Executive and the Director of Public Prosecutions.

Regular consultation on the Public Service Agreement and other CPS and Criminal Justice System (CJS) targets is conducted with CJS colleagues, including the Office for Criminal Justice Reform, and with other stakeholders through the work of the National Criminal Justice Board. The Attorney-General, the Director of Public Prosecutions and Chief Executive of the CPS and I are members of, and play a full part in, the National Criminal Justice Board.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Solicitor-General how many copies of the Crown Prosecution Service Business Plan

2006-07 were produced; at what cost; to whom copies were disseminated; who was consulted prior to publication; how (a) hon. Members, (b) Members of the House of Lords and (c) members of the public can obtain copies; at what cost; and if he will make a statement. [66859]

The Solicitor-General: 2,000 copies of the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) Business Plan 2006-07 were produced at a cost of £13,452.15. The copies are available to staff, circulated to criminal justice partners, via Chief Crown Prosecutors to local stakeholders and to other Government Departments. The Plan is not formally laid before Parliament but is available electronically on the CPS website (www.cps.gov.uk) or can be obtained, without charge, by contacting the CPS at 50 Ludgate Hill London EC4M 7EX.

The plan is prepared from contributions across the CPS and, where cross-cutting CJS initiatives are described, CJS partners including the Office for Criminal Justice Reform are consulted.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Dining Room Bookings

John Mann: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission which hon. Members have booked one of the dining rooms A, B, C and D for lunch or dinner in the last 12 months; and on behalf of which organisations in each case. [73173]

Nick Harvey: It is not the practice of the House to release details of bookings made by individual hon. Members of catering facilities, whether made for private functions or on behalf of internal or external organisations. Any Member sponsoring a function in the House's banqueting facilities is obliged to declare any relevant interest, and the rules do not allow use of the private dining rooms for direct financial or material gain by a sponsoring Member or any other person or outside organisation.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Biofuels

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions (a) he and (b) his officials have had with their counterparts in the German Government on ways of expanding the biofuel industry. [70805]

Ian Pearson: No specific bilateral discussions have taken place with Germany. However, the right hon. Member for Derby, South (Margaret Beckett) and officials were involved in EU discussions on the biomass action plan, which was published in December 2005. The plan outlines how energy from crops, trees and waste can make a strong contribution to reducing greenhouse gas emissions.

Consultants

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will list the companies which were paid consultancy fees by his Department in 2005-06; how much each was paid; and what each of the companies was used to accomplish. [69696]

Barry Gardiner: The Department does not hold a central list of what every consultancy and professional services provider was used to accomplish and such a list could be provided only at disproportionate cost. As part of the preparation of its annual value for money return to the Office of Government Commerce the core-department is analysing its expenditure on consultancy and professional services for the financial year 2005-06. A list of the companies which were paid consultancy and professional fees by the Department in 2005-06 and how much each was paid will be placed in the Library of the House by no later than the week commencing 24 July 2006.

Departmental Budget

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent on advertising by his Department in each of the last three years. [70544]

Barry Gardiner: The centralised departmental expenditure on advertising in the last three financial years was as follows:

2003-04	70,000
2004-05	739,000
2005-06	890,000

Information on advertising spend by non-departmental public bodies, executive agencies and independent statutory bodies is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what facility is available for senior civil servants in his Department to use credit cards supplied by the Department. [70548]

Barry Gardiner: The Government Procurement Card (GPC), which is a bespoke commercial Visa Purchasing Card, is available currently to all Departments. The GPC is generally used for the prompt and efficient payment of goods and services across the UK public sector and is also widely used by Government officials including Senior Civil Servants for payment of travel and subsistence.

There are currently in excess of 73,000 GPC's issued across the UK public sector. Additionally, there are currently in excess of 130,000 Government Fuel Cards (GFC's) issued across the UK public sector.

Defra has 1326 GPC's and 135 GFC's.

Fishing (Cornwall)

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many fishermen operate from Cornwall's four biggest ports. [72778]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not hold this specific information. However, data are available on the number of fishermen operating in the Western District in 2004 following a survey carried out by the Marine Fisheries Agency. 801 fishermen were operating at the time, 729 of whom were full-time while 72 were part-time. The Marine Fisheries Agency also holds information relating to the number of vessels whose home ports are respectively Newlyn, Falmouth, Looe and Padstow—the four biggest ports in Cornwall based on the amount of landings in the period 2003 to 2005. Currently, there are 99 vessels over 10 m in length and 211 vessels of length 10 m and under.

Lord Rooker

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of Lord Rooker's time is expected to be spent on the affairs of his Department. [72371]

Barry Gardiner: My noble Friend will spend all the time that is necessary to fulfil his responsibility as Minister for Sustainable Farming and Food.

Ministerial Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discounts are available in relation to hotel accommodation used by (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers in his Department. [69094]

Barry Gardiner: From information held centrally, civil servants and special advisers travelling on official business have through DEFRA's hotel booking agent taken 5,494 room nights during the financial year 2005-06 and which have attracted an average discount of 31.8 per cent. off published tariffs.

Modulation

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has for funding the voluntary modulation measure to reward farmers for making a contribution to his Department's environmental targets. [72524]

Barry Gardiner: In England, we have been using voluntary modulation since 2001. This has enabled us to reward farmers for protecting and enhancing the environment. In 2006, agri-environment payments from voluntary modulation receipts will continue to be match-funded with exchequer money.

Discussions are continuing within Government about how to fund the new Rural Development Programme for England 2007-13. These discussions are subject to European Commission proposals about how the voluntary modulation mechanism will operate from 2007 onwards. No decisions have yet been taken about the application of voluntary modulation and any match-funding in this period.

Nuclear Waste Storage

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the storage options for nuclear waste; and if he will make a statement. [72628]

Ian Pearson: Storage options for nuclear waste are being assessed by the independent Committee on Radioactive Waste Management (CoRWM), which was appointed by the Government in November 2003.

The short list of options that CoRWM is currently assessing are: long-term interim storage; deep geological disposal, phased deep geological disposal and near surface disposal of short-lived decommissioning waste.

CoRWM have published draft recommendations which are open to public consultation until May 26 2006. They are available at:

http://www.corwm.org.uk/pdf/None%20-%20CoRWMs%20Draft%20Recommendations%2027%20April.pdf

Storage of nuclear waste is the responsibility of the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority, who will review their strategy in light of CoRWM's recommendations.

Portland PR

Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what meetings officials in his Department have had with representatives of the public relations company Portland PR; what contracts Portland PR has with his Department and agencies for which he has responsibility; and what the nature of the contract is in each case. [70052]

Barry Gardiner: The Department does not maintain a central list of such meetings. Civil servants meet many people as part of the process of policy development and business delivery. All such meetings are conducted in accordance with the requirements of the civil service code and guidance for civil servants on contacts with lobbyists and people outside Government.

Rural Development Programmes

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the impact on farmers in border areas of having different provisions for animal welfare in the rural development programmes in England, Wales and Scotland between 2007 and 2013. [72346]

Barry Gardiner: There will continue to be separate rural development programmes for England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland for the new programming period, 2007-13. This is necessary to reflect the different priorities and needs identified within each part of the UK. There will be some differences in the application of measures provided for by the Rural Development Regulation in different parts of the UK, and farmers in border areas will only be eligible for rural development support under the programme covering the area in which their land is located.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the devolved administrations about the rural development programmes for England, Wales and Scotland between 2007 and 2013. [72347]

Barry Gardiner: Since taking up my post on May 5. I have not yet met with colleagues in the devolved administrations to discuss rural development. However, our officials meet regularly to co-ordinate the approach within the UK to the EU Rural Development Regulation.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to publish the outcome of the consultation on the England rural development programme 2007 to 2013; and if he will make a statement. [72348]

Barry Gardiner: The consultation on the rural development programme for England 2007-13 closed on Monday 22 May. We are now analysing the responses and will publish a report on the results as soon as possible.

Sewage

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the potential risks to health arising from the spreading of sewage sludge on fields near homes. [72439]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 22 May 2006]: A study carried out in the USA has examined the evidence for Staphylococcus aureus (SA) in sewage sludge applied to land and whether a route existed by which populations living in proximity to sludge spreading could be infected. The result of this work was that no SA were detected in any background aerosol or sludge aerosol sample.

The producers of sewage sludge (the water companies) work closely with farmers to ensure that recycling to agricultural land is carried out in accordance with: (i) The Sludge (Use in Agriculture) Regulations 1989 as amended, enforced by the Environment Agency, (ii) the Safe Sludge Matrix, under which they have agreed to ban the use of untreated sludge, and (iii) the non-statutory code of practice, which includes recommendations on environmental protection relating to odour control and proximity to properties.

Sustainable Development

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how his Department has sought to influence consumption patterns since the publication of "Securing the Future", the UK Government's Sustainable Development Strategy. [72310]

Ian Pearson: Following the publication of "Securing the Future" on 7 March 2005, we have collated evidence on the environmental impacts arising from households and how to influence patterns of use. A new information service, will offer advice to the public on how to make the most sustainable consumption choices. Our Environmental Action Fund initiative provides support to voluntary projects to influence consumer behaviour.

The new Round Table on Sustainable Consumption provides advice to Government for actions and policies to create a shift to more sustainable lifestyles. These measures will help the Government to continue to develop sustainable consumption policies. A report on progress will be published in late 2006.

Tallow

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) under what terms renderers are permitted to burn tallow; [72400]

(2) what assessment he has made of the (a) environmental and (b) economic consequences of the incentive scheme for the burning of tallow. [72401]

Ian Pearson: The EU Animal By-Products Regulation (ABPR) requires a range of animal by-products and substances derived from them (including tallow), to be disposed of as waste. Where the method of disposal is incineration or co-incineration (i.e. use as a fuel), the ABPR requires it to be carried out in compliance with the waste incineration directive (WID). Installations may burn tallow provided they comply with these requirements.

There is no specific incentive scheme for the burning of tallow although, as a form of biomass, tallow burning may qualify for renewables obligation certificates (ROCs). Since the WID came fully into force however, the Government are not aware of any significant burning of tallow which is eligible for ROCs.

Water

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what (a) representations he has received and (b) action he is pursuing in respect of water shortages in south-east London. [73129]

Ian Pearson: We have received a number of representations about the implications for water supply of the continuing drought in the south-east though few have been from south-east London.

Any projected shortage in water supply this year will be addressed though the relevant water company's drought plan. Drought plans contain mechanisms which trigger a range of actions to be initiated at different times as a drought develops. One of the actions may involve applying to my Department for drought orders to restrict non-essential uses of water, as some companies in the south-east of England have already done. For example, on 15 May 2006 the Secretary of State granted Sutton and East Surrey Water's application for a non-essential use drought order.

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps are being taken to reduce water leakage in (a) England and (b) the Thames Water area. [72851]

Ian Pearson: Water companies have a duty to develop and maintain efficient and economical systems of water supply. Since 1996 Ofwat has assessed water company performance against leakage targets that balance the needs of customers and the environment. This approach has resulted in a reduction in leakage of around 29 per cent. since 1994-95.

In 2001, following Thames Water's failure to meet their leakage targets, Ofwat suspended the company's leakage targets in favour of an action plan to improve its leakage monitoring and control activities. Thames Water is also required to provide quarterly reports on progress with its agreed leakage reduction plan. The aim is to restore leakage to its target level and achieve adequate security of supplies.

The company is now carrying out 60 per cent. more repairs than two years ago, and a major upgrade of its water distribution network in London is under way. This involves the replacement of more than 1,200 km of water mains by 2010. In 2004-05 Thames Water reduced its overall leakage for the first time since 1999-2000.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Consultants

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry which consultancy firms have been engaged by his Department to provide advice about the funding of the Royal Mail over the last 12 months. [73158]

Jim Fitzpatrick: This Department has in the last 12 months engaged Deloitte and Credit Suisse to provide advice on funding of the Royal Mail.

Insolvency Service

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will estimate the (a) outgoings and (b) revenue of the Official Receiver in the Insolvency Service for each year since 1989; and if he will make a statement. [72407]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Prior to 1 April 2004 The Insolvency Service was funded on a gross basis and its fees were not set in accordance with HM Treasury Fees and Charges Guide which requires that fees should be set only to recover costs. Changes introduced by the Enterprise Act 2002 led to The Service moving to a net funded regime from 1 April 2004 and since that date fees have been set in accordance with the Fees and Charges Guide.

Official Receiver's staff carry out both case administration functions that are funded from fees and investigation and enforcement functions that are funded from a DTI programme. However, other staff in The Service also carry out investigation and enforcement functions and the costs are not separately shown to those incurred by Official Receiver's on these activities.

Prior to The Service becoming an agency in 1990 results were included in the DTI's appropriation accounts. Since 1990-91 Annual Report and Accounts have been published and are available in the Libraries of the House. Annual Reports and Accounts since 2000-01 are also available on The Service's website at www.insolvency.gov.uk.

Minimum Wage

Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much has been spent on publicising the October 2005 changes to the national minimum wage. [72702]

Jim Fitzpatrick: DTI spent £418,300 (excluding VAT) on paid advertising to publicise the October 2005 increases in the national minimum wage. In addition the cost of producing guides and mailings cost the Department £22,295.

Renewable Energy

Kitty Ussher: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the contribution that renewable energy generation could make to meeting future energy needs. [72728]

Malcolm Wicks: The Energy Review is currently looking at the potential for emerging technologies in the low carbon field and how best to bring them forward.

The Government remain committed to making progress towards its target of 10 per cent. of electricity from Renewable Obligation eligible sources of energy by 2010, with an aspiration to double that by 2020.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Protection

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females have been (i) prosecuted and (ii) convicted of offences under (A) the Protection of Badgers Act 1992, (B) the Zoo Licensing Act 1981, (C) the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981, (D) the Pet Animals Act 1951, (E) the Wild Mammals Protection Act 1996 and (F) the Deer Act 1991 in each year since 1996, broken down by age. [69307]

Mr. Byrne: The requested information is provided in the table (a copy of which will be placed in the House Library), comprising prosecutions and convictions for males and females in England and Wales, by age group for offences under the following acts, the Protection of Badgers Act 1992, the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981, the Pet Animals Act 1951, the Wild Mammals Protection Act 1996 and the Deer Act 1991. Responsibility for the day-to-day operation of the licensing system and the administration of the Zoo Licensing Act 1981 rests with local authorities and no criminal proceedings can be brought under the Act. Data for 2005 will be available in the autumn.

Arrest Warrants

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many arrest warrants for (a) non-payment of fines and (b) breaching of the conditions of a community service order have been cancelled in each of the last five years. [69730]

Ms Harman: I have been asked to reply.

Information on the number of arrest warrants for (a) non-payment of fines and (b) breaching of the conditions of a community service order which have been cancelled in each of the last five years is not collected centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Child Exploitation and Online Protection Agency

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures he has taken to ensure that the Child Exploitation and Online Protection Agency is alert to sophisticated uses of the internet to exploit children. [72300]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre (CEOP) was launched on 24 April. The Centre is a world first and will play a decisive part, with police forces, offender managers, children's services and other stakeholders, in protecting children, young people, families and society from paedophiles and sex offenders; in particular from those who use the internet and other new technologies in the sexual exploitation of children.

CEOP is different from traditional policing responses, with law enforcement officers sitting alongside industry and child protection experts. It is built around three core faculties—Intelligence, Operations and Harm Reduction—and will deliver a range of functions designed to empower children and parents through information and education, protect young people through better use of intelligence and better management of offenders and enforce the law both on and offline.

The clear focus on intelligence about offenders and the direct input from the industry will drive CEOP's operational and harm reduction effort, as well as the support it can provide to its partners, in protecting children from those who seek to use new technologies to exploit them.

The Centre is legally part of the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) but is operationally autonomous with a separate budget of nearly £5 million. The Centre reports to Home Office Ministers and is accountable through SOCA's governance structure.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre will be registered under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000. [72849]

Mr. Coaker: The Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre (CEOP) is affiliated to the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA). SOCA is a relevant public authority for the purposes of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 (RIPA) by virtue of amendments to that Act contained in schedule 4 of the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 and consequent to statutory instrument 2006 No. 594. Although CEOP is operationally autonomous and has a specific budget, it is legally part of SOCA and therefore needs no separate provisions in relation to RIPA.

Court Case Statistics

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of cases were heard in (a) magistrates courts and (b) Crown courts in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available in (i) England and Wales and (ii) the Southend area concerning (A) shoplifting, (B) theft and (C) burglary; and what percentage of defendants in each category of crime, were found (1) guilty and (2) not guilty. [71968]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested is provided in the following tables.

DNA

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many DNA samples taken by police have subsequently been destroyed following a request to do so from the person from whom the DNA was taken, broken down by police authority area; and what percentage of requests to do so this represents. [72332]

Joan Ryan [holding answer 22 May 2006]: During the financial year 2005-06, the total number of subject sample profiles which were removed from the Database and the DNA samples destroyed, for all reasons, and broken down by force area is set out in the following table.

Samples may be destroyed and the profiles removed from the database for a number of reasons, for example, following notification of the death of the individual, because the sample was taken unlawfully or following a request from the individual for his/her profile to be removed. Information on the number of DNA samples which have been destroyed and the profile removed only as a result of a request to do so from the person from whom the DNA was taken, and the total number of such requests received by the police, is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Drug-related Crime

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many drug-related crimes per 100,000 population were reported in (a) Cornwall and (b) England in the last period for which figures are available. [72797]

Mr. Coaker: Routine crime statistics used for monitoring overall crime trends do not contain information on the offender's drug habits. It is therefore not possible to provide a direct estimate of the number of crimes that are drug-related.

However, acquisitive crimes recorded by the police—to which drug-related crime makes a substantial contribution—fell by 12 per cent. in the year to April 2005 compared to the same period the year before.

Identity Card Register

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the feasibility of the integration of the proposed Identity Card Register with the IT systems of Government Departments. [66463]

Joan Ryan: The Identity and Passport Service continues to work with key Departments to fully map and plan the realisation of potential benefits that the National Identity Scheme will offer for their operations. As part of this work, Departments are assessing where the greatest benefits will arise through the use of the scheme and the consequences for their own systems. Indeed, not all services will require a high degree of integration between the ID Cards Scheme and other IT systems and in a number of cases, any necessary changes will be integrated in the usual planned cycle of system upgrades and technology refresh.

It is important to note that no Department will gain direct access to the National Identity Register itself. Instead, the Identity Cards Act 2006 provides that accredited Government organisations would be permitted, subject to certain conditions, to request information about an individual from the National Identity Register through a service run by Identity and Passport Service.

Knives

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research has been conducted on a system of licensing for the possession of knives in public places; and if he will make a statement. [62553]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 30 March 2006]: We have no plans to introduce a licensing system for knives. It is already an offence to have a knife in public without good reason or lawful authority.

Prisoners Abroad (Release)

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what criteria the police use in deciding whether to interview newly released prisoners from foreign prisons upon their arrival in the United Kingdom; what legislation governs such decisions; and if he will make a statement; [56910]

(2) how long the police may detain prisoners released from foreign prisons upon their arrival in the United Kingdom; what recent representations he has received about the practice; what discussions he has had with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office about the practice; and if he will make a statement. [56911]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There is no legislation or other requirement for foreign authorities to inform the UK Government when a prisoner is released from a foreign jail. There is an agreement between Consular Directorate (CD) and the Serious and Organised Crime Agency (SOCA), that CD will notify SOCA of the arrest of British nationals abroad for Serious Crimes. When a British consulate overseas is mad aware that a UK national is being deported or released from a foreign jail, details are passed from the consulate to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office who in turn inform SOCA.

Law enforcement officers will determine if there is an operational need to interview the person on their return to the UK. The returnee is not required to attend such an interview unless the person is subject to arrest and detention in connection with the investigation of an offence. The results of any interview are forwarded to the police force in whose area the returnee plans to reside. It is an operational matter for the chief officer of the force concerned whether further action should be taken.

Where the police are aware that an individual has received a conviction or caution for a sexual offence overseas they are advised to apply for a notification order—which will make the returnee subject to part 2 of the Sexual Offences Act 2003 (the sex offenders register)—regardless of whether they believe that the person poses a risk of sexual harm or not. This mirrors the way in which sex offender registration automatically applies to offenders convicted or cautioned in the United Kingdom regardless of any risk they pose.

Prisons

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what correspondence he has had with the Prison Officers Association on industrial relations in HM Prison Service in the last 12 months; [59262]

(2) who the principal point of contact is for correspondence between his Department and its agencies and the Prison Officers Association; [59263]

(3) how industrial action is defined under paragraph 7 of the Joint Industrial Relations Procedural Agreement with the Prison Officers Association; [59264]

(4) if he will list occasions since 1994 on which his Department and its agencies have (a) taken injunctive action and (b) threatened to take injunctive action against the Prison Officers Association. [59265]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Home Secretary has corresponded on a regular basis with the Prison Officers Association (POA) in response to issues raised by them which affect the management of industrial relations across the Prison Service, including: on pay reform linked to the announcement of the Isle of Sheppey market test; the International Labour Organisation ruling on section 127 of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994; Prison Service trade unions and POA industrial action. In addition, the Home Secretary has met the POA either at dedicated meetings or by attendance at joint conferences on six occasions in the last 12 months.

The principal point of contact for correspondence between the public sector Prison Service and the Prison Officers Association is Phil Wheatley, the director general.

Industrial action as defined under paragraph 7 of the Joint Industrial Relations Procedural Agreement with the POA is "any actions by one or more individuals, which affects, or attempts to affect, the normal working or performance of the Prison Service".

There have been a total of five occasions where it has been necessary to seek injunctions and a further eight occasions where injunctive relief has been threatened in response to POA actions. Further details are contained in the following table.

Summary of injunctions and threatened injunctive action by the public sector Prison Service in England and Wales on the Prison Officers Association since 1994

Date injunction issued	Date injunctive action threatened	Issue
Two injunctions court hearing November 1994	—	1. Injunction brought against the Preston POA Branch following a lockout
	—	2. Injunction against the POA general secretary due to a dispute about whether prison officers were or were not "workers"
	June 1996	To prevent further unauthorised meetings held by POA branches in protest against staffing and cost reductions
November 1998	—	To prevent unauthorised POA branch meetings being held to discuss industrial action over pay
January 1999	—	To prevent unlawful POA branch meetings to discuss industrial action over pay
	August 2000	To prevent further unauthorised POA branch meetings following decision to market test HMP Brixton and threat of industrial action
	February 2002	Threat of injunction served on several prisons to prevent withdrawal of goodwill following announcement of pay award
February 2002	—	Injunction served on the POA National Executive Committee and HMP Holme House due to continued withdrawal of goodwill following announcement of pay award
	July 2002	HMP Kingston local POA branch threat of industrial action regarding a dispute over demarcation of duties
	August 2003	HMP Styal threat of industrial action by the local POA branch
	January 2004	Threat of industrial action on a national scale in protest over dispute about provision of protection allocated to Northern Irish Prison Officers

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Amendments to Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Leader of the House if he will list the occasions when an amendment has been moved by (a) a Labour Back Bencher, (b) an Opposition Back Bencher and (c) an Opposition front bench spokesman to a Bill sponsored by his Department that has been accepted by his Department during the current session; and if he will make a statement. [72102]

Mr. Straw: The Office of the Leader of the House of Commons has not sponsored any Bills during the current session.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Leader of the House if he will revise the Government's guidelines for answering parliamentary questions, so that when a Minister replies to an hon. Member's question that the answer could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost, (a) he will allow hon. Members the option to pay the cost of supplying the information required and (b) he will set out what it would cost to answer the question (i) fully and (ii) partially; and if he will make a statement. [72032]

Mr. Straw: I am happy to receive representation on this issue.

September Sittings

Ben Chapman: To ask the Leader of the House pursuant to his oral answer of 9 May 2006, Official Report, column 168, on September sittings, when he expects to make an announcement regarding the tabling of written parliamentary questions during September. [72940]

Mr. Straw: As my reply on 9 May indicated, I am exploring ways of introducing increased accountability of the Government to Parliament during the summer adjournment. One possibility would be to resume the practice of September sittings. Failing that it might be possible to introduce a system of allowing the tabling and answering of written questions during a period in September, though this might not now be possible in respect of the current year. The issue remains under consideration within Government.

Small Change Big Difference Campaign

Anne Milton: To ask the Leader of the House what steps his Department has taken following the launch of the Government's "Small Change Big Difference" Campaign. [71999]

Mr. Straw: The Office of the Leader of the House of Commons comes within the administrative responsibility of the Privy Council Office. No specific steps have yet been taken by the Department following the publication of this document.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Amendments to Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will list the occasions when an amendment has been moved by (a) a Labour Back Bencher, (b) an Opposition Back Bencher and (c) an Opposition Front Bench spokesman to a Bill sponsored by her Department that has been accepted by her Department during the current session; and if she will make a statement. [72111]

Vera Baird: My Department has sponsored The Criminal Defence Service Act, The Electoral Administration Bill and The Compensation Bill during the current session.

Information on amendments moved and accepted during the Committee and Report Stage of these Bills is published in the Official Report.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how much has been spent by her Department on media training in each year since 1997-98. [55219]

Vera Baird: The information requested is not held centrally and to obtain it from across the Department for Constitutional Affairs, including all courts and judges, would incur disproportionate costs.

Information Commissioner

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what advice the Information Commissioner has provided to the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister in each of the last three years. [70742]

Bridget Prentice: The Information Commissioner has a general duty under both the Data Protection Act and the Freedom of Information Act to promote the observance of good practice by public authorities and other organisations in compliance with the provisions of both these Acts.

Guidance and advice is made available by the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) through a variety of means including the ICO website, presentations by ICO staff at conferences and seminars attended by central Government officials, and by way of the ICO telephone helpline. Advice may also be given to Government Departments by the ICO in the context of specific cases as a result of the Information Commissioner considering complaints under the Data Protection Act and complaints under the Freedom of Information Act. There is no central record of all of these possible interactions with individual Departments.

Information Technology

Chris Huhne: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the (a) originally estimated, (b) most recently estimated and (c) out-turn cost was in each of the five largest information technology contracts agreed with outside suppliers over the last five years. [71805]

Bridget Prentice: The Department's five relevant IT contracts are with: Fujitsu Services; STL; Accenture; Cable and Wireless and Oracle.

(a) The originally estimated costs of these contracts are:

Fujitsu Services (magistrates courts IT systems) was tendered in July 2002 for £232 million over 8.5 years;

STL (magistrates courts IT systems): £38.5 million

Accenture (magistrates courts IT systems): £36 million

Cable and Wireless (for web-hosting): £1.5 million

Oracle—a contract agreement providing licensing for staff to use Oracle software products. Total expenditure since 2003, when the contract was awarded, is £9.7 million.

(b) and (c) all these contracts are ongoing and some will be subject to value for money contract re-negotiation. Therefore out-turn costs do not apply. The current values of each of the contracts are as follows:

Fujitsu Services: £232 million

STL: £38.5 million

Accenture: £36 million

Cable and Wireless: £2.5 million

Press Coverage

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs on how many occasions since 1 April 2003 she has complained to the Press Complaints Commission about the coverage in the press of (a) Ministers or officials and (b) her Department; and how many of these complaints were upheld. [47081]

Vera Baird: Neither I nor my ministerial colleagues have made any complaints to the Press Complaints Commission since April 2003.

CABINET OFFICE

Disability Access

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether any building in her Department falls short of disability access regulations. [73045]

Mr. McFadden: All Cabinet Office buildings, with one exception, are compliant with Disability Access Regulations. The non compliant building is due to be vacated later this year.

E-Government

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which Departments have not implemented the e-Government Interoperability Framework standards; and when each such Department is expected to have done so. [72506]

Mr. McFadden: The provisions of the e-Government Interoperability Framework apply to individual information technology systems. Data on which systems have complied with the framework standards are not held centrally. The guidance for conducting an Office of Government Commerce Gateway Review 1 (Business Justification) stipulates that for new IT-related projects there should be evidence of compliance with the Framework.

It is established policy that Departments only need make their existing systems compliant when updating, enhancing or replacing these systems. Full compliance by an entire Department therefore depends on the eventual replacement or upgrade of all their systems.

National Youth Volunteering Service

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many times the board of the National Youth Volunteering Service has met since it was established. [70754]

Edward Miliband [holding answer 12 May 2006]: The new charity v, was launched on 8 May 2006. The board of trustees met informally on 10 April 2006 and holds its first official meeting on 12 June 2006.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on what date Rod Aldridge commenced his duties as chairman of the National Youth Volunteering Service; how much he is paid as chairman; and how many days each week he will spend on his duties. [70758]

Edward Miliband [holding answer 12 May 2006]: Rod Aldridge commenced his duties as chairman of v on 3 April 2006. The post of chairman is unpaid and is expected to involve a commitment of around two days a month. Since 3 April, the chairman has spent approximately three working days on business for v.

Tatenhill Airfield Planning Application

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps she is taking to ensure effective and timely consultation with local communities on current planning application (CR/20723/010) for the development of Tatenhill airfield. [70665]

Hilary Armstrong: The Duchy is committed to the regeneration and extension of Tatenhill airfield.

The current planning application was made following a public enquiry into the Draft Local Plan for East Staffordshire borough council in 2005 and the subsequent Planning Inspector's Report in spring 2006 which accepted the Duchy's policy.

No objections to the proposals were submitted during the enquiry and the local authority has agreed to adopt all the recommendations of the inspector within the Local Plan, including those relating to Tatenhill airfield.

Mr. Clarke, the Chief Executive of the Duchy, has met with the local planning authority and attended the annual general meeting of the Tatenhill parish council to explain what was proposed and answer queries. A public statement outlining the proposal was also issued to the planning authority in a supplementary planning statement, which was circulated to all parish councils in the area.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

China Task Force

Mr. Hands: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what resources are available to him in his role as head of the China Task Force to facilitate discussion in (a) Mandarin and (b) Cantonese with Chinese interlocutors; and if he will make a statement. [71209]

The Deputy Prime Minister: Interpretation services for meetings with the Chinese Government in my role as chair of the China Task Force are provided either by the Chinese Government or by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and British embassy in China.

Mr. Hands: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will encourage senior officials supporting the work of the China Task Force to learn (a) Mandarin and (b) Cantonese. [71210]

The Deputy Prime Minister: Interpretation services for my meetings with the Chinese Government in my role as chair of the China Task Force are provided either by the Chinese Government or by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and British embassy in China.

While it is not part of my specific role as chair of the China Task Force to encourage senior officials to study languages, deepening ties with China in the field of education is a theme of the China Task Force. This includes looking at mechanisms for Chinese students to study in the UK, and British students to study Chinese and visit China. I fully support more British students choosing to study Cantonese and Mandarin. The work of the task force is supported by Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials, many of whom are proficient in languages relevant to the duties I am required to undertake as chair.

Departmental Staff

Derek Conway: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many civil servants are allocated to work in his ministerial private office; whether he was involved in (a) their appointment and (b) the allocation of duties to those staff; and if he will make a statement. [67796]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave to the hon. Member for Reading, East (Mr. Wilson) and my hon. Friend the Member for South Swindon (Anne Snelgrove) in the House on 17 May 2006, Official Report, columns 979-80.

Dorneywood

Norman Baker: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the use of Dorneywood by his close personal friends. [67353]

The Deputy Prime Minister [holding answer 2 May 2006]: Use of Dorneywood is governed by the terms of the charitable trust, established in 1942, which owns the property. All previous residents have been required to abide by the terms of the trust, and I have fully done this. Since Dorneywood is a charitable trust, there is no cost to the public purse.

Ministerial Anniversary

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether he plans to commemorate his anniversary of 10 years as Deputy Prime Minister. [66225]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I fully intend to mark my 10 years as Deputy Prime Minister at the appropriate time.

In the nine years that I have been Deputy Prime Minister, we have seen over 2 million more jobs created, record investment in our public services, a doubling of the investment in housing, over a million social homes made decent, an increase in the green belt of 26,000 hectares, an increase in the percentage of development on brownfield sites from 57 per cent. in 1997 to 72 per cent. now, the establishment of the right to roam, announcing the establishment of two new national parks, an increase in the UK registered shipping fleet to 12.1 million tonnes in 2004 compared to 3.4 million tonnes in 1997, the successful negotiation of the Kyoto environmental protocol and the achievement of our commitment to reduce UK greenhouse gas emissions to 12.5 per cent. below 1990 levels several years ahead of target, the renegotiation of the Channel Tunnel Rail Link that is now being delivered on time and on budget and the first new major rail line in the UK for over a century, a £180 billion transport investment programme; which has led to large increases in the use of public transport, cleaner drinking water and a reduction in water leakages since 1997, and an increase in funding to local government of 39 per cent. since 1997, compared to a real terms cut of 7 per cent. in the last four years of the previous Administration, to mention but a few of our achievements.

A lot done, and a lot to do and I look forward to adding to this list between now and the 10th anniversary of holding the office of Deputy Prime Minister.

Parliamentary Questions

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister when he will provide a substantive reply to question (a) 69909 on Dorneywood and (b) (i) 69910, (ii) 69986 and (iii) 69987 on the exercise of his official duties tabled by the hon. Member for New Forest, East for named day answer on 11 May. [72717]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave him on 18 May 2006, Official Report, columns 1254W and 1256W and to the answers I gave him on Tuesday 23 May.

TREASURY

Average Incomes

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the average income per person in (a) Cornwall and (b) the UK. [72776]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 24 May 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about average income in Cornwall, and the UK. (72776).

Figures for average incomes per person for Cornwall and the UK are shown in the table. These were published on 9 May 2006. Gross disposable household income (GDHI) is the amount of money that households have available for consumption expenditure or saving Total household incomes represent the total amount of money households receive before any deductions. Regional GDHI data are available on the National Statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=7359.

The statistics used are national accounts series for the combined household and non-profit institutions serving households sectors. Estimates for households alone are not available.

Average Incomes per Capita[1]

	Gross Disposable Household Income (GDHI) (£)		Total Incomes[2] (£)
	Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly	United Kingdom	Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly	United Kingdom
1995	7,783	8,602	11,234	12,296
1996	8,191	9,088	11,687	12,866
1997	8,562	9,625	12,088	13,461
1998	8,769	9,938	12,653	14,149
1999	9,101	10,390	13,009	14,820
2000	9,609	10,971	13,798	15,745
2001	10,294	11,643	14,589	16,631
2002	10,637	11,971	15,023	17,120
2003	11,166	12,500	15,744	17,920
2004	11,508	12,840	16,477	18,638

[1] Population denominator is Mid-Year estimate, for total population.
[2] All household income including employers' social contributions, imputed social contributions, social benefits and other current transfers received.
Note:
Data are presented for Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly combined. These data cannot be disaggregated in to the two constituent areas.

Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the occasions when an amendment has been moved by (a) a Labour backbencher, (b) an Opposition backbencher and (c) an Opposition front bench spokesman to a Bill sponsored by his Department, that has been accepted by his Department during the 2005-06 session; and if he will make a statement. [72483]

John Healey: Treasury Ministers have introduced the following Bills during the present session:

National Insurance Contributions Bill;

Finance Bill;

Finance (No.2) Bill.

Information on amendments moved and accepted during the Committee and Report stages on these Bills is published in the Official Report.

Bonuses

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of his staff in each of the last three years; and at what total cost. [73041]

John Healey: Information on the number of non-pensionable bonuses to Treasury staff in the last three years is given in the following table:

	Number of bonuses	Total cost (£)
2005-06	603	1,090,544
2004-05	680	915,463
2003-04	635	784,958

Chinese Currency

Stephen Hesford: To ask The Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the implications for British trade of China allowing its currency to appreciate against the US dollar. [72676]

John Healey: The exchange rate is determined in a fully flexible setting for foreign exchange and it is therefore difficult to determine the exact implications of an appreciation of the Chinese renminbi against the US dollar for British trade. An appreciation of the Chinese renminbi against the US dollar could result in an appreciation, depreciation or no change against UK sterling. However, the sterling effective exchange rate has been relatively stable in recent years. Since the introduction of the euro in 1999, the volatility of sterling's effective exchange rate has been under half that of the euro and around a third that of the US dollar. At the same time, UK exports, including exports to China, continue to grow. UK exports have grown on average 4.4 per cent. per year from 1997 to 2005.

Departmental Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list (a) Acts and (b) parts of Acts which received Royal Assent between 1976 and 2006 for which his Department has policy responsibility and which remain in force. [70063]

John Healey: The Acts that received Royal Assent between 1976 and 2006 for which Treasury Ministers have policy responsibility for the whole or a part, in addition to annual Finance, Appropriation and Consolidated Fund Acts, are listed as follows.

1. In relation to the functions of Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (other than administration functions in respect of a matter for which another Department has lead policy responsibility)

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many promotion boards have been held in his Department in each of the last five years. [70552]

John Healey: The Treasury has not operated promotion boards for the last five years. Most vacancies are open to applicants on promotion as well as level transfer.

Disability Access

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether any buildings in his Department do not meet disability access regulations. [73038]

John Healey: The building the Treasury occupies at 1 Horse Guards Road complies with the Disability Access Regulations.

EU Finance

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the UK's (a) rebate from and (b) gross contribution to the European Union is calculated; and how the formula was used to arrive at the latest available year's figure in each case. [72380]

Ed Balls: Details of the UK abatement calculation are given on page 30 of the European Community Finances White Paper (Cm 6770) which was laid before Parliament earlier today. The UK's gross contribution is determined in accordance with the Own Resources Decision (ORD) (Council Decision 2000/597/EC, EURATOM of 29 September 2000), details of which can be found on page 7 of Cm 6770. The ORD lays down the four sources of Community revenue, or own resources, details of which are given on page 31 of Cm 6770. The UK's annual contribution to the EC Budget, i.e. the gross contribution minus the UK abatement, is calculated in accordance with these arrangements.

GDP Statistics

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the gross domestic product per capita of (a) Cornwall, (b) the UK and (c) the EU is; and what the current European average is. [72774]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 24 May 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about Gross Domestic Product (GDP) per capita estimates for Cornwall, UK, and EU (72774).

The ONS publishes estimates of Gross Value Added (GVA) rather than GDP at a regional level. The two measures are broadly similar, though direct comparisons are not possible.

The table contains estimates of GVA per capita for Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly and to UK as well as GDP per capita for the UK, EU15 and EU25. Data are shown for the period 1995-2003.

Gross Value Added/Gross Domestic Product per capita[1] [2]

	Gross Value Added[3]		Gross Domestic Product
	Cornwall and Isles of Scilly[4] (£)	United Kingdom (£)	United Kingdom (£)	EU15[5] (€)	EU25[5] (€)
1995	6,724	11,015	12,379	18,000	15,500
1996	7,275	11,699	13,127	18,900	16,300
1997	7,432	12,347	13,900	19,800	17,200
1998	7,749	13,056	14,716	20,700	17,900
1999	8,018	13,622	15,429	21,700	18,800
2000	8,534	14,290	16,194	23,100	20,100
2001	9,164	14,944	16,862	23,800	20,800
2002	9,971	15,691	17,674	24,500	21,500
2003	10,518	16,485	18,570	24,800	21,700

[1] Population denominator is Mid-Year estimates for total population.
[2] Cornwall and UK data in £ stg. EU15 and EU25 data in Euro.
[3] Gross Value Added (GVA) is Gross Domestic Product (GDP) less taxes (plus subsidies) on products. These data are current price estimates which are not adjusted for changes in prices over time.
[4] Data are presented for Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly combined. These data cannot be disaggregated in to the two constituent areas.
[5] Gross Domestic Product per head as published by Eurostat.

HM Revenue and Customs

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the value of subsistence claims made by staff of HM Revenue and Customs working away from home was in 2005-06; and what proportion of claims did not include receipts. [71722]

Dawn Primarolo: In 2005-06 it is estimated that HM Revenue and Customs paid out £9,299,575 on staff subsistence claims, excluding travel and accommodation costs.

As the submission of receipts with claims is not mandatory within HMRC, payment verification is on a sample basis.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average waiting time for callers to the HM Revenue and Customs tax return phone helpline was in each of the last 24 months for which figures are available; on how many occasions in each month no lines were available to callers; and how many call staff were available in each month. [72018]

Dawn Primarolo: The following table shows the average waiting time for callers to the self-assessment helpline, and also the number of calls receiving an engaged tone since May 2004.

	Month	Average wait	Engaged[1] (thousands)
2004	May	0:01:28	205

[1] Call attempts where the caller was played an engaged tone, before they were placed in a queue to speak to an adviser.

Helpline advisers are not allocated exclusively to the self-assessment helpline and it would only be possible to disaggregate resource allocated to this helpline from other types of call at disproportionate cost.,

Improving Migration Population Statistics Programme

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on how many occasions the Office for National Statistics has met the four participating local authorities in the Improving Migration Population Statistics programme; and what the outcome was of those meetings. [72952]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 24 May 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking on how many occasions the Office for National Statistics has met the four participating local authorities in the Improving Motion and Population Statistics: (DS) project, and what was the outcome of those meetings. I am replying in her absence. (72952)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) is currently working in partnership with four Local Authorities (LAs) to investigate whether there are local data sources that could be used to assist the compilation of the nationally produced population estimates. The four LAs are Barnet Derby Hammersmith & Fulham and Welwyn Hatfield. These authorities were selected from four groupings of LAs which each scored highly on different characteristics associated with difficulties in estimating population accurately.

Initial meetings were held with the four selected LAs in December 2005 and January 2006. At these meetings each of the LAs agreed to work with ONS to gain a better understanding of how they use the population estimates, what other local information and data sources they use, what particular issues affect population estimates within their LA and what methods and local data sources they use to overcome these issues.

A further round of meetings is currently underway to review progress and a final round of meetings will be held at the end of the studies in summer 2006. ONS will review the findings to see if any improvements can be applied to the mid-year population estimates processes or quality assurance procedures, either for all LAs or for groups of LAs. ONS will publish the outcome of the studies and evaluate their success, including a review of the criteria and approach for selecting LAs.

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Treasury expects to receive the findings of the Office for National Statistics Improving Migration Population Statistics Programme. [72953]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Jil Matheson, dated 24 May 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking when the Treasury expects to receive the findings of the Office for National Statistics Improving Migration and Population Statistics (IMPS) project. I am replying in her absence. (72953)

The IMPS project was set up following the publication of the full report on the Local Authority population studies in September 2004. The aim is to investigate where it is possible to introduce changes to the data sources and methods that will improve the quality of the migration and population statistics.

A list of published reports and those due to be published shortly, is attached in the Annex to this letter. The report planned for August 2006, at the same time as the release of the mid-2005 population estimates for England & Wales, will provide a summary of the research plan and progress to date. Further reports will be issued as results emerge and plans for implementing changes to reflect these results, will be published on the National Statistics website. There will be a final report in March 2008, which is when the project is currently due to be completed.

This article will present an analysis of the research and consultation into alternative population bases and discusses the options for moving towards more flexible output bases.

An article is due to appear in a forthcoming issue of Population Trends presenting the research into administrative data on housing and the insights that affords into the relationship between housing and population change.

A further article, which reviews international experience of the Cohort Component method, is due to appear in a forthcoming issue of Population Trends. This method is the main one used by Census taking countries to produce population estimates during the intercensal period.

Inheritance Tax

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received regarding the inheritance tax treatment of accumulation and maintenance trusts and interest in possession trusts. [72934]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave on 16 May 2006, Official Report, column 831W.

Migrants

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the breakdown by (a) local authority area and (b) nationality of migrants was allocated by the Office for National Statistics to mid-year estimates in each year from 1991 to 2004. [72951]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Jil Matheson, dated 24 May 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about what breakdown by (a) local authority area and (b) nationality of migrants was allocated by the Office for National Statistics to mid-year estimates in each year from 1991 to 2004.1 am replying in her absence. (72951)

I am placing a table in the House of Commons Library, which gives a breakdown of the migration component of the mid-year estimates by local authority for mid-2000 to mid-2004. Figures for the migration component are not available separately for the earlier years requested. Published tables for earlier years showing 'Natural Change' and 'Migration and other changes' are available on the National Statistics website:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/statbase/ssdataset.asp?vlnk=8615&More=Y

The migration estimates used in the mid-year estimates are not disaggregated by nationality.

The components of the mid-year estimates are estimated in as robust a manner as possible given available data sources. The total international migration figures shown in this table are produced for the express purpose of producing the mid-year estimates. Figures for the internal migration in the table may also differ slightly from those published elsewhere due to rounding and constraining effects.

Ministerial Activities

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) public speeches and (b) official visits (i) he and (ii) the Chief Secretary to the Treasury has made on departmental business since 5 May 2005. [55714]

John Healey: Speeches by Treasury Ministers are available on the Treasury's website. Since 5 May 2005 both the Chancellor and successive Chief Secretaries have made a number of visits to the regions and nations of the United Kingdom and will be continuing to do so over the coming months.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many letters (a) he and (b) the Chief Secretary to the Treasury has sent on departmental business since 5 May 2005. [55715]

John Healey: The Chancellor and the Chief Secretary both send many hundreds of letters each year in the course of their official duties.

Ministerial Travel

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the use by Ministers of aircraft from 32 (The Royal) Squadron of the RAF to travel on (a) private and (b) party business is treated as a benefit in kind for tax purposes. [66621]

John Healey: The tax treatment of travel and subsistence for the Speaker, Ministers and Opposition office-holders is covered by specific provisions in s295 of ITEPA, introduced in 1996.

Ministerial Visits (Accommodation)

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) on how many occasions (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers in his Department have stayed overnight in (i) five star, (ii) four star and (iii) three star hotels in each of the last three years; [69059]

(2) what the total cost was of overnight accommodation for (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers in his Department staying overnight in (i) mainland Great Britain, (ii) Northern Ireland, (iii) the Republic of Ireland and (iv) other countries in each of the last three years; [69060]

(3) what the total cost was of overnight accommodation for Treasury Ministers on foreign visits in each of the last three years; [69061]

(4) on how many occasions Treasury Ministers stayed overnight in (a) five star, (b) four star and (c) three star hotels on foreign visits in each of the last three years; [69062]

(5) what discounts are available in relation to hotel accommodation used by (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers in his private office. [69063]

John Healey: In relation to the total costs of Ministers' and special advisers' overnight accommodation costs, I refer to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Leicester, East (Keith Vaz) on 16 March 2006, Official Report, column 2411W. The total cost of subsistence for the Treasury in the last three financial years was as follows. The figures include Ministers, special advisers and civil servants, and meals as well as overnight accommodation costs.

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
Subsistence in the UK	85	78	72
Subsistence overseas	237	272	323

Further details, including analysis of costs by destination and by class of hotel, could be provided only at disproportionate cost. All travel is undertaken in accordance with the rules set out in the "Ministerial Code", the "Civil Service Management Code" and the "Code of Conduct for Special Advisers", which include requirements for travel arrangements to be efficient and cost-effective.

Our hotel providers use their purchasing power to negotiate better rates and room allocations for their Government clients. These arrangements are available to all staff, both civil servants and special advisers.

Parliamentary Questions

Anne Main: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 15 February 2006, Official Report, column 2163W, on written parliamentary questions, how many written questions have been submitted to his Department in each year since 1997; and how many questions each Minister in his Department has answered. [54244]

John Healey: As the former Economic Secretary said in his earlier reply, written answers are usually given by the Minister with named responsibility for the issue concerned.

The information requested in respect of each complete parliamentary Session since 1997-98 is given in the table:

Minister	1997-98	1998-99	1999-2000	2000-01	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05

Financial Secretary	1,517	191	448	145	1,716	1,247	1,480	797
Economic Secretary	1,611	1,055	1,037	471	1,785	976	651	111
Total	3,978	2,084	2,827	1,288	5,915	3,950	3,338	1,502

Pensions

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the change in levels of taxation required to meet the cost of implementing the recommendations set out in the Ombudsman's report Trusting in the Pensions Promise. [69891]

James Purnell: I have been asked to reply.

No such estimate has been made.

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what percentage of staff in his Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pension. [73040]

John Healey: On 1 April 2006, 20 Treasury staff were paying into additional voluntary contributions and 43 were paying into added years. The 63 people concerned represented 5.7 per cent. of the staff of the Treasury.

Population Statistics (Hartlepool)

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many single parent households with children under the age of 16 years there were in the Hartlepool constituency in each of the last 15 years; [72598]

(2) how many single-person households there were in the Hartlepool constituency in each of the last 15 years; [72599]

(3) what estimate he has made of the number of cohabiting couples living in Hartlepool constituency in each of the past 15 years. [72603]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 24 May 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your requests for the following figures for the Hartlepool constituency: the number of single parent households with children under 16 years of age in the past 15 years; the number of single person households since 1990; and, the number of cohabiting couples in the past 15 years. (72598, 72599 and 72603)

Estimates of these figures are not produced on an annual basis for local areas. Available figures are from the censuses of 1991 and 2001. These are shown in the table below.

Numbers of lone parent households with dependent children aged under 16[1], one person households[2] and cohabiting couples in households[3]: Hartlepool, 1991 and 2001

	1991	2001
1. Lone parent households with dependent children aged under 16	1,793	2,992
2. One person households	9,172	11,413
3. Number of couples in households: Cohabiting	[4]788	3,273

[4] In 1991 responses to relationship questions were only processed for approximately 10 per cent. of the population. The figures in this table have been grossed up by a factor of 10.16 to account for this.

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many marriages took place in the Hartlepool constituency in each year since 1990. [72600]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 24 May 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking for the number of marriages that have taken place in the Hartlepool constituency since 1990. (72600)

The table below shows the number of marriages that took place in the Hartlepool Registration District from 1990 to 2003, the latest year available. It should be noted that place of marriage does not necessarily denote place of last, current or future residence.

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many divorces took place in the Hartlepool constituency in each year since 1990. [72601]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 24 May 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking for the number of divorces that have taken place in the Hartlepool constituency since 1990. (72601)

The number of divorces that took place at the Court Service in Hartlepool is shown from 1992 to 2003, the latest year available, in the table below. Data is not readily available for 1990 and 1991. It should be noted that place of divorce does not necessarily denote place of last, current or future residence.

Private Members' Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list those private Member" Bills in respect of which his Department has adopted a 'policy of neutrality in each session since 2001-02; and if he will make a statement. [72481]

John Healey: The information is not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Private Office Costs

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost was of (a) his and (b) the Chief Secretary to the Treasury's private offices in the last year for which figures are available. [55713]

John Healey: The costs of the offices of the Chancellor and the Chief Secretary in 2004-05 were £1,248,802 and £513,866, respectively.

Sovereign Strategy

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what dates over the last 12 months (a) he and (b) (i) Ministers and (ii) officials in his Department met a representative of Sovereign Strategy. [72344]

John Healey: I am advised that Treasury Ministers and officials have not met with Sovereign Strategy over the last 12 months.

Tax Credits

Mr. Spring: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people living in West Suffolk received overpayments of (a) child tax credit and (b) working tax credit in each of the last five years. [72637]

Jim Sheridan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many families in Paisley and Renfrewshire North received overpayment of (a) working tax credit and (b) child tax credit in 2005. [73190]

Dawn Primarolo: Child and Working Tax Credits were only introduced in April 2003.

I refer the hon. Member and my hon. Friend to the answer given to the hon. Member for Mid-Bedfordshire (Mrs. Dorries) on 10 October 2005, Official Report, column 322W.

Estimates for 2004-05 of the numbers of in-work families with tax credits awards, including information on overpayments and underpayments by constituency, based on final family circumstances and incomes for 2004-05 are due to be published on 31 May 2006.

We do not produce statistics separately for child and working tax credits.

Tax Revenues

Matthew Taylor: To ask The Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Government raised in tax revenues from Cornwall in each of the last five years. [72721]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 24 May 2006

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the amount of tax revenue raised in Cornwall per annum. (72721)

The ONS publishes regional estimates of Gross Disposable Household Income (GDHI) which include data for taxes on incomes and wealth paid by households. Regional estimates for expenditure based taxes and duties, for example VAT, are not available. Taxes paid by corporations are also unavailable on a regional basis.

Table A contains estimates of household taxes paid by residents of Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly from 1995 to 2004.

Table A: Taxes generated per annum

	£ million[1, 2]
	Cornwall and Isles of Scilly[3]
1995	510
1996	507
1997	508
1998	581
1999	613
2000	659
2001	700
2002	712
2003	735
2004	803

[1] These data are at current prices. They are not deflated to account for increases in prices over time. Regional data are not available on a constant price (deflated) basis.
[2] These estimates are taken from the most recent release of regional GDHI data, published on May 9 2006.
[3] Data are presented for Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly combined. These data cannot be disaggregated in the two constituent areas.

David Mundell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he plans to change the system by which HM Revenue and Customs measures actual tax revenue receipts from the nations and regions of the United Kingdom. [72814]

Dawn Primarolo: There are no plans to change the system by which HM Revenue and Customs measures actual tax revenue receipts from the nations and regions of the United Kingdom.

Systems for recording HMRC tax revenue receipts are dependent on the administrative arrangement for the various taxes. For example, some taxes are collected from businesses although the liabilities are borne by individuals (e.g. PAYE) and the location of the office making the payment may not be the same as the physical location of the business. One PAYE payment scheme can cover units located throughout the country.

Geographical information is therefore only routinely available for income tax in terms of the liabilities of individuals based on their tax records which include addresses.

Although HMRC hold information on registered company addresses, companies normally operate in many locations and it is not possible to split each company's tax liability between their activity in different geographical areas. Furthermore, corporation tax is charged on total profits of a company, including income received from abroad, and a company may surrender tax losses to another company in the same group anywhere in the United Kingdom.

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) location and (b) cost was of each publicly funded foreign visit that Mr. Paul Sanderson, Director of Data Strategy at the Valuation Office Agency, has undertaken since May 1997. [60102]

Dawn Primarolo: The VOA's records are not maintained in such a way as to enable detailed information relating to particular visits to be extracted. All overseas travel on official business is undertaken in accordance with the Civil Service Code.

VAT Registration

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the adequacy of staff resources in HM Revenue and Customs to process VAT registration applications. [73179]

Dawn Primarolo: HM Revenue and Customs regularly review their staffing requirements at their registration centres, as well as developing new working practices to improve productive capacity and the quality of service they provide to the public.

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many complaints (a) he and (b) HM Revenue and Customs have received about the time taken to process VAT registration applications since 1 March 2006. [73180]

Dawn Primarolo: HM Revenue and Customs estimate that around 170 complaints about the time taken to process VAT registration applications were received between 1 March 2006 and 19 May 2006.

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what target HM Revenue and Customs have set for the time taken to process VAT registration applications. [73181]

Dawn Primarolo: Revenue and Customs aim to process complete and accurate registration applications within 21 days following receipt, although in cases where the application is incomplete and additional information is required, processing times can be longer.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Bangladesh

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make representations to the Government of Bangladesh on its treatment of religious minorities; and whether she is monitoring the performance of Jamaat-e-Islami (JEI) and Isalmi Oikya Jote (IDJ) within the Government of Bangladesh. [72517]

Dr. Howells: The persecution of religious and ethnic minorities including the Ahmadiyyas, Hindus, Christians and indigenous groups is a serious issue in Bangladesh. Our High Commission in Dhaka is actively engaged in promoting human rights in Bangladesh, raises human rights issues with the Government of Bangladesh on a regular basis, and provides funding to non-governmental organisations for human rights programmes. We take all available opportunities to underline the UK's commitment to support human rights in Bangladesh during discussions with senior Government representatives, human rights campaigners and representatives of religious and ethnic minorities, and will continue to do so. During a visit to Bangladesh in November 2005, I underlined the UK's commitment to support human rights in Bangladesh during discussions with senior Government representatives, human rights campaigners and representatives of religious and ethnic minorities. We shall continue to seek out opportunities to raise our concerns.

We take a close a close interest in Jamaat-e-Islami and Islami Oikya Jote and maintain a constructive dialogue with them and all other Bangladeshi parties that participate in the democratic process. We continue to urge the Government and the opposition to engage in constructive dialogue on the key steps to ensure a level playing field, and free and fair and peaceful elections in January 2007 with full participation. We believe that a healthy democracy, improved human rights and a reduction in corruption offer the best route to combating extremism in Bangladesh.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make representations to the Government of Bangladesh on meeting its obligations under the Chittagong Hill Tracts Peace Accord. [72518]

Dr. Howells: A team of EU diplomats visited the Chittagong Hill Tracts in November 2005. Our High Commission in Dhaka led the visit as EU presidency. The team's broad conclusion on this specific subject was that the Land Disputes Resolution Commission was not operating at a level necessary to facilitate effective implementation of the Chittagong Hill Tracts Peace Accord. Problems included the complex procedures for lodging claims. The team found that the Commission was not receiving many cases for adjudication and of these few were being concluded. Local confidence in the Commission was low.

Following the team's visit, the British High Commissioner in Dhaka, as EU presidency, wrote to the Government of Bangladesh on citing the urgent need to improve implementation of the Peace Accord, including the operation of the Land Disputes Resolution Commission. The subject of the Peace Accord was subsequently raised during an EU troika visit at the start of 2006 and at the recent EC-Bangladesh Joint Commission

A member of the British High Commission in Dhaka has just returned from a visit to the Chittagong Hill Tracts. I have asked officials to inform my hon. Friend separately of the findings of that visit.

British Passport Holders

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British passport holders she estimates live overseas; and if she will list the 10 countries where most British overseas passport holders live. [72385]

Dr. Howells: We estimate that the number of British passport holders who live overseas is approximately 4.5 million. This is based on the fact that we issue approximately 450,000 passports each year through our 104 issuing posts and, as a passport lasts for 10 years, we have multiplied this figure by 10 to arrive at our estimate. This figure is different from our estimate that there are approximately 13.1 million British Nationals (BNs) living overseas, based on estimates from each country received in our Consular Annual Return. The difference, 8.6 million, is the number of BNs who we estimate do not hold a British passport.

The top 10 issuing posts are in the following countries:

Country	2004-05 passports issued
Hong Kong	79,881
Australia	61,549
USA	52,746
Canada	23,263
New Zealand	21,590
France	20,624
Spain	19,500
Germany	18,145
South Africa	17,464
Ireland	10,893

Charles Munyaneza

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 6 February 2006, Official Report, column 769W, on Charles Munyaneza, what progress has been made in the investigation of allegations against Mr. Munyaneza. [72658]

Dr. Howells: Officials from the Home Office Immigration and Nationality Directorate War Crimes Unit are investigating the allegations against Mr. Munyaneza. Once the facts are fully established, consideration will be given to the appropriate course of action. We would not wish anyone suspected of genocide in Rwanda to enjoy impunity in the UK.

China

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much the Government have allocated for a British pavilion at the Shanghai Expo 2010; and from what budgets such funding will come. [72406]

Dr. Howells: We are considering the Chinese Government's formal invitation to participate in the Shanghai Expo 2010. As part of that process we are looking at how UK participation might be funded and we are discussing this with a wide range of possible stakeholders including Government Departments, other parts of the public sector, and many private sector companies.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what response the UK Government have made to the Chinese government's undertaking to the UN Human Rights Council; how the proposals made are to be monitored; what the timescale is for their implementation; what assessment she has made of the likely impact of their implementation on Tibetans; and if she will make a statement. [72962]

Dr. Howells: China made voluntary pledges on human rights prior to its election to the UN Human Rights Council (HRC). The HRC is mandated within one year of its first session to set up a system of 'universal periodic review' to assess the fulfilment by each state of its human rights obligations and commitments. The detail of this system of review is not yet determined. However, the Government will expect every member of the HRC, including China, to act fully in accordance with the high standards set by the UN General Assembly resolution which established the HRC, and to take very seriously the responsibility that they will have for the promotion and protection of human rights worldwide. We will continue to look for appropriate opportunities to raise our concerns about human rights abuses in China and Tibet with the Chinese authorities.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government has made representations to the Chinese government to disclose the whereabouts of Gendun Choekyi Nyima; and if she will make a statement. [72964]

Dr. Howells: The Government last raised the case of Gedhun Choekyi Nyima at the last rounds of the UK- and EU-China Dialogues in June 2005 and October 2005. We requested that the Chinese authorities allow a private visit to him by an agreed international observer, and provide information on his religious instruction. Officials from our Embassy in Beijing, on a visit to Tibet with the Foreign Affairs Committee in May 2006, requested information on the whereabouts of Gedhun Choekyi Nyima from the Tibetan Autonomous Region local government. We will continue to raise this case in future contacts with the Chinese government.

Democratic Republic of the Congo

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her most recent assessment is of (a) the situation and (b) stability in the Democratic Republic of the Congo; and if she will make a statement. [72809]

Dr. Howells: The security situation remains fragile in the east of the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC). Civilians continue to suffer abuses by armed groups, including ill disciplined elements within the Congolese army (FARDC).

The UN peacekeeping mission (MONUC) continues to conduct operations to disarm militias and to disrupt the activities of foreign armed groups. We commend the combined efforts of MONUC and the FARDC which resulted in the detention of two prominent militia leaders, Kyunga Matanga and Innocent Kahina, in the last week. We continue to urge regional governments to work together to disarm these groups.

The DRC peace process remains a UK priority and we are committed to promoting forthcoming democratic elections and encouraging the new government to take an inclusive and representative approach.

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans she has to visit the Democratic Republic of the Congo. [72810]

Dr. Howells: Foreign engagements for my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and other Ministers are kept under constant review. It is not our practice to announce such visits until they are firm. Because of the unpredictable nature of world events, final decisions on overseas visits are often not possible until very shortly before the day of travel.

Departmental Staff

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what date Mr Mockbul Ali (a) left the Department in 2005 and (b) was re-appointed to her Department; and in what capacity he was re-employed. [72418]

Dr. Howells: It is not Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) policy to comment publicly on individual members of staff. Appointments to the FCO are made in accordance with the Civil Service Commissioners' Recruitment Code. Information on the code can be found at the following website: www.civilservicecommissioners.gov.uk.

EU Finance

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the value was of each of the fortnightly transfer payments made into the budgets of the institutions of the European Union in 2005. [66128]

Ed Balls: I have been asked to reply.

The figure for the UK's gross contribution, after taking account of the abatement, to the EC Budget in 2005 is shown in Table 3 (page 46) of the "European Community Finances" White Paper which was laid before Parliament earlier today (Cm 6770). The individual payments which the UK made twice per month to the EC Budget in 2005 sum to this figure.

EU-Morocco Agreement

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her voting intentions are at the European Council on the EU-Morocco Agreement; what assessment she has made of the (a) wishes of the Saharawi people and (b) the financial benefits to the Moroccan Army relating to the agreement; and if she will make a statement. [73076]

Dr. Howells: The UK will vote in favour of the EU-Morocco Fisheries Partnership Agreement.

I refer the hon. Member to the replies given to him by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Mr. Bradshaw) on 2 May 2006, Official Report, column 1315W, and 4 May 2006, Official Report, column 1771W.

European Entitlement Card

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether it is her Department's policy to support the introduction of a European entitlement card. [71875]

Mr. Hoon: There are at present no proposals before Council for the introduction of a European entitlement card.

European Union

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will list policy areas in which the Government are involved in discussions about (a) the extension of European Union competences and (b) the removal of the UK's veto. [72703]

Mr. Hoon: There are no discussions of formal proposals under way about the extension of EU competencies or the removal of the UK's veto.

Information Technology

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the (a) originally estimated, (b) most recently estimated and (c) outturn cost was in each of the five largest information technology contracts agreed with outside suppliers over the last five years. [71790]

Mr. Hoon: The information requested is provided in the table.

Contract	Original estimate	Most recent estimate	£ million Outturn
Future Firecrest—Hewlett Packard	183.5	187.5	[1,2]21 .3
Prism—Cap Gemini Ernst and Young	53.1	78	[1,2]58.4
Focus—Fujitsu Consulting	10.5	[3]—	7.5

Biometric Passports—3M UK Plc	6.5	6.5	[1]—

[1] Not yet known.
[2] Spent so far.
[3] Contract ended March 2003.

Iraq

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government have been consulted on proposed reform of police and paramilitaries in Baghdad; what this proposed reform comprises; and if she will make a statement. [72965]

Dr. Howells: The UK takes a close interest in all efforts to reform the police in Iraq. We are aware of the intent by the Iraqi government to reform police structures in Baghdad and we will engage with them on this as their plans develop.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what response the Government have made to the statement by Iraqi Interior Minister Bayan Jabr that the Facility Protection Service set up by the Americans to guard official buildings was responsible for killings; and if she will make a statement. [72966]

Dr. Howells: We are aware of allegations of sectarian and criminal abuses being carried out by various parts of the Iraqi security forces, including the Facilities Protection Service. We condemn any acts of abuse and we have raised our concerns with the Iraqi Authorities at the highest levels.

Israel

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment her Department has made of the compatibility of Israel's Nationality and Entry into Israel Law (Temporary Order) 2003 with obligations not to discriminate under the human rights clauses of the Israel-EU Trade Association Agreement. [73071]

Dr. Howells: We have concerns that Israel's Nationality and Entry into Israel Law (Temporary Order) 2003 will continue to have a detrimental effect on the right to family life for Israeli-Arabs. We will be raising our concerns with the Israeli Government at the next appropriate opportunity.

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the recent ruling of the Israeli Supreme Court in relation to the Nationality and Entry into Israel Law (Temporary Order) 2003 will be considered by the EU authorities as part of the human rights monitoring of the EU-Israel Trade Association Agreement. [73077]

Dr. Howells: Human rights, including minority rights, will be discussed at the EU-Israel Working Group on Human Rights which will meet in June 2006.

Leased Military Bases

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 9 May 2006, Official Report, column 196W, on RAF Wideawake, (1) how many military bases leased to the US Administration worldwide by the UK (a) are and (b) are not subject to rent or charges; [71472]

(2) if she will list the UK military bases worldwide which are leased to the military of other countries for which the UK (a) collects and (b) does not collect rent or charges. [71473]

Mr. Watson: I have been asked to reply.

The Ministry of Defence does not lease UK military bases worldwide to any other country. The subject of rent charged does not therefore apply.

However, the US Government uses the Ascension Islands under the terms of the Bahamas Agreement. They also use the island of Diego Garcia under the terms of Exchanges of Notes in 1966 and 1976.

The presence of the United States Visiting Forces in the UK is governed by the NATO Status of Forces Agreement 1951 and additional confidential arrangements.

Military Technology (Belarus/Iran)

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether she has received representations regarding the possible sale of Russian military technology by Belarus to Iran; and if she will make a statement. [69196]

Dr. Howells: No representations have been received on the possible sale of Russian military technology by Belarus to Iran. The Government take a close interest in jail reports of arms transfers to and from countries whose current activities give rise to issues of potential concern and monitors the situation closely.

Miza Tahir Hussain

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make representations to the authorities in Pakistan to commute the death sentence on Mr. Miza Tahir Hussain; and if she will make a statement. [68935]

Dr. Howells: The Government are opposed to the death penalty in all circumstances, and it is our policy to always make representations against the use of the death penalty and its imposition on British nationals at whatever stage and level is judged appropriate.

We have made a number of high level representations to the Pakistani Government on behalf of Mr. Hussain, at both senior official and Ministerial level. On behalf of my right. hon. Friend the Prime Minister and the whole Government, my right. hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has written to President Musharraf to request that he commute Mr. Hussain's death sentence to an appropriate term of imprisonment.

In addition to these representations, Consular staff both in Pakistan and in London continue to do all they can to support Mr. Hussain. Staff at the our High Commission in Islamabad visit him regularly, most recently on 17 May 2006, and have remained in close contact with Mr. Hussain's family. Staff in London have also followed the case closely and have been in contact with Mr. Hussain's family here.

We will continue to offer our full support to Mr. Hussain and his family. We very much hope our representations will be successful.

Pensions

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many and what percentage of staff in her Department are making additional voluntary contributions to their pension. [73034]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office have 3 per cent. of staff making additional voluntary contributions per month: 193 officers out of a headcount of 6,117. The following is a breakdown of the different schemes:

	Number
Equitable Life	52
Scottish Widows	116
Standard Life	25
Total	193

Portland PR

Mr. Anthony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what meetings officials in her Department have had with representatives of the public relations company Portland PR; what contracts Portland PR has with her Department and agencies for which she has responsibility; and what the nature of the contract is in each case. [70053]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not maintain a central list of such meetings. Civil servants meet many people as part of the process of policy development and business delivery. All such meetings are conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Civil Service Code and Guidance for Civil Servants on contacts with lobbyists and people outside Government.

The FCO has no current contracts with Portland PR.

Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his Department's employer contribution rates to the principal civil service pension scheme are; what assumed rate of return underlies those contribution rates; and what the contribution rate would be if the assumed rate of return was in line with current redemption yield on index-linked gilts. [62016]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to him by my hon. Friend the then Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office (Mr. Murphy) on 29 March 2006, Official Report, columns 1030-31W.

Lebanon

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her US counterpart regarding the US proposal to freeze the assets of those involved in the 2005 assassination of the former Lebanese Prime Minister, Rafiq Hariri; and if she will make a statement. [69178]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary expects to continue the close co-ordination with the US on all aspects of our Lebanon policy. This includes continued discussions, at ministerial and official level on this issue.

UN Security Council resolution 1636 of October 2005 requires that all States shall freeze all funds, financial assets and economic resources owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by individuals designated by the UN International Independent Investigation Commission (UNIIIC) or by the Government of Lebanon as suspected of involvement in the assassination of Mr. Hariri. Neither UNIIIC nor the Government of Lebanon has yet requested such action.

Russian Orchestras

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the cost of visas and work permits for visiting orchestras from Russia; and if she will make a statement. [72172]

Dr. Howells: Visiting orchestras, from Russia, or from elsewhere, may qualify for group multiple entry work permits. Such permits, issued by Work Permits UK, cost £153 per group application and can be issued for a minimum of six months and a maximum of one year. If such a work permit were obtained, each individual would have to apply for entry clearance as a work permit holder. Visas would be issued in line with the validity of the work permit and would therefore cover multiple trips to the UK. The current fee for such a visa is £85.

UKvisas and Work Permits UK are mandated by HM Treasury guidelines to recover their costs without burdening the UK taxpayer. The visa application fee for each category of entry clearance, set in Sterling and usually payable in local currency, is the same, wherever in the world an individual applies.

Sickness Absence

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff in her Department have had (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in each of the last three years. [73030]

Mr. Hoon: In February 2005 the Foreign and Commonwealth Office implemented new arrangements for recording sickness absence. Staff, both in the UK and overseas, now record sick leave absences electronically. While the electronic system was being rolled out during financial year (FY) 2005-06, there may have an element of under reporting. This may account for the significant differences between sickness absences in FY's 2003-04, 2004-05 and those in FY 2005-06. We strongly encourage staff to use the new system and are working on measures to improve the accuracy of the existing data.

	Number
FY 2003-04
Total number of staff having five or more periods of sick leave of less than five days within the given year	231
Four periods of sick absence	153
Three periods of sick absence	288
Two periods of sick absence	598
FY 2004-05
Total number of staff having five or more periods of sick leave of less thin five days within the given year	211
Four periods of sick absence	164
Three periods of sick absence	248
Two periods of sick absence	512
FY 2005-06
Total number of staff having five or more periods of sick leave of less than five days within the given year	153
Four periods of sick absence	94
Three periods of sick absence	161
Two periods of sick absence	343

UN Compensation Committee

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much has been paid to the Government by the United Nations Compensation Committee for distribution to claimants; how much more is expected to be paid to the Government for disbursement to claimants; how many UK claimants (a) have and (b) after including subsequent payments which are due will have received disbursements from the UK Government in excess of

(i) £500,000, (ii) £1 million, (iii) £2 million, (iv) £5 million, (v) £10 million, (vi) £20 million and (vii) £50 million; whether any of the money has been disbursed to (A) the Government itself and (B) agencies of the Government; and if she will make a statement. [72971]

Dr. Howells: To date the United Nations Compensation Committee (UNCC) has made available the sum of US $427,534,014.57 to the Government for payment to UK claimants.

The sum of US $1,036,663.11 in compensation awards remains to be received by the Government from the UNCC for payment to approximately 50 UK claimants.

Nearly 5,000 UK claimants have so far received disbursements of varying amounts from the Government. A breakdown of these figures is not held centrally, and the figures could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The Government have not received any payments itself from the UNCC and nor have any of its agencies.

Vehicle Sharing

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what incentives her Department offers to encourage staff to share vehicles when travelling to work. [73033]

Mr. Hoon: At present the Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not offer any direct incentives to staff to encourage them to share vehicles. However, we do apply policies which contribute to staff using more sustainable methods of transport:

we limit staff parking in the Main Building in London to those who work unsocial hours and those with a disability. The majority of our staff in London use public transport;

we provide cycle racks and changing facilities, with about 220 staff in the UK currently cycling to work;

we currently offer staff an advance of salary to purchase a bicycle for home to office journeys and are looking into upgrading this to a salary sacrifice scheme, enabling staff to obtain cycles at a reduced cost;

with the support of the Civil Service Travel Group, we are launching a campaign on 5 June, World Environment Day, which among other things will highlight to staff the environmental impact of their travel choices;

we provide a minibus service for junior members of staff living in Milton Keynes and Northampton to our rural site in Hanslope Park in Buckinghamshire as only a very limited public transport service is available to the site;

all taxi journeys out of the Hanslope Park site are shared, where it is operationally possible to do so; we are developing a Travel Plan which will be aimed at promoting sustainable modes of travel among our staff with a particular focus on car sharing;

within our flexible working policy we encourage staff to work from home thereby reducing the number of journeys; we encourage the use of video conferencing facilities to limit non-essential travel.

Overseas, travel policy is devolved to posts. Examples of good practice are the enhancement of bicycle travel allowance to encourage people to use bicycles rather than cars, and encourage staff to walk to meetings and to share taxis where possible.

HEALTH

Alzheimer's Disease

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate she has made of how many people have Alzheimer's disease, broken down by (a) strategic health authority and (b) primary care trust; what forecast she has made of the number of new cases each year and incidence over the next (i) 20 and (ii) 30 years; and what estimate she has made of the incidence in other EU countries; [71450]

(2) what assessment she has made of the total cost of (a) treating and (b) caring for people with Alzheimer's disease; and what forecast she has made of the future trends of this figure. [71451]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: No assessment has been undertaken by the Department about the total cost and future trends of treating and caring for people with Alzheimer's disease.

Dementia currently affects over 750,000 people in the United Kingdom (UK). It is estimated that by 2026 there will be 840,000 people with dementia in the UK, rising to 1.2 million by 2050. The Department has not made such an estimate of incidence of Alzheimer's disease in other European Union countries.

Information on the number of people with Alzheimer's disease, broken down by strategic health authority (SHA) and primary care trust (PCT) is not available but information on the number of people in England admitted to hospital where Alzheimer's disease was a diagnosis in SHA and PCTs is shown in the table.

Count of patients admitted to hospital with Alzheimer's disease as a diagnosis by SHA and PCT—Data for all national health service hospitals in England, data years 2002-03, 2003-04, 2004-05

	Data year
	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	Total
SHA total patients	19,442	21,575	24,253	65,270
PCT total patients	19,442	21,575	24,253	65,270

Autism

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children in (a) Torbay and (b) England are diagnosed with autism. [72020]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The number of finished consultant episodes[1] involving a diagnosis of autistic spectrum disorders, for children aged up to 15 in 2004-05, in Torbay primary care trust (PCT) was 83, and in England was 5,888.

Data for England is for all national health service hospitals. Data for Torbay shows figures for children treated by Torbay PCT. The figures do not represent the number of patients, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the year.

[1] A finished consultant episode is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider.

Bone Marrow Donation

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the merits of raising the upper age limit for bone marrow donation; and what plans she has to encourage UK registries to reach a consensus on this matter. [73355]

Caroline Flint: NHS Blood and Transplant is currently considering this issue with the Anthony Nolan Trust and the Welsh Blood Service.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps she takes to monitor the number of people from ethnic minority backgrounds donating bone marrow; [73356]

(2) what plans she has to promote bone marrow donation (a) within schools and (b) to people from ethnic minority backgrounds; and if she will make a statement. [73357]

Caroline Flint: The NHS Blood and Transplant (NHSBT) is responsible for managing the British Bone Marrow Registry (BBMR). The ethnicity of people joining the BBMR is monitored by NHSBT.

The NHSBT is looking into developing a school pack for 16 to 18-year-olds. The pack would be designed to promote all donation opportunities within NHSBT, for example blood, bone marrow, organs, tissues and cord blood. NHSBTs strategy over the coming year is to maintain the BBMR at its current size and focus their recruitment activity towards under represented ethnic groups.

Breast Cancer (Shrewsbury and Atcham)

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were diagnosed with breast cancer in Shrewsbury and Atcham in 2005. [72521]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 24 May 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many people were diagnosed with breast cancer in Shrewsbury and Atcham in 2005.(72521)

The most recent available figures for newly diagnosed cases of cancer registered in England are the year 2003. There were 67 cases of breast cancer diagnosed in Shrewsbury and Atcham county district in 2003.

Cancelled Appointments

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in the Hull and East Yorkshire Hospital NHS Trust area had their appointments cancelled by the trust (a) once, (b) twice, (c) three and (d) more than three times in the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [73580]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Child and Adolescent Mental Health Service

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time was for an appointment with the child and adolescent mental health service in each primary care trust area in 2005-06. [72800]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The requested information is not collected centrally. The child and adolescent mental health service (CAMHS) mapping exercise for 2004 found that just over 50 per cent. of new cases were seen within four weeks, an improvement on the 24 per cent. of new cases in 2002. Similarly, the number of cases waiting over 13 weeks has reduced from just over 50 per cent. to just over 30 per cent.

Children's Wards

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government are taking to improve the provision and quality of care in children's wards in England; and if she will make a statement. [71708]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The national service framework (NSF) for children, young people and maternity services, copies of which are available in the Library, includes a standard on hospital care for children. We expect all hospitals providing services to children to implement these standards, and to consider good practice examples included in the Department's database of emerging practice.

The Healthcare Commission, which is required to pay particular attention to the need to safeguard and promote the rights and welfare of children and the effectiveness of measures taken to do so, is currently concluding an improvement review to assess the quality of healthcare for children in hospital, based on elements of the NSF hospital standard. The NSF is available on the Department's website at www.dh.gov.uk/childrensnsf/.

Commission for Social Care Inspection

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will revise the minimum requirement for care homes and nursing homes to have one announced and one unannounced visit by the Commission for Social Care Inspection per year, so as to require all visits to be unannounced; and if she will make a statement. [71187]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: On 2 March 2006, my hon. Friend the Member for Birmingham, Hodge Hill (Mr. Byrne) announced changes, effective from 1 April 2006, to the Commission for Social Care Inspection (Fees and Frequency of Inspections) Regulations, which govern inspections by the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI).

The new regulations permit the CSCI to inspect any adult social care service at any time, as long as every service is inspected at least once in three years. In the past, CSCI was required to inspect adult services at least twice a year (less frequently for some services). The changes will enable CSCI to work more efficiently, by focusing its efforts on services that need attention, while a small number of the very best adult services will notice a longer period between their inspections. There will be more unannounced inspections and more focus on the experiences of people using the services.

There will be no change to the frequency of inspection of children's services.

Connecting for Health Computer System

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the estimated cost was of the Connecting for Health computer system in each primary care trust. [72024]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 17 May 2006, Official Report, column 1114W.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the responsibilities which her Department has lost since 1997; what the (a) date and (b) destination Department was in each case; what responsibilities the Department has taken on since 1997; and what the (i) date and (ii) source Department was in each case. [71133]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 15 May 2006]: Ministerial responsibilities are set out in the "List of Ministerial Responsibilities", which is updated regularly. A revised version will be published shortly. Copies of previous versions are available in the Library.

Disabled People (Assessments)

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) maximum and (b) average amount of time was that a person with a disability had to wait to be assessed for assistance from social services in Sefton in the last two years. [72185]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information on the maximum and average amount of time that a person with a disability had to wait is not collected centrally.

It is for local social services departments to prioritise assessments for people with disabilities, based on need.

Elderly Mental Infirm Patients

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many homes registered for elderly mental infirm patients there are in England. [69935]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I understand from the Chair of the Commission for Social Care Inspection that, as at 23 March 2006, the latest available figures, the number of care homes registered for older people with mental illness was 1,752.

Ex-service Personnel

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the NHS provides (a) treatment and (b) resources specifically for ex-service personnel following injury or illness while serving in the armed forces. [53840]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 27 February 2006]: The national health service is responsible for the medical care of ex-service personnel, provided the individual is entitled to residency in the United Kingdom, on the same basis as any other member of the public.

Guidance issued by the Department in 2004 states that for those leaving the armed services with significant or debilitating illness or injury, the Ministry of Defence (MOD) should engage with the relevant primary care trust to ensure a seamless transfer of care between that managed by the MOD and that to be provided by the NHS.

The full text of the guidance 'Health Service Guidance covering Arrangements between the Ministry of Defence and the NHS' is available on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/11/37/68/04113768.pdf.

General Practitioners

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many general practitioner surgeries in (a) England and (b) Hackney, North and Stoke Newington are operating appointment booking systems by which appointments may only be booked a certain maximum time in advance. [69200]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department is continuing to work with strategic health authorities to get primary care trusts (PCTs) to ensure their general practices offer patients flexible as well as fast access.

In support of this aim, the Department collects information each month from PCTs on the appointment arrangements operated by their practices. In April 2006, there were 20 practices nationally whose PCTs reported that they do not allow patients to book more than two days in advance. A further 126 practices did not have any appointment system in place.

Hackney, North and Stoke Newington is served by City and Hackney PCT and Haringey PCT. The former reported one practice and the latter two practices without appointment systems. Otherwise, both PCTs reported that their practices allow patients to book ahead.

A new independent national patient experience survey will be introduced in 2006-07 which will incentivise practices making accessing a general practitioner easier, with rewards linked directly with patients' experiences of how their practice is improving.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the operation and regulation of general practitioner out-of-hours services. [71550]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 17 May 2006]: The Department's aim is to ensure that all patients can be assured of high quality, responsive and consistent out-of-hours service wherever they live. We have put in place quality requirements, which set minimum standards for the delivery of out-of-hours care. Primary care trusts and strategic health authorities are responsible for assessing the performance of out-of-hours providers against the quality requirements. The requirements are available at the Department's website at www.dh.gov.uk/outofhours.

The National Audit Office (NAO) report "The Provision of Out-of-Hours care in England" published on 5 May found that 80 per cent. of patients were satisfied with the services provided but that there was room for improvement. We are working with the NAO to bring performance of all primary care trusts up to the levels of the best.

Hospital Appointments

Andrew George [holding answer 15 May 2006]: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2006, Official Report, columns 63-64W on hospital appointments, what other systems send messages through the care record spine; how the costs associated with the spine are accounted for; and what the (a) set-up costs and (b) annual running costs of the spine are. [70972]

Caroline Flint: The spine is the colloquial name given to the national database of key information about patients' health and care. It forms the core of the national health service care records service. It also supports other key programmes of the national programme for information technology, such as choose and book the electronic prescriptions service (EPS), and general practitioner (GP) to GP record transfer, each of them using the spine's messaging capabilities as part of their own services.

Choose and book daily registers in excess of 150,000 message transactions from almost 36,000 referring clinicians, and over 360,000 bookings have been made to date. Nearly 1.2 million prescriptions have already been processed through EPS. Almost 400 general practices are currently generating electronic prescription messages and over 800 general practices have had their systems upgraded in preparation for going live. About 1,500 pharmacies have now had their systems upgraded to enable them to receive electronic prescription messages.

The spine has a number of applications, including:

personal demographics service (PDS), which holds nationally demographic information for every patient covered by the NHS in England, accessible through local systems, and is currently processing message transactions at a rate of over nine million per month; spine directory services, which holds reference data such as users and locations. 220,000 users are now registered; almost 45,000 currently access the system on any given day;

access control framework, which registers and authenticates users, including patients, and provides a single log-in and a record of each professional accessing a NHS care record; transaction messaging system, which processes and routes data messages, for example, from a GP to a hospital or from one GP to another.

These four elements went live on time and to budget in July 2004 to support choose and book.

Other planned applications are:

secondary uses service (SUS), providing the NHS with high quality data to enable investigation of trends and emerging health needs which can inform public health policy. The data extracted will provide information to support performance improvement and assessment, clinical audit and governance, monitoring and benchmarking, surveillance, research and planning; personal spine information service (PSIS), providing personal health information for a patient, for example, drug allergies, details of operations and/or conditions, medication history, pathology, radiology and other results, as well as a summary of contacts with care providers; clinical spine application (CSA), allowing patient information on the spine to be viewed on a personal computer; users will be able to view and update patient information.

The first stage of SUS went live in June 2005 to support payment by results, and is already processing around half a million message transactions a month. PSIS and CSA are due for piloting in 2007, with rollout expected in early 2008.

Picture archiving and communications (PACS) implementations in 2007 include plans to integrate to elements of the spine such as PDS. Currently there are 31 live national programme PACS systems, with over 27 million images stored.

A total of 5,647 GP systems, 253 pharmacy systems, and over 100 patient administrations systems are currently linked to and regularly using the spine. These systems have already achieved compliance, and around 70 or so systems are in test at various development stages across the programme. Interface standards are made available to all suppliers, as well as published more widely. The standards have been developed to reflect internationally-recognised standards, and in conjunction with the programme's major suppliers.

Use of the spine will continue to develop over the life of the programme to deliver the full set of planned patient benefits and clinical improvements to the NHS.

Costs associated with the spine are accounted for by the NHS Connecting for Health agency of the Department which is responsible for delivering the programme and for managing programme contracts. Set-up (capital) costs are incurred in phases as functionality is added to the spine through staged software releases over the implementation period. They are expected to total £335 million on completion. The ongoing service (revenue) costs average around £45 million a year, although this falls in a range between £30 to £60 million in any particular year. These sums are in line with the contracted value of the work concerned, and represent an investment of roughly one pound per NHS patient per year over the life of the contract.

Independent Treatment Centres

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the (a) cost-effectiveness and (b) quality of patient care in independent sector treatment centres. [70108]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Value for money has been ensured by running a robust and competitive procurement process, and by benchmarking procedure prices between contracts and comparing them with the national health service equivalent cost and the prices paid by the NHS to the independent sector under spot purchase arrangements.

The National Centre for Health Outcomes Development (NCHOD) published a preliminary report on four independent sector treatment centre schemes in October 2005. The NCHOD audit is based on some of the 26 key performance indicators that independent sector providers are contractually obliged to collect in order to monitor clinical quality, patient experience, and productivity of services. The preliminary report is available at the NCHOD's website at www.nchod.nhs.uk. A further report is expected later this year, In addition, as announced by the Secretary of State on 26 April, the Healthcare Commission will be undertaking an audit of independent sector treatment centres.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) complication and (b) failure rates are for orthopaedic operations at (i) each independent treatment centre (ITC) and (ii) the NHS hospital closest to each ITC. [70159]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested relating to national health service hospitals is not collected centrally.

Information is collected on the number of untoward incidents at independent sector treatment centres, but the data is not exclusive to complications arising from surgery.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) contract value and (b) location is of each of the independent treatment centre programmes in the second wave. [70160]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We are in the process of a commercial procurement being conducted according to European Union procurement law, and as such we cannot release the value of individual schemes as they are commercially sensitive. The total value of activities procured in phase two is expected to be £550 million.

Invitations to negotiate (ITNs) have been issued for 12 schemes for elective procedures. These are in the following areas:

Northumberland, Tyne and Wear;
Cumbria and Lancashire (two schemes);
Cheshire and Merseyside;
Essex;
West Midland South;
Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire;
Greater Manchester (two schemes);
South London;
Hampshire and Isle of Wight; and Norfolk, Suffolk and Cambridgeshire

We expect a further tranche of ITNs to be issued in the summer.

Negotiations are also under way with bidders on seven regional diagnostics schemes. These are in the following areas:

London;
the North East;
the West Midlands;
the North West;
the South East;
the South West; and the East

IT Reviews

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the statement from her Department of 10 April 2006 that the national programme for IT is under constant review and audit, with what frequency such reviews and audits are conducted; if she will list the bodies that (a) have conducted, (b) are conducting and (c) plan to conduct such reviews and audits; and if she will place in the Library a list of required actions that have resulted from those reviews and audits conducted. [69654]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 9 May 2006]: The national programme has been subject from its inception to the Office of Government Commence (OGC) Gateway process. Gateway reviews have been, and continue to be, undertaken at each of the standard stages throughout the development of every project within the programme, and of its cluster-based deployment activity from initiation to live running. A similar annual and ongoing programme of audit reviews has been and continues to be carried out by the Department's internal auditors. A National Audit Office (NAO) value for money study into choice at the point of referral which reported in January 2005, involved close scrutiny of the work of the national programme and specifically the choose and book programme. The report on a further NAO study into wider aspects of the programme has yet to be published, and this has included an independent review of programme management capability. In addition, the programme's own quality management function undertakes a broad range of reviews and audits of specific aspects of programme, cluster and supplier activity on an ongoing basis.

A number of independent reviews have been commissioned under contract, including one commissioned from McKinsey to inform the approach before the start of the programme, and from other suppliers to establish the value for the national health service and taxpayer achieved through the contracts and to examine specific aspects such as disaster recovery. In addition, there is ongoing review by transparent discussion with key stakeholder groups including the British Medical Association and through consultation initiated by the care record development board.

OGC Gateway reports and other reports have been provided in confidence in order not to impair the value of the advice they contain and to protect commercial confidentiality. We have no plans to publish the outcome of these reports. Given the number of reviews and audits concerned, extraction of recommendations in each case could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she intends to commission an independent audit of the National programme for IT in the NHS. [71438]

Caroline Flint: The National programme is already the focus of regular and routine audit, scrutiny and review. It has been subject from its inception to the Office of Government Commerce Gateway process. Gateway reviews have been, and continue to be, undertaken at each of the standard stages throughout the development of every component project within the programme, and of its cluster-based deployment activity from initiation through to live running. A similar annual and ongoing programme of audit reviews has been, and continues to be, carried out by the Department's internal auditors.

A National Audit Office (NAO) value for money study into choice at the point of referral, which reported in January 2005, involved close scrutiny of the work of the national programme and specifically the choose and book programme. The report on a further NAO value for money study into wider aspects of the programme has yet to be published, and this has included an independent review of programme management capability.

In addition, the programme's own quality management function undertakes a broad range of reviews and audits of specific aspects of programme, cluster and supplier activity on an ongoing basis.

A number of independent reviews have been commissioned under contract, including one commissioned from McKinsey to inform the approach before the start of the programme, and from other suppliers to establish the value for the national health service and taxpayer achieved through the contracts and to examine specific aspects such as disaster recovery. Ongoing review is also encouraged by transparent discussion with key stakeholder groups including the British Medical Association and through consultation initiated by the care record development board.

We remain confident that the technical architecture of the national programme is appropriate and will enable benefits to be delivered for patients, and value for money for the taxpayer, without further independent scrutiny.

Junior Doctors

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the consequences of the Association of University Teachers action short of a strike on the final qualification of medical students in June 2006; and what arrangements she is making to ensure that NHS junior doctors' posts can be filled on 1 August 2006. [72340]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It is a matter for higher education institutions to consider how best they can minimise the adverse effects on students of the current dispute, including making contingency arrangements for exams and assessment.

The dispute will not have a great impact on graduating medical students because their assessments will be conducted by clinical academic staff (including some national health service staff with honorary academic appointments) who, if they belong to a trade association, are normally British Medical Association members.

Postgraduate deans are working closely with their heads of medical schools to monitor the situation.

Long-term (Neurological) Conditions Framework

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how the Government are measuring implementation of the national service framework for long-term (neurological) conditions; and what progress has been made in implementation since it was published. [72719]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department is coordinating a range of activity to support national and local implementation of the national service framework (NSF) for long-term neurological conditions. This includes:

working with key national health service, social care, voluntary and independent sector stakeholders, as well as service users and carers, to identify and address key issues in neurological services and the stakeholders' role in implementation;

ensuring that other key delivery programmes, most especially the White Paper "Our Health, Our Care, Our Say" and the long-term conditions strategy help deliver key NSF objectives; and work to support local delivery, including regional implementation workshops, a web-based getting started pack and self-assessment tool for services through the Care Services Improvement Partnership to provide practical help to local health and social care organisations.

Progress on implementation will be measured in a number of ways, including:

research studies commissioned as part of a national research initiative to underpin implementation of the NSF, to provide baseline data needed to measure the subsequent impact of the NSF; work to develop a national minimum dataset for long-term neurological conditions; implementation of clinical indicators developed as part of the better metrics programme;

and work with the Healthcare Commission and Commission for Social Care Inspection to identify ways of monitoring and inspecting progress.

Long-term Care

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent reports she has considered on the cost of long-term care; and if she will make a statement. [72842]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department welcomed the publication of "Securing Good Care for Older People", the King's Fund review led by Sir Derek Wanless into long-term social care for older people in England.

The report is an important starting point that we need to feed into our work on the 2007 comprehensive spending review. To inform this work we are bringing in external experts. We are delighted that Sir Derek Wanless has agreed to be one of these experts.

Myalgic Encephalomyelitis

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what representations she has received on retaining ring-fenced funding for primary care trusts for the provision of myalgic encephalomyelitis support services; and if she will make a statement; [72908]

(2) what steps her Department is taking to support people with myalgic (a) encephalomyelitis and (b) encephalopathy; [72909]

(3) what funding the Government have allocated to continuing specialist services for myalgic (a) encephalomyelitis and (b) encephalopathy; and if she will make a statement; [72910]

(4) what advice her Department plans to issue to primary care trusts on funding for specialist services for myalgic (a) encephalomyelitis and (b) encephalopathy in 2006-07; [72911]

(5) what support her Department provides for patients with myalgic (a) encephalomyelitis and (b) encephalopathy who are (i) bed and (ii) house bound and unable to attend the newly developed specialist services; and if she will make a statement. [72912]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: People with chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis/encephalopathy (CFS/ME) have access to the full range of health and social services support as outlined in the national service framework for long-term conditions (the NSF). This includes:

Joint health and social care plans that change over time and consider other needs such as housing, transport, benefits, education, careers advice, employment and leisure;

Access to a broad range of services, including rehabilitation, equipment, accommodation and personal care to help people live as independently as possible at home; and

Support to help people to work or take up other vocational opportunities.

The £8.5 million budget to establish new CFS/ME services has supported the development of 13 clinical network co-ordinating centres (CNCCs) and 36 local multidisciplinary teams (LMDTs), as well as 11 specialist children and young people teams across England.

The role of the LMDTs is to lead the development of services within primary and secondary care to support general practitioners and other relevant professionals in the care of the patient. In this respect, LMDTs are expected to develop networks of local domiciliary services, including health education and social services, to support those more severely affected, including those who are housebound and bed bound and are therefore unable to access services.

Funding of CFS/ME services from 2006-07 is included within the resource allocations to primary care trusts (PCTs). PCTs have been informed that this funding would be included within their baseline allocations.

Ministers and departmental officials regularly receive representations seeking dedicated funding for a range of specific diseases and conditions, including CFS/ME. These include a number of questions from Members, which appear in the Official Report, for example on 17 May 2006, column 1108W and 6 March 2006, column 1198W.

Midwifery

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which midwife-led maternity units are (a) within a primary care trust, (b) within an acute trust, (c) within another setting or (d) independent; [72757]

(2) which (a) primary care trusts, (b) acute trusts and (c) other NHS bodies have midwife-led maternity units on their premises. [72758]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 23 May 2006]: This information is not collected centrally.

Neonatal Units (London)

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average occupancy rates were in each London neonatal unit in each of the last three years. [72372]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not collect the information in the format requested. Data are for occupancy of neonatal beds and is collected only at trust level rather than at neonatal unit level.

The average daily occupancy rate for neonatal intensive care beds for national health service organisations in London, 2002-03 to 2004-05 is shown in the table.

Department of Health form KH03

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) neonatal intensive care cots and (b) special care cots in London were not being used due to a lack of staff in the latest period for which figures are available. [72373]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to change the number of neonatal nurses in London. [72374]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is for the local national health service to ensure that staff numbers are at a sufficient level to meet the needs of the local population.

Neurology

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment her Department has made of the accuracy of diagnosis of hereditary neuropathy with liability to pressure palsies in NHS patients; and what estimate her Department has made of the number of undiagnosed cases; [71182]

(2) what steps she is taking to increase awareness of hereditary neuropathy with liability to pressure palsies in the medical profession; [71183]

(3) what plans she has to change the number of (a) consultants and (b) nurses qualified to diagnose and treat hereditary neuropathy with liability to pressure palsies; [71184]

(4) what Government support is available to those who are diagnosed with hereditary neuropathy with liability to pressure palsies and their families; and if she will make a statement. [71185]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The detail of the content of curricula for doctors in training and maintaining skills and knowledge are professional matters.

Those most severely affected by neurological disorders, including those that are genetic in origin, have access to the full range of health and social services support as outlined in the national service framework for long-term conditions. This includes:

Joint health and social care plans that change over time and take other needs into account such as housing, transport, benefits, education, careers advice, employment and leisure;

Access to a broad range of services including rehabilitation, equipment, accommodation, personal care to help people live as independently as possible at home; and

Support to help people to work or take up other vocational opportunities.

We have not assessed the accuracy of diagnosis, and cannot practically estimate who carries the defective gene.

We have no plans to develop new clinical specialties in this area. Our efforts are focused on securing an adequate work force—including clinicians, therapists and medical scientists—to meet the current and forecast needs of all patients.

NeuroMuscular Centre

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding has been allocated to the NeuroMuscular Centre at Winsford for the next five years. [72835]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The NeuroMuscular Centre at Winsford is a charity that has not applied for, nor been allocated, any departmental funding.

Non-emergency Treatment

Miss Widdecombe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) on what basis Mr. Edward Atkinson has been told that non-emergency treatment at Queen Elizabeth Hospital, King's Lynn, will not be available to him in the future; what categories of offender are not eligible for non-emergency treatment at Queen Elizabeth Hospital King's Lynn NHS Trust; what measures are in place to ensure Mr. Atkinson receives appropriate treatment; and if she will make a statement; [73264]

(2) how many people serving sentences for (a) murder, (b) rape and (c) grievous bodily harm have been told they may not attend national health service hospitals for non-emergency treatment. [73265]

Andy Burnham: The guidance framework on the withholding of national health service treatment from violent and abusive patients was issued by the Department in 2001 following on from the cross-government zero tolerance campaign introduced in 2000, to tackle violence in the NHS. The guidance highlighted that the withholding of NHS treatment from violent and abusive patients will always be a last resort, but should be an option available to managers and staff working in all NHS trusts, with certain exemptions including those requiring urgent medical treatment or under the age of 16. The guidance made explicit that all NHS trusts develop local policies on withholding treatment from violent and abusive patients in consultation with independent legal advice on the terms and application of such a policy; and trusts must also have in place clear defensible policies and procedures outlining the circumstances where the withholding of treatment is justifiable.

Information is not collected on the number of prisoners who have had NHS treatment withheld as a result of NHS policies on protecting staff from violence and abuse.

Since then the Government created the NHS Security Management Service (NHS SMS) in April 2003. The NHS SMS has launched a comprehensive strategy, which has replaced work previously undertaken under the NHS Zero Tolerance campaign. The NHS SMS strategy places a particular emphasis on the introduction of preventative measures to stop violent incidents from occurring in the first place. In 2004, the NHS SMS issued guidance covering the application of this strategy in the context of tackling the whole issue of non-physical assaults on NHS staff.

The West Norfolk Primary Care Trust is advising Mr. Atkinson's general practitioner so that alternative routes to treatment can be found through the "Patient Choice" agenda.

Osteoporosis

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps she is taking to improve the information and support offered to people with osteoporosis; [69597]

(2) what assessment she has made of the impact the proposals in the White Paper, "Our Health, Our Care, Our Say", will have on (a) the management of osteoporosis, (b) choice for osteoporosis patients and (c) the number of osteoporosis fractures; [69598]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department has not assessed the impact of the White Paper, "Our Health, Our care, Our Say" on osteoporosis services or the number of osteoporotic fractures.

"Our Health, Our care, Our Say" will build on the progress that has already been made in the management of a range of long-term conditions, giving people greater choice and control over the care they receive and ensuring that they are treated sooner, closer to home and earlier in the course of their disease.

PRODIGY guidance which is available at www.prodigy.nhs.uk offers advice on the management of a range of conditions and symptoms, including osteoporosis, that are commonly seen in primary care. The guidance is advisory and has been developed to assist healthcare professionals, together with patients, make decisions about the management of the patient's health.

The Department has also asked the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to produce a clinical guideline on the assessment of risk fracture and prevention of osteoporotic fractures in individuals at high risk.

Osteoporosis can often be prevented by maintaining a healthy lifestyle and, through a range of initiatives, the Department is raising awareness of the importance of regular exercise, a balanced diet, smoking prevention/cessation and a responsible attitude to alcohol consumption in the prevention of a range of conditions, including osteoporosis.

Oxford Radcliffe Hospitals Trust

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department plans to take to safeguard patient care at the Oxford Radcliffe hospitals trust following the prospective job losses. [73345]

Caroline Flint: It is the responsibility of primary care trusts and strategic health authorities to analyse their local situation and develop plans, in liaison with their local national health service trusts and primary care providers, to deliver high quality NHS services and take action to recruit the appropriate staff required to deliver these services.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she will reply to Question 65812 from the hon. Member for Manchester, Withington, on the 'Choose and Book' system, tabled on 20 April 2006. [72070]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A reply was given on 17 May 2006, Official Report, column 1094W.

Petitions

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what arrangements are in place in her Department for responding to petitions presented in the House and forwarded to her. [72395]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A ministerial reply is sent in response to all petitions where there are contact details for a lead organisation or individual.

Petitions are then kept for a period of years.

Portland PR

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what meetings officials in her Department have had with representatives of the public relations company Portland PR; what contracts Portland PR has with her Department and agencies for which she has responsibility; and what the nature of the contract is in each case. [65088]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not maintain a central list of such meetings. Civil servants meet many people as part of the process of policy development and business delivery. All such meetings are conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Civil Service Code and Guidance for civil servants on contacts with lobbyists and people outside Government.

The Department does not have any contracts with Portland PR and does not hold records of contracts let by its agencies.

Section 64 Grants

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the section 64 grants for 2006-07 that have been paid by her Department, broken down by (a) recipient and (b) the sum paid; and if she will make a statement. [71149]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information will be available on the Department's website at www.dh.gov.uk/section64 at the end of May 2006.

Self-harm

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent estimate she has made of the number of children and young people who self-harm, broken down by (a) sex and (b) ethnic group. [71248]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information is not collected in the form requested. In 2002, a survey by the Office for National Statistics of 12,000 five to 15-year-olds found that 1.3 per cent. had tried to self-harm.

Spinal Injuries

Roger Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment her Department has made of the impact on NHS costs of ensuring appropriate (a) rehabilitation and (b) care of spinal cord injured people in specialised settings. [71915]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department has not made an assessment of the impact on national health service costs of ensuring appropriate rehabilitation and care of spinal cord injured people in specialised settings.

The Department does not routinely collect detailed costings for services provided by the NHS for specific conditions. It is the responsibility of primary care trusts to determine the provision and appropriate funding of local services based on the needs of their populations. With regard to specialised services, primary care trusts are expected to collaboratively commission them through their membership of the eight specialised commissioning groups and 26 local specialised commissioning groups covering England.

Student Nurses

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment her Department has made of the employment prospects for student nurses graduating in 2006. [73343]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The national health service still needs newly qualified nurses to replace those who retire or take career breaks. However, there is now more competition and new staff may not always be able to find the job they want in the location they want and may need to be more flexible.

Strategic health authorities and NHS trusts are working proactively to identify opportunities for newly qualified staff within their workforce plans.

Third Sector Funding

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the review of departmental funding to the third sector has been completed. [72824]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 23 May 2006]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 24 April 2006, Official Report, column 967W.

TRANSPORT

Aircraft Safety

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received from (a) the Independent Pilots Association and (b) the British Airline Pilots Association on potential under-reporting of contaminated air events on UK registered aircraft. [70760]

Gillian Merron: The information is as follows:

(a) The Department checked with IPA who confirmed they had not sent representations. However, they have since written to Sir Roy McNulty, chairman of the CAA, on 12 May 2006, about contaminated air events and the Department has been sent a copy. This letter mentions, among other matters, potential under-reporting.

(b) The Department has useful working contacts with BALPA. Both DFT and BALPA want to develop an authoritative understanding of cabin air quality issues. The Department has therefore commissioned the independent Committee on Toxicity (COT) to conduct a comprehensive evidence review of any health risks in cabin air. The formal COT meeting will be held in public later this year. BALPA has contributed actively to this process.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what assessment he has made of the impact on human health of exposure to pyrolised synthetic jet engine oils; and in what year the Department first received a representation on this matter; [70761]

(2) what epidemiological surveys have been carried out on the long-term impact of repeated exposure of pilots to chemicals, with particular reference to potential neuropsychological impacts; [70764]

(3) what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the effects on health of exposure on commercial aircraft to pyrolised synthetic jet engine oils (i) dermally and (ii) via inhalation. [70765]

Gillian Merron: The Department has commissioned the independent Committee on Toxicity (COT) to conduct a comprehensive evidence review of any such health risks in cabin air. The formal COT meeting will be held in public later this year. The Department will be guided by the COT conclusions and recommendations.

It is not possible to state the exact year in which the Department first received representations on this matter, although there is a record of a parliamentary question on 11 December 2001 from Paul Tyler MP, and the issue was covered in the House of Lords Select Committee on Science and Technology into the issue of Air Travel and Health which reported in November 2000. In its evidence to that Committee BALPA said it had raised concerns with the then Department for the Environment, Transport and the Regions.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what information is held by the Civil Aviation Authority in relation to contaminated air incidents on British Aerospace BAE 146 aircraft between 28 January and December 2005. [70762]

Gillian Merron: The Civil Aviation Authority has 10 records in relation to incidents between 28 January and December 2005. These records are set out in a table, which has been placed in the Libraries of the House today.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the effect on airline safety of the inhalation by a pilot of the organophosphate tricresyl phosphate; and if he will make a statement. [71819]

Gillian Merron: In 2004 the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) published safety research into fume events that concluded that

'no single component or set of components can be identified which at conceivable concentrations would definitely cause the symptoms reported in cabin air quality incidents'.

But acids were found which could act as irritants, and as a result CAA brought in specific troubleshooting and maintenance actions to minimise the potential for fume events.

Since then the Department has commissioned the independent Committee on Toxicity (COT) to conduct a comprehensive evidence review of toxic risk in cabin air. The formal COT meeting will be held in public later this year. We shall be guided by the COT conclusions and recommendations.

Beverley Integrated Transport Plan

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the East Riding of Yorkshire council will receive confirmation of funding for the Beverley Integrated Transport Plan; and if he will make a statement. [73514]

Gillian Merron: The Department is currently considering East Riding's Business Case for this scheme alongside the Yorkshire and Humber region's advice on its priorities for major transport schemes within the indicative regional funding allocations announced in July 2005. The response is expected to be announced later this year.

British Airports Authority

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what provisions exist for Special Administration in the event that the British Airports Authority (BAA) or its holding company should go into administration or receivership; and what arrangements are in place to ensure that BAA's airports continue to operate in such an eventuality. [73294]

Gillian Merron: There is no provision for Special Administration in the event of any UK airport operator going into administration or receivership. Any such provision could only be introduced by primary legislation. The Government liaise closely with BAA, and other airport operators, to understand their plans for managing major risks such as this.

Buses

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when consultation was (a) started and (b) completed on the civil enforcement of bus lane contraventions outside London under the Transport Act 2000; and if he will make a statement. [73315]

Gillian Merron: The Department wrote to consultees on 10 July 2002 seeking comments by 6 September 2002 on the draft regulations concerning the arrangements for imposing civil penalty charges for bus lane contraventions, the handling of representations, the procedure for adjudication and the procedure for enforcement when a penalty charge is not paid. A summary of the comments received was published on the DfT website on 15 November 2004.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with bus operators on (a) the reduction in services in Huddersfield and Yorkshire and (b) the introduction of free transport for the over 60s. [68854]

Gillian Merron: Ministers meet with bus operators on a regular basis and discuss a range of issues. The Confederation of Passenger Transport (CPT), the main body representing the bus industry, participates in the Department's Concessionary Fares Working Group along with representatives from local government. There have been no specific discussion with operators in Huddersfield and Yorkshire about services or concessionary travel.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps the Government is taking to improve the skills of bus drivers; and what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Education and Skills on this subject. [68855]

Gillian Merron: Over recent years, the Sector Skills Development Agency (SSDA) has taken forward the task of creating Sector Skills Councils (SSCs) across various sectors of industry. In October 2004 the SSDA awarded a licence to GoSkills, which is now the SSC for passenger transport. GoSkills is taking a leading role in addressing the skills needs of the passenger transport industry, including those of bus drivers.

The Department is providing funding of £0.75 million over the period 2005-06 to 2007-08 in support of Go Skills' work. It works closely with the Department of Education and Skills on these matters.

Government, bus operators and local authorities have been jointly considering the issue of staff recruitment and retention in the industry through a Bus Partnership Forum Task and Finish Group. The forum will shortly be publishing a best practice guide as a result of this work.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average wage is of a bus driver in (a) West Yorkshire, (b) Leeds, (c) Huddersfield and (d) London. [69156]

Gillian Merron: The information available is set out as follows.

Average gross hourly pay for bus and coach drivers

Yorkshire and Humberside other than South Yorkshire	6.42
London	10.05

Office for National Statistics Labour Force Survey Autumn 2004

Consultants

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the companies which were paid consultancy fees by his Department in 2005-06; how much each was paid; and what each of the companies was used to accomplish. [69695]

Gillian Merron: Tables providing this information for the central Department and its Executive Agencies have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

The central Department and its Agencies currently have separate accounting systems. This means that it has not been possible in all cases to provide the level of detail requested in relation to actual expenditure. The central Department and the DVLA have only been able to provide this information in relation to committed spend (i.e. orders raised and contracts awarded during the period in question). Figures are based on the latest revised OGC definition of consultancy.

Cycling Proficiency

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to encourage local authorities to ensure a cycling proficiency scheme is made available in all schools. [73121]

Derek Twigg: We are already doing so.

With the help of over 20 road safety and cycling organisations including ROSPA, the CTC, local authorities and Cycling England, we have developed a new child cycle training standard to replace the old style cycle proficiency test.

To support the new standard we have through our advisory body Cycling England awarded over £1 million to increase the number of accredited trainers and training centres able to teach the new National Standard. Grants and bursaries are available for trainers and training centres to teach the new standards together with a national training helpline and consultancy service for local authorities.

The Department for Transport encourages local authorities to apply for the grants and bursaries available and work with us to improve both the quality of cycle training our children receive and to make it more widely available in schools.

Damages

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport further to his answer of 10 January 2006, Official Report, column 489W, on damages, if he will make a statement on the background to the incidents where no breach of confidentiality would occur. [69541]

Gillian Merron: Details of the damages claim where there is no breach of confidentiality would occur are listed as follows:

	Date	£
HA	16 November 2004	1,350,000	Personal injury Drainage flooding	The claimant who suffered an accident and sustained injuries	Personal injury Drainage flooding - A motorist suffered an accident on a trunk road caused by standing water Settled in line with legal advice

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what incentives his Department offers to encourage staff to share vehicles when travelling to work. [73117]

Gillian Merron: Car sharing is one of a number of measures called "Smarter Choices", which the Department and its Executive Agencies are promoting to encourage our staff and the wider population to travel more sustainably.

Through the Local Transport Planning system and other initiatives, we encourage local authorities to set up authority-wide car share schemes and promote car sharing as part of site specific workplace travel plans.

The Highways Agency are implementing workplace travel plans on the strategic road network and piloting the use of dedicated car share lanes.

Initiatives aimed at staff include:

car sharing only parking bays;

promotion of car sharing for business travel;

in-house training courses;

car park management measures that combine intelligent traveller information with Co_2 economy data, and, with both external and internal parties, examining the development of electronic car sharing tools.

Dredging

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport who pays the cost of dredging (a) for a new port development and (b) for existing ports. [72577]

Dr. Ladyman: The costs of dredging in ports are met by the harbour authority or terminal operator in the port concerned. In the case of new port developments, if a new authority is being established it will meet the costs of any dredging unless otherwise agreed with another harbour authority.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Ageny's's policy is on providing information to a court about a defendant. [72917]

Dr. Ladyman: Prior to a court hearing the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency will provide the court with information relating to any current driving endorsements. This is provided to the courts via an electronic printout of the driver record.

Equal Pay

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) women and (b) men are employed in the Department; what the average pay was for (i) women and (ii) men in the Department in (A) 1997 and (B) 2006; what women's average pay is as a percentage of men's average pay; and how many (1) women and (2) men the Department employed in each of the last five years, broken down by grade. [67781]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Transport was formed in 2002 and consists of a central Department and seven Agencies.

A table has been placed in the Libraries of the House listing the information requested for Department for Transport (Centre). Information with regards to Agencies can only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

The Cabinet Office collects and publishes annually statistical information on the Civil Service by Department. These include data on the employment of men and women.

Information on the numbers of women and men employed in the Civil Service broken down at 31 December 2005 is available in the Library and on the Civil Service website at:

www.civilservice.gov.uk/management/statistics/employment/index.asp

European Maritime Safety Agency

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he has seen a draft of the EU Commission White Paper entitled préparer la mobilité de demain; and what his policy is towards an expansion of powers to the European Maritime Safety Agency proposed therein. [72576]

Dr. Ladyman: The European Commission has yet to present this White Paper to the EU member states. The Government supported the establishment of EMSA and is content to see it develop its role where it can enhance the activities of member states to improve maritime safety without usurping the competence and responsibilities of the member states.

Illegal Taxi Drivers

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many illegal taxi drivers he estimates are operating in (a) England, (b) the North East and (c) the Tees Valley; [71086]

(2) how many people have been (a) prosecuted for and (b) convicted of driving a taxi illegally in (i) England, (ii) the North East and (iii) the Tees Valley in each year since 1997. [71087]

Gillian Merron: The Department has made no estimate of the extent of unlicensed taxi operation either in England as a whole or in particular local areas. The degree of unlicensed operation is best assessed at the local level by local taxi licensing authorities, making use of their local knowledge, as part of their responsibilities for enforcement of the law within their area.

However, relevant data on prosecutions and convictions is held by the Court Proceedings Database of the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. The following tables show the numbers of offenders prosecuted for, and found guilty of, offences under the Town Police Clauses Act 1847 (this is wider than just illegal plying for hire) and section 167 of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994[1].

[1] Taxis in England (outside London) must be licensed by the relevant local authority under the Town Police Clauses Act 1847. Individuals who attempt to provide a taxi service without being properly licensed normally do so by contravening section 45 of the 1847 Act by illegally plying for hire or section 167 of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 by touting for business.

Level Crossings

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many incidents on level crossings there were in each of the last three years; and how many incidents in each year resulted in a fatality. [72467]

Derek Twigg: This information can be found in the annual reports on railway safety published by HMRI which are available from the House Library. The Office of Rail Regulation plans to publish HMRI's annual report on rail safety for 2005 on 12 July 2006.

London Underground

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how long the trial of detector equipment at Canary Wharf underground station will last; and what further trials of detector equipment on the transport infrastructure are planned. [71704]

Derek Twigg: As the Secretary of State said in his written statement to the House of Commons on 16 May 2006, the passenger screening trial at Canary Wharf will last for about four weeks starting on 17 May 2006. We plan to have the trial operational on 20 days throughout that period. A further passenger screening trial at Greenford station and work with detection dogs were also announced on 16 May 2006. These trials will start as soon as practicable after the end of the Canary Wharf trial, with the exact date yet to be fixed. The trial at Greenford, like that at Canary Wharf, is planned to last for 20 days spread over a four week period.

M25

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he plans to re-surface the slip roads on the M25 motorway between junctions 28 and 31; and if he will make a statement. [73314]

Dr. Ladyman: Resurfacing of the M25 junction 28 anticlockwise exit and entry slips roads is planned for mid-June 2006. The M25 junction 28 clockwise exit slip road will also be resurfaced later this financial year.

There is no resurfacing of the other slip roads planned between junctions 29 and 31 as they are still in a safe and serviceable condition.

Milton Keynes South Midlands Growth Area

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what consideration (a) his Department and (b) Network Rail have given to improving the frequency of services and the infrastructure of the rail network from the Milton Keynes South Midlands growth area to and from the West Midlands region following the projected population increase in the growth area. [72985]

Derek Twigg: Part of the West Coast Main Line Modernisation Project, led by the Department of Transport, will include significant enhancements to the whole route, and in particular, will provide capacity increases at Milton Keynes and Rugby stations. Network Rail aims to finish the work by the end of 2008.

Much work has already been carried out, including, for example, platform extensions, allowing 12 car trains to operate between Northampton, Milton Keynes and London.

The Department for Transport is currently considering the future pattern of train services to be provided over the route, including the new West Midlands franchise, taking account of the impact of the growth area, and expects to consult publicly on its proposals during the course of this summer. The Department has published a progress report on the West Coast Main Line Strategy which sets out the latest position regarding the pattern of inter-city services on the route.

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy to establish Birmingham International Airport as the main long haul aviation hub for Milton Keynes; and what assessment he has made of the policy outcomes of such a development. [73068]

Gillian Merron: The Government's 'The Future of Air Transport' White Paper supported growth at Birmingham International Airport, identifying the need for a second runway around 2016. Birmingham Airport's recently published draft master plan also proposes an extension to the existing runway, by 2012, which will enable the airport to offer a full network of direct long-haul services.

Ministerial Travel

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on how many occasions (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers in his Department have stayed overnight in (i) five-star, (ii) four-star and (iii) three-star hotels in each of the last three years. [69081]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Transport and its agencies do not record the star ratings of hotels used by staff or by special advisers. Minimum accommodation standards are set out in staff handbooks, and equate approximately to a three star rating. Any more detailed information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

MOT Computer System

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many days have elapsed on average between the receipt of a letter to the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency requesting compensation and the payment of compensation to garage owners to compensate them for problems they have experienced with the new MOT computer system. [72914]

Dr. Ladyman: The average time between the receipt of a letter to the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency requesting compensation and the receipt of compensation by the claimant is 75 days. On average, 45 of these 75 days are spent clarifying and validating the claim.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much money has been paid in compensation to garage owners to compensate them for problems they have experienced with the new MOT computer system. [72915]

Dr. Ladyman: In total, £7,095 has been paid to Vehicle Testing Stations as compensation for disruptions to service of the MOT computerisation system since rollout (18 April 2005) to date.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many garage (a) owners and (b) managers have written to the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency requesting compensation for problems they have experienced with the new MOT computer system. [72916]

Dr. Ladyman: At the time of writing, The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) has received requests for compensation from 253 of 18,300 Vehicle Testing Stations for disruptions to service of the MOT computerisation system. 158 of these claims relate to the incident of 25 April when emergency testing was invoked.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the expected expenditure of the MOT computerisation programme was (a) from the inception of the project to the commencement of rollout and (b) for annual maintenance costs. [72942]

Dr. Ladyman: For part (a) of the question I refer the hon. Member to the answer of 16 June 2005, Official Report, columns 532-33W.

(b) The annual maintenance costs of the MOT computerisation programme are £645,000 at 2006-07 levels.

Oystercard

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress is being made towards the introduction of the Oyster Card system to overland trains for commuters to London; and if he will make a statement. [73120]

Derek Twigg: Agreement has been reached with the Mayor of London to deliver compatibility between the Oyster Card system and the Integrated Transport Smartcard Organisation (ITSO) standard, in London. An element of this agreement will ensure that rail stations in London zones 1-6 currently without access to some Oyster products will be part of the completed system. Oyster will not be extended beyond the London boundary, but bidders for the new South Western rail franchise are being required to set out how an ITSO smart ticketing system could be introduced across its franchise area from London to the South Coast.

Private Members' Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list those Private Members' Bills in respect of which his Department has adopted a policy of neutrality in each session since 2001-02; and if he will make a statement. [72472]

Gillian Merron: Since the Department for Transport was formed in May 2002 it has not adopted a neutral stance on any Private Member's Bill which received its second reading.

Private Office Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what percentage of his private office staff is (a) male, (b) female and (c) disabled. [69087]

Gillian Merron: In Department for Transport Private Offices (including the parliamentary and correspondence branches), the staff breakdown is 46 per cent. male, 54 per cent. female and 2 per cent. are disabled. The declaration of a disability is voluntary.

Private Sector Fund Recipients

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the 10 non-public sector entities that have received the largest total sum of payments from the Department in each of the last five years. [71812]

Gillian Merron: The information requested is tabled as follows:

Public Consultations

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many public consultations his Department undertook in 2005; and what the cost was (a) in total and (b) of each consultation. [72869]

Gillian Merron: The Department published 36 consultations during the calendar year 2005. The Department also regularly consults key stakeholders on a less formal basis through meetings or seminars, to help inform policy development. Information on the cost of each consultation and the total cost of all consultations could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Consultations are made available on our web site: http://www.dft.gov.uk.

Public Transport

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to encourage bus and train operators to recruit more women into the transport sector. [68859]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Transport facilitates the Women's Transport Network (WTN) to provide a forum for women to contribute to policy development in the transport field and to encourage women to enter and progress in the transport industries. However the recruitment of staff is a commercial matter for individual bus operators and train operating companies to manage.

Railways

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to facilitate the re-opening of the Leamside Line in Durham for (a) passenger and (b) freight use. [72805]

Derek Twigg: There are no plans by the Department for Transport to facilitate the re-opening of the Leamside Line in Durham for passenger and freight use. It would be for the local authority working in partnership with Network Rail, to develop a suitable business case which demonstrates value for money.

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department is taking to ensure the re-opening of the Bletchley-Bicester section of the East-West rail link; and if he will make a statement. [72983]

Derek Twigg: The Government provided funding, through the Growth Areas Fund, for the recent "East-West Links Study", which looked at the overall need for improved east-west transport links in the Milton Keynes-South Midlands growth area. The Government welcomed the publication of the study report by the "East-West" consortium of local authorities on 11 April.

The Government are now providing funding support to the Consortium for further work to establish the costs, benefits and opportunities for funding the scheme. Among the questions being addressed by this work are the scope to fund the scheme from land developer contributions, and whether Milton Keynes Central station could and should be served by "east-west" services. The Consortium expect to complete this further work later this year.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many Sunday rail services have been cancelled in each of the last five years, broken down by train operator; and if he will make a statement. [71896]

Derek Twigg: The information requested is not available in the format requested and would incur disproportionate costs in resources to obtain.

Information is however available for 2005 at an aggregate level for all days in the week as follows:

Train operating company	Percentage of total trains planned
Arriva Trains Wales	1.11
Central Trains	1.89

Network Rail (Data for the period 9 January 2005 to 8 January 2006 inclusive)

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average cost was of constructing a mile of (a) railway line and (b) light rail line in each year since 1997. [71995]

Derek Twigg: This information is as follows:

(a) The only significant heavy railway line constructed in England and Wales since 1997 is the channel tunnel rail link and details of the costs can be seen on the Department's website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_railways/documents/page/dft_railways_035482.hcsp

(b) Light rail—costs per mile vary from scheme to scheme. The National Audit Office report "Improving public transport in England through light rail" published in April 2004, listed the construction costs per kilometre for schemes and a copy is in the House Libraries.

Resilience Exercises

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the resilience exercises carried out on (a) the transport infrastructure and (b) Eurotunnel since 11 September 2001. [72352]

Derek Twigg: Transport resilience exercises are regularly carried out across the transport infrastructure by transport operators and by agencies of government or in combination. Details are not held centrally by the Department. The value of multi-level exercises was shown clearly on 7 July 2005 and on other occasions when an emergency response has been required.

Since 11 September 2001, 22 emergency response exercises have been held involving Eurotunnel. These have been run variously in conjunction with Kent police, other relevant authorities, and the UK and French Government.

Road Pricing

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the percentage increase in motoring costs required to provide an effective disincentive to motorists to drive on congested roads. [71874]

Dr. Ladyman: The Feasibility Study of Road Pricing in the UK, which reported to the Secretary of State in July 2004 (a copy of the study is available in the Library of the House), considered a number of different scenarios for a national road pricing scheme. The study presents estimates of the potential reduction in congestion arising from a number of illustrative 'revenue neutral' and 'marginal social cost' pricing scenarios. The analysis completed for the study suggested that a 'revenue neutral' scenario of national road pricing, could lead to an overall reduction in congestion of 41 per cent. on all roads and a 48 per cent. reduction on urban roads.

Roads

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the latest cost estimates are for (a) road schemes in the Targeted Programme of Improvements, (b) road schemes approved under the local transport plans and (c) road schemes approved under the Community Infrastructure Fund. [71862]

Dr. Ladyman: I have arranged for three tables to be placed in the House Library. The tables provide information on latest cost estimates for (a) schemes in the Targeted Programme of Improvements, (b) local major road schemes, costing over £5 million, that have been approved for funding through the local transport plan programme and (c) road schemes approved under the Community Infrastructure Fund. Funding allocated for road schemes under the Community Infrastructure Fund are for fixed amounts and are time-limited to 2006-07 and 2007-08.

Rolls-Royce Engines

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the compliance with (a) health and (b) safety standards of the nickel super alloy content of the Rolls-Royce (i) RB211-535C and (ii) E4 engines. [71201]

Gillian Merron: The Civil Aviation Authority assessed the engine designs and the manufacturer's production processes against the relevant airworthiness safety standards applicable to them at the time applications for safety approvals were made.

The Rolls Royce RB211-535 and E4 series engine designs and the manufacturer's engine production processes were assessed against safety standards established in British Civil Airworthiness Requirements documents. These were superseded first by European-wide Joint Aviation Authorities Airworthiness Requirement documents and subsequently by Commission Regulation (EC)1702/2003, one of the implementing rules made under Regulation (EC) 1592/2002 which set up the European Aviation Safety Agency.

Ryanair

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what action is being taken by his Department to ensure that Ryanair complies with all the existing applicable rules when it operates from airports within the UK; and what meetings officials have held with Ryanair to discuss these matters. [70865]

Gillian Merron: If information is received which suggests that a foreign airline has committed a significant breach of UK legislation this will be followed up with both the airline and its regulatory authority and could result in prosecution or the refusal of permission to operate to the UK.

The Department is not aware of any ongoing issues of non-compliance by Ryanair with UK legislation governing aviation safety. Therefore no specific action has been taken and no specific meetings have been held with Ryanair.

South East Manchester Multi-modal Study

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment his Department has made of the implementation of the South East Manchester Multi-Modal Study objectives by the constituent local authorities and partner organisations; and if he will make a statement. [72652]

Gillian Merron: Following the response to the South East Manchester Multi-Modal Study in March 2002, an Implementation Group was set up, chaired by the Government Office for the North West. The objectives of the Group include the co-ordination of the delivery and development programmes for the multi-modal strategy, as well as to monitor and review progress.

Many of the objectives of SEMMMS are progressed through the authorities Local Transport Plan. An assessment of Final (Second) Local Transport Plans is currently being undertaken by the Department and Government Office for the North West. The monitoring of LTP integrated transport objectives and targets, as agreed by local authorities, are carried out through Annual Progress and Delivery Reports.

Ministers are currently considering the scheme appraisal for the SEMMMS Relief Road and advice from the North West region on the priority it attaches to the conventional funding element of this and other schemes in the North West. Ministers plan to make an announcement in due course.

Southampton Tunnel

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made in upgrading the Southampton tunnel to take larger containers; what the cost of the project has been to date; and what the estimated final cost will be. [72578]

Derek Twigg: Over the next few months Network Rail will be undertaking work to refine cost estimates and develop designs to gauge clear Southampton tunnel.

Any work to upgrade the tunnel is part of a wider project to allow the efficient passage of trains carrying large, 9'6" containers from Southampton to the West Coast Main Line. The overall cost of the core scheme from Southampton to the West Coast Main Line is estimated at circa £57 million.

Staff Surveys

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many staff surveys have been conducted in his Department in each of the last three years. [72872]

Gillian Merron: The Department has carried out the following staff surveys in each of the last three years.

	1 April to 31 March
	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
DfT(C)	1	0	1
HA	1	0	1
DVLA	1	1	1
DSA	0	1	0
VGA	1	0	1
GCDA	—	—	0
Total	5	2	4

Staff Team Building

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the total cost was of (a) staff away-days and (b) staff team-building exercises in his Department in each of the last three years. [69085]

Gillian Merron: The information requested is not collected centrally in the form requested and could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Terrorist Threats

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many terrorist threats there have been on average per month on (a) the Channel Tunnel and (b) Merseyrail since 11 September 2001. [72841]

Derek Twigg: Due to security considerations it would not be appropriate to comment on threats to specific elements of national transport infrastructure.

If and where threats to transport infrastructure arise, the Department for Transport has security procedures in place and works closely with partner organisations to respond appropriately.

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans the Government have to increase security against terrorist attacks on UK airlines. [72957]

Gillian Merron: The security measures in place, both for aviation in the UK and for UK airlines overseas, are kept under constant review and are adjusted as and when necessary, including in the light of any change in threat assessments.

Transport Improvements (Hackney, North and Stoke Newington)

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what transport improvements for which his Department is responsible there have been in Hackney, North and Stoke Newington constituency in the past 12 months; what further improvements are planned; and if he will make a statement. [66133]

Gillian Merron: The Department provides Transport for London with a block grant, which doubled over the last five years, to £2,181 million 2005-06. The Mayor is responsible for providing a Transport Strategy for London while the boroughs are required to provide Local Implementation Plans which set out how they will contribute to the Mayor's strategy.

In addition, the Department funds improvements to rail services in London. This investment includes the current preparatory rail bridge building work for the East London Line Extension to Dalston. The project will provide three new stations for North Hackney and Stoke Newington. Further investment is planned for improvements to the North London Line (NLL) which have been confirmed by the Mayor when he takes control of the line in 2007.

These include new, higher capacity, accessible trains replacing the existing fleet and a £25 million station enhancement programme of NLL stations. The funding of further rail enhancements across the country will be considered as part of the development of the High Level Output Specification for the railway to be published in Summer 2007.

Transport Infrastructure Projects

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with the Institution of Civil Engineers on improvements to the management of transport infrastructure projects; and when such discussions took place. [62693]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport has had no discussions with the Institution of Civil Engineers (ICE) on improvements to the management of transport infrastructure projects.

Officials are aware of ICE work in the transportation sector, and from time to time contribute to this work both a regional and national level.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Security (Abingdon Street Barrier)

Mr. Amess: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon representing the House of Commons Commission (1) if the Commission will arrange for a police box at the steel barrier in Abingdon Street to protect police and security guards on duty from adverse weather conditions; what representations he has received from (a) the Police Federation and (b) other representatives of security guards and police officers about the installation of a police box; and if he will make a statement; [73295]

(2) whether police officers and security guards working at the steel barrier in Abingdon Street are provided with waterproof clothing; and if he will make a statement. [73296]

Nick Harvey: Arrangements at the Corus barriers outside the Palace of Westminster are kept under regular review. The Metropolitan Police have received representations from the Police Federation and others about the health, safety and welfare of the security team who staff the barriers. The final arrangements at the barriers are still under consideration and improvements may result in a reduction in the numbers of staff on duty. Waterproof clothing is already supplied. Following a review, improved protective clothing has been identified and is due to be supplied shortly.

TREASURY

Average Incomes

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his most recent estimate is of the average income per person in Coventry, South. [73463]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 25 May 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about average income per person in the Coventry South constituency. I am replying in her absence. (73463)

The ONS published estimates of household income for regions and local areas of the UK on 9 May 2006. Coventry South is within the NUTS[1] 3 area of Coventry. This is the most detailed level of geography for which estimates are produced.

Table A contains estimates of total incomes per head and Gross Disposable Household Income (GDHI) per head for Coventry.

[1] Nomenclature of Units for Territorial Statistics

Table A: Coventry NUTS3

	Total income[2]	£ per head[3] GDHI[3]
1995	11,118	7,318
1996	11,467	7,615
1997	12,113	8,099
1998	12,868	8,370
1999	13,447	8,789
2000	14,401	9,348
2001	15,106	9,897
2002	15,428	10,145
2003	16,004	10,515
2004	16,790	10,847

[1] Population measure is based upon mid-year estimate for total population

[2] All household income including employers' social contributions, imputed social contributions, social benefits and other current transfers received.

[3] Gross disposable household income (GDHI) is the amount of money that households have available for spending or saving after deductions and expenditure associated with income, eg taxes and social contributions, and provision for future pension income.

Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 8 March 2006. [67130]

John Healey: The Treasury has no record of having received the letter. Having obtained a copy, I have now written to the hon. Gentleman.

Criminal Justice

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment his Department has made of the Home Office against its public service agreement targets for (a) reducing the fear of crime and (b) increasing confidence in the criminal justice system; and if he will make a statement. [73555]

Mr. Timms: The Treasury's assessment of the Home Office's progress against public service agreement targets can be found on the Treasury website under www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/performance This shows the progress against departmental PSA targets as detailed in annual departmental reports, published each spring, and the Department's autumn performance report.

The latest figures on the Home Office's performance against its PSA target to 'Reassure the public, reducing the fear of crime and antisocial behaviour, and building confidence in the criminal justice system without compromising fairness', show that the Department is on course or ahead of target in all components of the target.

Further information about the targets and the latest progress assessment can be found in the Home Office's autumn 2005 progress report which is available on the Home Office website.

Economic Growth

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the prospects for future economic growth in the United Kingdom economy. [73721]

John Healey: The Government set out its latest assessment of UK economic developments and prospects in Financial Statement and Budget Report 2006 (HC 968) on 22 March 2006.

European Commissioners

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many times he has met (a) Commissioner McCreevy and (b) Commissioner Kroes since their appointment to the European Commission. [73572]

Ed Balls: Treasury Ministers and officials have conversations and discussions with a wide range of organisations and individuals as part of the process of policy development, analysis and delivery.

As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of every such meeting.

European Union

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) net contribution to the EU budget, (b) net contribution to the EU institutions and (c) net expenditure transfers (i) were in each year from 2001-02 to 2005-06 and (ii) are forecast to be from 2007-08 to 2012-13; and what assessment he has made of how each would change should (A) Romania and (B) Bulgaria's accession to the EU be delayed for a year. [73736]

Ed Balls: The UK net contributions to the EC budget and net payments to EC institutions for the period 2001-02 to 2007-08 are presented in Table 3.2 of the European community finances White Paper (Cm 6770) published on 24 May 2006. Net expenditure transfers over this period are in Table 1.1 of the public expenditure statistical analyses (Cm 6811) published on 15 May 2006. 2007-08 is the final year of the current public expenditure planning cycle and forecasts beyond this period will be included in the comprehensive spending review 2007. For estimated net contributions to the EC budget over the next financial perspective I refer the hon. Member to the reply to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove) on 31 January 2005, Official Report, column 399W.

The Government have not produced estimates for the financial implications of delaying the accession of Romania and Bulgaria.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the Answer of 6 March 2006, Official Report, column1099W, on EU membership, if he will list the studies undertaken by his Department. [68758]

Ed Balls: My earlier answer gave details of the Treasury's work on this issue.

Insurance Mediation

John McDonnell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to review the implementation of the EU Directive on insurance mediation in the UK. [73753]

Ed Balls: The financial services authority (FSA) assumed responsibility for the regulation of general insurance on 14 January 2005. The FSA's regime served to implement the EU's insurance mediation directive in the UK.

The FSA began a review of the effectiveness of the general insurance regime in April 2006. This review will include seeking feedback from firms and consumer research.

Separately, the Treasury will review early in 2007 whether travel insurance sold as part of a package should be subject to FSA regulation. The IMD only requires the regulation of travel insurance if sold on a stand-alone basis.

John McDonnell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what representations he has received on the impact of the EU directive on insurance mediation on small and medium-sized (a) enterprises traders and (b) freight forwarders in the UK; [73754]

(2) what assessment he has made of the impact of the implementation of the EU directive on insurance mediation on small and medium-sized enterprises traders and freight forwarders in the UK. [73755]

Ed Balls: The financial services authority (FSA) assumed responsibility for the regulation of general insurance on 14 January 2005. The FSA's regime served to implement the EU's insurance mediation directive in the UK.

The FSA will begin a review of the effectiveness of the general insurance regime in April 2006. This will include seeking feedback from firms and consumer research.

The impact of the IMD implementation on the UK's freight forwarding sector has been the subject of discussions between the British international freight association (BIFA) and HM Treasury. The Government are confident that the UK has correctly translated the IMD into UK legislation.

Public Sector Reform

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the Prime Minister's announcement on 15 May 2006 that he is to play a lead role in public sector reform, when he plans to outline his proposals; what his remit is in relation to the Home Office; how he will co-ordinate this role with that of the Home Secretary; and if he will make a statement. [73535]

Mr. Timms: As the Prime Minister set out, the Chancellor remains responsible for public spending. The forthcoming Comprehensive Spending Review will represent a long-term and fundamental review of government expenditure across all Government Departments, including an assessment of the future trends and challenges for public services.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has held with the Home Secretary following the Prime Minister's announcement that he is to take a lead role in public service reform. [73538]

Mr. Timms: The Chancellor regularly meets with Secretaries of State and other Ministers to discuss a wide range of issues.

Tax Credits

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in Denton and Reddish constituency received overpayments of (a) child tax credit and (b) working tax credit for each year since 2003. [73131]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to the hon. Member for West Suffolk (Mr. Spring) on 24 May (72637).

Tax Revenue

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Government raised in tax revenue in each of the last five years. [73464]

John Healey: Total public sector current receipts in the last five financial years are included by the Office for National Statistics in "Public Sector finances: Supplementary (Quarterly) Data", which was last published on 27 April 2006.

This publication can be accessed on-line via the following link: http://www.statistics.gov.uk/STATBASE/ssdataset.asp?vlnk=8885&More=Y.

Taxation

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect on tax revenue in the financial year 2006-07 of the decisions (a) to remove the 0 per cent. starting rate of corporation tax, (b) not to up-rate the corporation tax thresholds in line with inflation and (c) the removal of the tax exemption for employer-provided laptop computers. [62450]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 30 March 2006]: The information is as follows:

(a) The decision to remove both the 0 per cent. starting rate and the 19 per cent. non-corporate distribution rate of corporation tax was announced in the 2005 Pre-Budget Report. The effect on tax revenue in the financial year 2006-07 of this decision may be found at: http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/20F/2F/bud06_cha_134.pdf in Table A2 under Building a Fairer Society: tackling tax motivated incorporation.

(b) There is no requirement to increase the corporation tax profit limits in line with inflation. The upper profit limit (currently £1,500,000) is tied through regulations to the limit below which companies no longer pay corporation tax through quarterly instalments, so increasing it would have an impact on the timing of tax receipts from some companies. Given this, it is not possible to estimate accurately the impact of increasing the profit limits on tax receipts in advance of setting the transitional rules that would be required for these companies.

(c) The decision to remove the tax exemption for employer provided computer equipment was announced at Budget 2006. The effect of this decision on Exchequer revenue in the financial year 2006-07 may be found at: http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/20F/2F/bud06_cha_134.pdf in Table A1 under Building a Fairer Society: Duties and other tax changes.

Vehicle Sharing

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what incentives his Department offers to encourage staff to share vehicles when travelling to work. [73039]

John Healey: The Treasury is located in Westminster and is well served by public transport. Very few staff travel to work by car and no special incentives exist to encourage car sharing except when public transport is disrupted.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Avian Influenza

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the chief veterinary officer's report on the H5 avian influenza exposure in October 2005, on what date the antibodies were found; where they were found; how many birds revealed antibodies; and whether the geese were (a) (i) imported and (ii) homebred and (b) kept for (A) consumption and (B) eggs. [72619]

Mr. Bradshaw: Samples taken from a number of geese on 31 October 2005 from an informal bird rescue centre in Somerset tested positive for antibodies to H5 avian influenza. Three geese had positive antibody titres to H5N2 and 10 geese had positive antibody titres to H5N7.

The geese, sourced locally, were not kept for consumption or egg production.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the chief veterinary officer's report on the avian influenza exposure in October 2005, what tests were undertaken on wild birds in the area; what the results were of these tests; whether antibodies showed the birds were exposed to the H5 virus; whether there was evidence the birds had recovered from infection; and what assessment he has made of the length of time H5 viruses have been spread between wild birds. [72620]

Mr. Bradshaw: No additional tests were undertaken in response to the findings of H5N2 and H5N7 antibodies in geese in October 2005. A veterinary inquiry was instigated and clinical examination revealed that the geese were healthy. Further sampling and laboratory tests did not isolate avian influenza viruses and the presence of infection with avian influenza viruses was ruled out. It is likely that the positive antibody result was due to previous exposure to low pathogenic avian influenza (LPAI) viruses.

It is not uncommon to find LPAI viruses in wild birds and any event of unusually high wild bird mortality in the area would have been investigated through virological testing.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 May 2006, Official Report, column 833W, on avian influenza, how many approved commercial landfill sites there are; what estimate his Department has made of the maximum disposal capacity they provide; and if he will make a statement. [72832]

Mr. Bradshaw: My officials are working with the Environment Agency to review the capacity of suitably permitted landfills for the disposal of infected poultry carcases in the event that there is insufficient capacity at incineration and rendering plants.

Based on the capacity as assessed following the foot and mouth disease outbreak in 2001, my officials advise that there would be more than sufficient capacity in commercial licensed landfill to dispose of the projected number of poultry carcases.

Part III of the "Exotic Animal Disease Generic Contingency Plan", published by Defra in December 2005, sets out the structures and systems that would be implemented in the event of an outbreak of avian influenza and describes the Government's capability to provide the resources to implement the control policies. The Plan is available on the Defra website:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/footandmouth/pdf/genericcp.pdf

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 May 2006, Official Report, column 833W, on avian influenza, what measures his Department has in place to prevent wild birds from scavenging from (a) on-farm burial sites and (b) commercial landfill sites; and if he will make a statement. [72833]

Mr. Bradshaw: There are no plans for the on-farm burial of poultry carcases in the event of an outbreak of avian influenza. In the event that commercial licensed landfill was used for carcase disposal, this risk would be mitigated by ensuring that carcases were immediately covered with other material to a depth of at least 1 m and that at the end of each working day, carcases were covered by at least 2m of cover material.

All landfill sites used for carcase disposal will have Pollution, Prevention and Control (PPC) conditions in place as well as a bespoke bird deterrent/management plan drawn up and implemented by bird control experts from the Central Science Laboratory.

Part III of the "Exotic Animal Disease Generic Contingency Plan", published by Defra in December 2005, sets out the structures and systems that would be implemented in the event of an outbreak of avian influenza and describes the Government's capability to provide the resources to implement the control policies. The Plan is available on the Defra website:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/footandmouth/pdf/genericcp.pdf

Bovine TB

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs why the pilot study of the gamma interferon bovine tuberculosis test was abandoned; which part of the Department (a) designed and (b) implemented the pilot study; and what assessment has been made of the process. [70989]

Mr. Bradshaw: The pilot study of the gamma interferon blood test was halted in October 2005 because the slow recruitment rate of herds (195 herds against a projected requirement of 600) meant that the project was unlikely to be completed before 2012. Given the significance of the bovine tuberculosis problem, we believed this was too long to wait.

Defra's Animal Health Division and the Veterinary Laboratories Agency (VLA) designed the study, which was implemented by the VLA and the State Veterinary Service.

Some useful lessons have been learnt from the process, and these are being applied as we develop new policies for the wider roll out of the gamma interferon test.

Derby/London (Emissions)

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will estimate the amount of carbon emissions produced by a train journey from Derby to London. [68800]

Ian Pearson: The Derby to London train journey is 193 kilometres, which produces approximately 2.7kg of carbon dioxide emissions in total.

European Landfill Directive

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made with changes to the effects of the European Landfill Directive in its application to pet cemeteries since May 2005; and if he will make a statement. [71951]

Mr. Bradshaw: Pet cemeteries are landfill sites and their operation is subject to the requirements of the Landfill Directive. Previously they operated under waste management licences issued by the Environment Agency (EA), but under the Landfill Directive, operators of pet cemeteries will now instead be required to apply for a pollution prevention and control permit.

DEFRA has been working very closely with the EA to ensure that increases in the cost of regulation are kept to a minimum. The EA has classified pet cemeteries as a low risk activity which will attract lower application fees and subsistence charges.

DEFRA officials are currently working with the EA to investigate the scope for taking an alternative approach to the regulation of pet cemeteries. We expect to announce a proposal for their future regulation very shortly.

Gamebirds

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many commercial hatcheries are listed in the Great Britain Poultry Register in respect of each species. [70781]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is set out in the following table:

Species	Number of premises that hatch birds
Chicken	271
Turkey	54
Ducks	173
Geese	92
Other	603
Unknown	2
Total number of premises registered as being a commercial hatchery	649

This information was produced using data from the Great Britain Poultry Register taken on 12 May 2006. All data are subject to change.

The GB Poultry Register allows people to register themselves as a commercial hatchery without necessarily indicating which species they hatch, hence the unknown category. It is also possible that premises may have registered themselves as having an incubator capacity but have not registered that they use this for commercial purposes.

The GB Poultry Register captures data under the Avian Influenza (Preventive Measures) (No2) Regulations 2005. Registration is mandatory for premises with 50 or more birds kept for commercial purposes. In addition, the Register also includes voluntary registrations for non-commercial premises and those where fewer than 50 poultry are kept.

The completeness of the data is dependent on the level of compliance with the legislation as specified above. Owners are required to de-register if they no longer keep poultry.

Only the major poultry hatchery species i.e. chicken, turkey, duck, goose, have been listed. All other species have grouped in the 'Other' category.

Two premises in the GB Poultry Register had registered as a commercial hatchery. However, they indicated in a free text field that they did not hatch anything. These premises were removed from this report.

GM Crops

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) when he plans to begin the consultation on the co-existence arrangements for genetically modified crops; and if he will make a statement; [69567]

(2) what plans he has to ensure maximum public involvement in the consultation on the co-existence arrangements for genetically modified crops. [69568]

David Miliband [holding answer 9 May 2006]: We plan to issue a consultation paper in due course. This will be sent to relevant stakeholder groups and it will also be available on the Defra website. We will encourage everyone who wants to make a contribution on this subject to do so.

Ministerial Flight

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will estimate the amount of carbon emissions produced by the use of the RAF Queen's Flight to fly from his constituency to London. [68799]

Ian Pearson: The rules on the use of special flights are set out in Travel by Ministers. The annual lists of overseas travel by Cabinet Ministers costing over £500 set out when special flights are used, and the purpose of each trip. Copies are available in the Library. The then Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs made use of 32 Squadron to attend EU Council meetings in Brussels and Luxemburg.

Carbon dioxide emissions arising from 32 Squadron flights are included in the Government's carbon offsetting commitment. Carbon emissions arising from the use of these flights have been recorded and offset in the same way as the use of scheduled flights since April 2005.

Nuclear Waste

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department has undertaken into the environmental effects of deep-burial of nuclear waste. [71634]

Ian Pearson: The independent Committee on Radioactive Waste Management, which was appointed by the Government in November 2003, has considered existing research into the environmental effects of the disposal of nuclear waste.

The Committee recently announced an integrated package of draft recommendations for the long-term management of the UK's radioactive waste, which are subject to further consultation with interested parties. The report when completed will be available on www.corwm.org.

The Environment Agency also maintains a small research and development programme.

Perfluorooctane Sulphonate

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice and guidance (a) the Department, (b) the Environment Agency, (c) the Government's Advisory Committee on Hazardous Substances and (d) the Drinking Water Inspectorate has issued on the use of perfluorooctane sulphonate. [70022]

Ian Pearson: DEFRA, and the Government's Advisory Committee on Hazardous Substances have not issued any guidance on the use of perflurooctane sulphonate. However, a European Commission proposal for a Directive (76/769/EC), relating to restrictions on the marketing and use of perfluorooctane sulphonates (PFOSs) is currently being negotiated. While the UK welcomes the proposals we do not feel that they go far enough, and the UK is now aiming to strengthen these proposals by working through a co-decision process at EU level.

We have reached agreement with member countries of the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) on the hazard profile of PFOS see www.oecd.org/dataoecd/23/18/2382880.pdf We are also working to have PFOS agreed as a persistent organic pollutant and subject to international controls under the Stockholm Convention on Persistent Organic Pollutants and the UNECE Protocol on Persistent Organic Pollutants. This is a longer-term aim.

The Environment Agency has not issued advice or guidance on the use of PFOS. It has however requested that it be phased out on the basis of its toxicty to the environment and humans.

While the Drinking Water Inspectorate (DWI) has not issued specific advice or guidance on the use of PFOS, it has provided advice to organisations involved in the response to the Buncefield fire on the regulation of PFOS in drinking water. A value of three micrograms per litre was provided by the DWI to the Three Valleys water company as reflecting the best available evidence on which the water company can base its judgment of wholesomeness and safety, and the actions, if any, that it may need to take to safeguard drinking water quality going forward.

The current national advice provided by the Health Protection Agency is that it appears unlikely that a lifetime's consumption of drinking-water containing concentrations of up to three micrograms of PFOS per litre would harm human health.

Pheasants

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many pheasants have been imported from France in each of the last 10 years; whether bird imports are still permitted; and if she will make a statement. [61045]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 27 March 2006]: The EU-wide system for recording the number of livestock imported into each member state, TRACES, does not differentiate between different types of game birds. Further, there are inconsistencies in the way that data can be inputted and interpreted, so the available figures are not reliable. However, the database does show that, to date, no game birds have been imported into the UK from France in 2006.

Representatives from the shooting industry in this country estimate that around three million pheasants are imported every year into the UK.

If avian influenza was confirmed or even strongly suspected in wild birds or poultry, then trade in live birds from the affected zone would stop.

REACH Directive

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to ensure that the competent authority for the registration, evaluation, authorisation and restriction of chemicals regulations in the UK will be suitably equipped in terms of staff and expertise to take account of the occupational health issues arising from the regulations. [72366]

Ian Pearson: DEFRA is considering a number of options for the competent authority for the registration, evaluation, authorisation and restriction of chemicals (REACH) in the UK. In evaluating these options consideration will be given to whether they have the ability to address the wide range of issues arising from the regulations, including their capability in terms of staff and expertise to ensure adequate protection of both human health and the environment. As REACH applies without prejudice to existing health and safety legislation, the chosen competent authority will need to demonstrate an ability to work closely with Health and Safety Executive who have overall policy and enforcement responsibility for occupational health legislation.

Water Charges

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) standing charges, (b) cost per litre and (c) other charges levied by each water company in England and Wales are to individual households (i) with and (ii) without water meters. [73324]

Ian Pearson: The following tables summarise the charges that are levied by water companies on households both with and without water meters.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Braille/Audio/Large Print Publications

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the provision of Braille books, newspapers and magazines in libraries in (a) England, (b) the North East, (c) Tees Valley and (d) Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland constituency. [73658]

Mr. Lammy: DCMS is working in conjunction with English local authority library services to recognise the position of those with sight problems. There is no ring-fenced core central Government funding for public libraries, but there is an expectation that a 'comprehensive and efficient' library service as set out in the Public Libraries and Museums Act 1964, will address the needs of visually impaired people. This includes the provision of alternative format materials.

We are not aware of any published regional or local data regarding provision of Braille. While there are no holdings of Braille books at Middlesbrough borough council or Redcar and Cleveland borough council, both can quickly source Braille content from the National Library for the Blind on request. Both authorities offer alternatives to Braille such as Supernova, which enhance access to both mainstream on-line and printed content (via scanner). Middlesbrough also partner with "Action for the Blind" to obtain Braille content typically within 24 hours.

Circuses

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment her Department has made of the impact of legislative reforms to the licensing regime on circuses (a) prior to the introduction of the Licensing Bill to Parliament, (b) during the passage of the Bill through Parliament and (c) since the Licensing Act 2003 received Royal Assent. [71609]

Mr. Woodward: The Department has made no specific assessment of the impact of the legislative reforms to the licensing regime on circuses. We are currently monitoring and evaluating the impact of the Licensing Act 2003 nationally, but it is too early as yet to draw firm conclusions.

My predecessor and the Department's officials have met the Association of Circus Proprietors of Great Britain and other circuses representatives, the Arts Council and Equity, on several occasions. We will continue to work with circuses in order to help them to maximise the benefits of the licensing reforms.

Drought Orders

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what discussions she has had with representatives of the tourism, hotel and conference industry in London and the South East on measures which could be taken to mitigate the effect on the industry if drought orders were to be introduced; [72806]

(2) what assessment she has made of the likely impact of a drought order in the Thames Water region on the number of tourists coming through London and its airports; [72807]

(3) when she last met the Mayor of London to discuss the possible impact of drought orders on London's tourist, conference and hotel industries. [72808]

Mr. Woodward: VisitBritain and the UK tourism industry, including the Mayor of London who has responsibility for tourism in London, have strong and well rehearsed mechanisms in place for dealing with events which can impact on the visitor economy; my Department is closely involved in these arrangements.

VisitBritain is consulting partners in London and the South East, such as the Tourism Alliance and Tourism South East, about the possible implications for the tourism industry of drought orders. The information and advice from this exercise will be discussed with the Secretary of State and myself as necessary. We see no need as yet for a meeting with the Mayor of London to discuss possible drought orders but will keep this, along with other potential actions, under review as circumstances demand.

Football

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to her answer of 8 May 2006, Official Report, column 48W, on football, how the 92 Premier and Football League Club Chairmen responded to the previous letters from the Minister for Sport. [73418]

Mr. Caborn: In my previous letters to the 92 Premiership and Football League Chairmen I asked them to remind their players of the issue of fair play and of the responsibilities they have in being positive role models for the game.

I was not expecting responses, but of the few that did respond, and in my ongoing conversations with the football club Chairmen, they have been broadly supportive of my views.

Gambling Act

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the Gambling Commission will issue its guidance on compliance and enforcement responsibilities in respect of the Gambling Act 2005. [73328]

Mr. Caborn: The Gambling Commission is aiming to consult in the next few weeks on its arrangements for licensing, compliance and enforcement under the Gambling Act 2005. It plans to publish its finalised guidance in the autumn 2006. Copies of the published guidance will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Information Technology

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent on information technology (IT) sourced from outside her Department in each of the last five years; who is responsible for such projects in her Department; and what IT (a) expertise and (b) qualifications they possess. [71801]

Mr. Lammy: My Department has fully outsourced IT so the figures given represent the total expenditure on information technology.

	£ million
2001-02	22.8
2002-03	32.8
2003-04	42
2004-05	55.6
2005-06	64.6

Responsibility for information technology projects rests with the Department's CIO who has over 20 years experience of working in information technology.

Licensed Premises

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many licensed premises in (a) Greater Manchester, (b) Tameside metropolitan borough and (c) Stockport metropolitan borough have had renewal licences refused under the provisions of the Licensing Act 2003. [72648]

Mr. Woodward: This information is not held centrally.

Licensing Act

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how many (a) public houses, (b) convenience stores and (c) off licences have had their licences revoked under the Licensing Act 2003 for (i) the sale of alcohol to people under 18 years of age and (ii) causing antisocial behaviour related to the sale of alcohol in each licensing authority area; [71027]

(2) how many reviews of alcohol licences have been requested by local residents under the Licensing Act 2003; and how many of these reviews have resulted in licences being revoked in (a) public houses, (b) convenience stores and (c) off licences in each licensing authority area; [71028]

(3) how many (a) public houses, (b) convenience stores and (c) off licences have had their licences revoked by the police under the Licensing Act 2003 in each licensing authority area; [71030]

(4) what the average fine issued to (a) public houses, (b) convenience stores and (c) off licences under the Licensing Act 2003 has been to date to premises found guilty of selling alcohol to people under 18 years of age; and what the average fine was for this offence in each type of premises in each of the previous five years in each licensing authority area. [71031]

Mr. Woodward: This information is not held centrally.

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many new licences have been issued under the Licensing Act 2003; and how many licences were issued for (a) public houses, (b) convenience stores and (c) off licences in each of the previous five years in each licensing authority area. [71029]

Mr. Woodward: Statistics concerning new licences issued under the Licensing Act 2003 (the 2003 Act), which came into force on 24 November 2005, are not available. However, the Department estimates that some 190,000 premises have been licensed under the 2003 Act, the majority of which are for the sale of alcohol.

Data for the number of new licences issued in England and Wales under the Licensing Act 1964, which has now been replaced by the 2003 Act, were collected every three years and are available for a 12 month period to the 30 June 2004 as detailed in the following table:

	Total licences issued	Total public houses	Total off-licensed premises
30 June 2001	6,482	3,072	2,057
30 June 2004	7,717	3,485	2,800

Source:
DCMS Statistical Bulletin: Liquor Licensing: England and Wales, July 2003-June 2004, Table 5.

Separate data for convenience stores are not available.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when her Department will publish its first review of the guidance issued under section 182 of the Licensing Act 2003. [71610]

Mr. Woodward: The guidance issued under section 182 of the Licensing Act 2003 is being reviewed in two stages. Following the initial review, which covers issues where a broad consensus exists among stakeholders, it is expected that supplementary guidance will be laid before Parliament in June 2006.

In parallel with this, a full review is being conducted, including a formal public consultation. As a result of this process, we expect to lay a revised version of the guidance before Parliament by the end of 2006.

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many outlets in Greater London have been prosecuted under the Licensing Act 2003. [71845]

Mr. Woodward: This information is not held centrally.

Licensing Applications

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the Answer of 28 November 2005, Official Report, column 89W, on licensing applications, whether an event, a garden fete or function of a similar nature held solely to raise money for a charity or local church would be considered as 'not for private gain' and therefore be exempt from the requirement for a licence. [72826]

Mr. Woodward [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The provision of entertainment at a garden fete or similar event is not 'regulated entertainment' for the purposes of the Licensing Act 2003. Such an event would therefore be exempt from the requirement for a licence.

However, this exemption does not apply if the fete or similar function is promoted with a view to applying some or all of its proceeds for the purposes of private gain.

The provision of a benefit to one or more individuals is not regarded as being for private gain if made in the course of the activities of a non-commercial society established and conducted: (a) for charitable purposes, or (b) for the purpose of enabling participation in, or of supporting, sport, athletics or a cultural activity. In addition, no exemption from licensing would arise if the fete, event or similar function involved the sale or supply of alcohol.

London Olympics

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the different inflation rates were which were applied by the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games, referred to in the Minister for Sport's letter of 17 May 2006 to the hon. Member for Faversham and Mid Kent, when raising its budget from £1.5 billion to £2 billion. [72817]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games (LOCOG) budget reflects an average annual rate of inflation over the seven-year period from 2004 to 2011 of approximately 4 per cent.

I am advised by LOCOG that they have used prudent but not excessive rates of inflation dependent upon the nature of the relevant costs. LOCOG has also taken into consideration the fact that the costs will be spent at different points in the lifecycle of the project.

National Heritage Memorial Fund

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the National Heritage Memorial Fund has spent on acquiring works of art for British museums in each of the last 10 years. [73233]

Mr. Lammy: The National Heritage Memorial Fund has awarded the following amounts to British museums and galleries for acquisitions of works of art in each of the last 10 financial years:

Financial year	Value of awards (£)
1996-97	396,625
1997-98	733,000
1998-99	9,342
1999-2000	0
2000-01	100,000
2001-02	1,256,530
2002-03	0
2003-04	1,012,500
2004-05	0
2005-06	1,770,000
Total	5,277,997

Portland PR

Jim Sheridan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what meetings officials in her Department have had with representatives of the public relations company Portland PR; what contracts Portland PR has with her Department and agencies for which she has responsibility; and what the nature of the contract is in each case. [70050]

Mr. Lammy: DCMS has no contracts with Portland PR and the department does not maintain a central list of such meetings. Civil servants meet many people as part of the process of policy development and business delivery. All such meetings are conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Civil Service Code and Guidance for civil servants on contacts with lobbyists and people outside Government.

Schools' Olympics

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many organisations applied to run the Schools' Olympics; and on what criteria the winner was selected. [73620]

Mr. Caborn: The selection of an operator to organise the UK School Games this September was a matter for the Millennium Commission. In my other capacity as chair of the Commission, I will write to the hon. Member and arrange for copies of my reply to be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Temporary Event Notices

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will place in the Library a copy of the summary of responses to the consultation on temporary event notices; and if she will make a statement. [71615]

Mr. Woodward: We shall soon be announcing the results of our review of temporary events notices (TENs) and consideration of responses to the associated consultation. Shortly thereafter, we shall place a copy of those responses on the Department's website (www.culture.gov.uk). Where an individual has written on his or her own behalf, and not in the course of representing an organisation, we will have redacted any personal details such as the name and address.

The Public

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what date the Arts Council commissioned the options appraisal of the arts organisation 'The Public'; and what its remit was. [73838]

Mr. Lammy: The options appraisal was commissioned on 2 February 2006. The remit of the options appraisal was to assist the Arts Council to understand: the immediate cash flow requirements of the charity; the possible funding requirement of 'The Public' on opening; the likely further funding required, in addition to that already agreed, to achieve completion of the building; whether there are any viable options which may involve less funding; the impact of the group entering into an insolvency process and the impact on the Arts Council of any such insolvency process; and the current position of the remainder of the charity's activities.

World Cup

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans (a) she and (b) Ministers in her Department have to attend matches at the FIFA World Cup 2006 in Germany. [73631]

Mr. Caborn: Both my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and I will be attending a number of games during the 2006 World Cup finals being held in Germany this summer.

All travel by DCMS Ministers will be arranged in accordance with the Ministerial Code and Travel by Ministers.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Animal Experiments

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether his plans to protect the names and addresses of shareholders will apply only to companies which carry out animal experiments. [70806]

Mr. McCartney: No: the members of all companies will be protected by the provision in the Company Law Reform Bill that a company need not comply with a request for a copy of its register of members if the court is satisfied that it is not sought for a proper purpose. The Government amendments to the Bill to strengthen further this protection, which were tabled on 18 May, also apply to all companies.

Bank Fees

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what action his Department is taking to encourage banks to reduce late payment fees and other charges following the recent ruling from the Office of Fair Trading; and if he will make a statement. [72375]

Mr. McCartney: The Office of Fair Trading (OFT) statement relates to the principles they think credit card issuers should follow in order to set fair default charges. The issuers are being asked to confirm by 31 May their response to this statement and their willingness to make any necessary adjustments to their credit card default charges. They are also being asked to consider how these principles may be applicable in other related areas, including the way default charges are applied to current accounts. The OFT has indicated that it has not ruled out future legal action if the market does not respond positively and it would not be appropriate for me to comment further at this stage.

Consumer Protection

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on the operation of section 75 of the Consumer Credit Act 1974; what recent representations he has received about the operation of this (a) section and (b) Act; and what amendments have been made to the Act. [72466]

Mr. McCartney: Section 75 of the 1974 Consumer Credit Act has the effect that where a purchase for an amount over £100 and not more than £30,000 has been funded by a credit card, the purchaser will have the same rights in respect of a breach of contract or misrepresentation against the credit card company, as he would have against the supplier himself.

One area of section 75 around which there has been a degree of uncertainty relates to overseas transactions (i.e. where a credit card is used to buy something abroad). The Office of Fair Trading sought to resolve this issue by way of a Court declaration. The case reached its conclusion on 22 March 2006, when the Court of Appeal ruled that section 75 of the Consumer Credit Act 1974 does apply to overseas transactions, as well as to domestic ones.

Before this ruling and during the passage of the Consumer Credit Bill (now the Consumer Credit Act 2006), Baroness Miller of Hendon tabled an amendment to try and clarify the issue of overseas application of section 75. The Government resisted Baroness Miller's amendment on the grounds that the issue was the subject of an ongoing case at the Court of Appeal, and that it would be inappropriate to amend section 75 before that case had reached its conclusion.

The subsequent Court ruling of 22 March is, the Government believe, a good outcome for consumers and they have no plans at present to make changes to section 75 of the 1974 Act.

More generally, as the 2006 Act is brought into force, they will make a number of significant changes to the 1974 Act. In particular:

(a) Improving consumer rights and redress:

by replacing the extortionate credit test (in the 1974 Act) with a new, broader test concerned with the principle of 'unfairness';

(b) Improving the regulation of consumer credit businesses:

by altering the powers of the Office of Fair Trading (OFT) to enable it to take targeted action to drive out rogues, and by requiring minimum standards of information provision to consumers throughout the life of the loan; and

(c) More appropriate regulation of consumer credit agreements:

by abolishing the £25,000 limit for regulation and making the rules concerning enforceability consistent and proportionate.

Correspondence

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he will provide a substantive response to question 64606, tabled by the hon. Member for the Isle of Wight on 18 April, on telephone numbers. [70139]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 11 May 2006]: I answered the hon. Member's question on 12 May 2006, Official Report, column 542W, by transferring it to the chief executive of Ofcom and I understand that Ofcom should now be replying substantively in about 10 working days.

Entrepreneurs

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures his Department plans to take to encourage more (a) women and (b) people from ethnic minorities to become business entrepreneurs. [71094]

Margaret Hodge: Levels of women's enterprise are increasing. The number of self-employed women in the UK has risen from 915,000 in 1997 to 1,022,000 in 2006. This is the highest figure since records began in 1984. But we still have further to go to match levels of women's enterprise in some comparator nations, such as the USA. That is why, from June this year, we will have a taskforce on women's enterprise to encourage the development of women's enterprise working with the development agencies and other partners. Regional development agencies, including the North East, are piloting women's enterprise units to trial different approaches to supporting the start-up and growth of women-owned businesses.

We are also making some progress in reducing differences in self-employment rates between different ethnic groups. The gap in self-employment rates between under-represented groups and others in England has come down from 4 percentage points for the year ending spring 2005 to 3.4 percentage points for the year ending winter 2005. In the last four years, the number of self-employed people of working age from under-represented groups has increased from around 80,000 to 120,000 in England. The Department and the small business service are working with colleagues across Whitehall to help deliver the recommendations on enterprise made by the national employment panel in their 2005 report 'Enterprising People, Enterprising Places'.

This includes working with the learning and skills council on the development of centres of vocational excellence in entrepreneurship in five designated cities (London, Manchester, Birmingham, Leeds/Bradford and Leicester) and working with banks and financial intermediaries to review the availability and accessibility of finance for ethnic minority firms in those designated cities.

The small business service also supports a detailed programme of activity led by the ethnic minority business forum to promote enterprise amongst ethnic minority groups. Key actions include:

drawing up a three-year action plan and following this with a national conference to promote ethnic minority enterprise; promoting and developing regional engagement through a series of regional networking meetings; developing an online community to encourage continued dialogue with stakeholders; ensuring that initiatives to facilitate access to public sector procurement markets meet the needs of ethnic minority businesses through the work on the recently launched web portal for lower value opportunities, and the development of training for small and medium enterprises in selling to the public sector.

Myalgic Encephalomyelitis

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated into the biological effects of myalgic encephalomyelitis. [72846]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department supports medical and clinical research through the Medical Research Council (MRC). In May 2003, the MRC invited research proposals on chronic fatigue syndrome (CFS), myalgic encephalomyelitis (ME) covering basic research through to more applied health services research and interventions; the invitation can be found at: http: www.mrc.ac.uk/strategy-chronic_fatigue_syndrome_me.htm.

The MRC has funded seven research studies into CFS/ME as follows:

University/institute	Project title
University of Manchester	The role of noradrenalin in the neuropsychological pathogenesis of the chronic fatigue syndrome
University of Manchester	Randomised control trial of nurse led self-help treatment for primary care patients with chronic fatigue syndrome
University of Manchester	The feasibility of a population base study of CFS (chronic fatigue syndrome), IBS (irritable bowel syndrome), and CWP (chronic wide pain)
Queen Mary and Westfield College	Chronic fatigue and ethnicity
Queen Mary and Westfield College	The PACE Trial: A RCT (randomised control trial) of CBT (cognitive behaviour therapy), graded exercise, adaptive pacing and usual medical care for the chronic fatigue syndrome
University of Liverpool	Exploratory RCT of training GPs to manage patients with persistent medically unexplained symptoms
University of Edinburgh	A complex intervention for patients with medically unexplained symptoms in neurology clinics

Parcelforce

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what proportion of Government funding announced on 18 May for the Royal Mail will be made available for Parcelforce activities; and if he will make a statement. [73612]

Jim Fitzpatrick: No proportion of these facilities has been set aside for Parcelforce.

Pensioner Debt

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what assessment he has made of the level of personal debt among pensioners; and if he will make a statement; [72584]

(2) what steps he is taking to ease the burden of debt experienced by pensioners; and if he will make a statement; [72585]

(3) if he will introduce a scheme to relieve pensioners of personal debt; and if he will make a statement. [72586]

Mr. McCartney: We are doing much to help those with personal debt problems as outlined in the Government's 2004 "Tackling Over-indebtedness: Action Plan" and the subsequent 2005 annual report. DTI examples include the recently launched £45 million Face-to-Face Debt Advice Project, that will result in hundreds of new debt advisers and the multi-million pound support given to the National Debtline phone service. Such assistance is open to all and we much welcome the use of them by vulnerable pensioners.

Overall, the Government's strategy for older people is focused on tackling poverty in old age. The measures include: pension credit which targets help to the poorest pensioners; the state second pension which will provide a more generous additional provision for people on low and moderate earnings; and one-off payments for eligible pensioners to help ensure financial security in retirement and reduce the risk of falling into problem debt.

Priorities for the Government's strategy for older people in 2006-07 include maximising take-up activity to ensure that those entitled to pension credit receive it and increasing take-up of the state second pension, including among carers and the long-term disabled, and the 200 winter fuel payments.

Post Office Branch Network

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the Government's long-term policy is on the Post Office branch network, with particular reference to rural areas. [73594]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government are committed to supporting the rural post office network with annual social network payments of £150 million for the next two years. The level of any support beyond 2008 will depend, following public consultation, on decisions on the future of the post office network.

Royal Mail

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of part-employee share ownership in respect of Royal Mail. [73591]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government are considering Royal Mail management's proposals for the incentivisation of its workforce through an employee shares scheme. No decisions have been taken on these proposals.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of options for the long-term ownership structure for the Royal Mail. [73595]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government have made it clear that they will not privatise Royal Mail.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the rate of return the Government will receive on its loan to the Royal Mail. [73613]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The details of the arrangements for the extension of the debt facilities have yet to be decided. The rate of return on the utilisation of the facilities will be set on a commercial basis.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what criteria were used in deciding to support the Royal Mail in respect of its pension fund deficit. [73614]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government, as shareholder, considered Royal Mail's investment case on a commercial basis. Under the Government's proposed financial framework, no funds are paid directly into the pension fund. The Government intend to release £850 million of reserves that Royal Mail has built up through past profitable performance so those funds can be transferred to a special account, the pension escrow account, upon which the pension fund trustees could draw, in the unlikely event that Royal Mail should fail as a business. When the pension fund deficit has been recovered and Royal Mail's balance sheet strengthened by successful operation, it is expected that the escrow fund will be released and surplus cash returned to the Government as shareholder. This arrangement provides confidence to pensioners and a sustainable financial framework for Royal Mail.

Small Business Friendly Concordat

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many local authorities have signed up to the Small Business Friendly Concordat; what steps are being taken by the Government to encourage local authorities to do so; and what target he has set for take up by local authorities of the Concordat. [66609]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

Records maintained by the Small Business Service (SBS) suggest that presently 63 local authorities in England have formally signed up to the Small Business Friendly Concordat (March 2004).

The "National Procurement Strategy for Local Government" includes a milestone for all local authorities to have adopted the Concordat by the end of 2005. The Government recognise that small businesses can provide best value in procurement and that is why they are keen to continue encouraging adoption of the Concordat throughout local government.

ODPM has written to local authorities on two occasions encouraging sign-up to the Concordat. In conjunction with key partners the ODPM is exploring further ways to promote the Concordat to local authorities.

Sunday Trading

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what his Department's expenditure has been on research into the (a) economic and (b) social implications of the easing or removing of Sunday trading restrictions. [72882]

Mr. McCartney: DTI appointed Indepen Consulting Ltd to produce an economic cost-benefit analysis of easing the restrictions on Sunday shopping. The cost was around £60,000. We published Indepen's report on 5 May on the DTI website:

www.dti.gov.uk/consmners/buying-selling/Sunday%20Shopping.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will organise and fund a conference to discuss the social costs and benefits of easing or removing Sunday trading restrictions. [72883]

Mr. McCartney: There are no current plans to organise and fund a conference to discuss the social costs and benefits of easing or removing Sunday trading restrictions.

From 13 January to 14 April, as part of the review of Sunday shop opening hours, we asked for views and evidence from consumers, religious groups, employees and businesses not only on the economic case, but on all aspects of extending Sunday shopping hours. We have received a large number of responses and are currently analysing them.

On 5 May, we published an independent economic cost-benefit analysis, commissioned by DTI. On 10 May, DTI held a stakeholder conference where the independent consultants presented the cost-benefit analysis and participants were able to discuss the assumptions and findings. This was followed by optional forums on specific themes; one of the themes was the impact on society of extended Sunday shopping hours. We intend to publish a report of this event on our website shortly.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the Answer of 26 April 2006, Official Report, column 1129W, on Sunday trading, what plans he has to commission research into the social effects of easing or removing Sunday trading restrictions. [72886]

Mr. McCartney: There are no current plans to commission research into the social effects of easing or removing Sunday trading restrictions.

From 13 January to 14 April, as part of the review of Sunday shop opening hours, we asked for views and evidence from consumers, religious groups, employees and businesses not only on the economic case, but on all aspects of extending Sunday shopping hours. We have received a large number of responses and are currently analysing them.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Convicting Rapists and Protecting Victims (Consultation Paper)

Barbara Follett: To ask the Solicitor-General what responses he has received to his Department's consultation paper "Convicting Rapists and Protecting Victims". [73360]

The Solicitor-General: The consultation period runs until 31 July 2006 and we normally expect responses towards the end of the period. Nonetheless I have already received three responses and the Office for Criminal Justice Reform has received six responses. Seven of these have come from individuals and two from organisations.

Ministerial Visits (Accommodation)

David Simpson: To ask the Solicitor-General on how many occasions (a) civil servants and (b) special advisors in his Department have stayed overnight in (i) five star, (ii) four star and (iii) three star hotels in each of the last three years. [69009]

The Solicitor-General: The Law Officers' Departments had no special advisers in the period in question. The information on hotel star ratings is not recorded centrally by the Crown Prosecution Service, Serious Fraud Office, Treasury Solicitor's Department, HM Crown Prosecution Service Inspectorate and the Attorney General's Office and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost. The Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office was able to obtain the following information for 2005-06 since it was set up on 18 April 2005:

Rating	Nights
4	63
3	43

Serious Fraud Office

John Robertson: To ask the Solicitor-General what assessment he has made of the likely trends in the number of cases demanding the attention of the Serious Fraud Office over the next three years. [73365]

The Solicitor-General: Between 2001 and 2005 the SFO had 223 cases referred to it and it has so far accepted 82 of these cases. The remaining cases are mostly referred to other agencies.

From 2001 to 2005 the SFO has seen a considerable increase in case referrals and it does not anticipate that this trend will change. Moreover the cases that the SFO sees are growing in complexity and are commonly linked to international financial markets.

It is not possible to provide accurate data for the future as this depends on the number of frauds, their nature and their referral to the SFO.

Treasury Solicitor Annual Report

Mr. Amess: To ask the Solicitor-General how many copies of the Treasury Solicitor Annual Report 2003-04 were distributed by his Department; if he will list those who were sent copies; how many copies were printed; what the cost was of (a) distribution and (b) printing; who was awarded the contract to undertake the printing; how (i) hon. Members, (ii) Members of the House of Lords and (iii) members of the public may obtain a copy; at what cost; when he expects to publish the 2004-05 edition; and if he will make a statement. [70079]

The Solicitor-General: 550 copies of the Treasury Solicitor's Annual Report and Accounts 2003-04 were printed at a total cost for design, print and distribution of £10,038. The Central Office of Information printed the Reports. Copies were laid before Parliament (HC 1012). They were also distributed across the Attorney General's Departments but no record was kept of the distribution. 300 copies were supplied to the Stationery Office for public purchase (ISBN 0102930023) at £15.10 each. A copy is also available electronically on the TSol website (www.tsol.gov.uk).

The 2004-05 Treasury Solicitor's edition was published and laid before Parliament on 21 July 2005 (HC 274) and is similarly available at the Stationery Office (ISBN 010293438X) at £16.25 or on the TSol website. The 2005-06 edition is scheduled to be published and laid before Parliament on 20 July 2006.

WALES

Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the occasions when an amendment has been moved by (a) a Labour Back Bencher, (b) an Opposition Back Bencher and (c) an Opposition Front-Bench spokesman to a Bill sponsored by his Department that has been accepted by his Department during the 2005-06 session; and if he will make a statement. [72489]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office has sponsored the following Bills during the current session: Government of Wales Bill 2005, Transport (Wales) Bill and the Commissioner for Older People (Wales) Bill.

Information on amendments moved and accepted during the Committee, Report and Lords Third Reading stages on these Bills is published in the Official Report.

Consultations

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many public consultations his Department undertook in the last year for which figures are available; and what the cost was (a) in total and (b) of each consultation. [72894]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office undertook one public consultation last year on the "Better Governance for Wales" White Paper. The cost of this was £23,462.54. We also contributed to a joint consultation with the Department of Health seeking views on banning smoking in enclosed public places, and to a joint consultation with the National Assembly for Wales on the Commissioner for Old People.

Departmental Credit Cards

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what facility is available for senior civil servants in his Department to use credit cards supplied by the Department. [72898]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office has not issued any credit cards to senior civil servants.

Departmental Expenditure

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the 10 non-public sector entities that have received the largest total sum of payments from his Department in each of the last five years. [71758]

Mr. Hain: Expenditure records are not kept in this format, and this information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Disability Access

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales whether any building in his Department falls short of disability access regulations. [73051]

Mr. Hain: No.

Free Air Miles

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many free air miles have been earned by senior civil servants in his Department in each of the last three years; and how they were used. [72899]

Mr. Hain: None.

Information Technology

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much was spent on information technology (IT) sourced from outside his Department in each of the last five years; who is responsible for such projects in his Department; and what IT (a) expertise and (b) qualifications they possess. [71758]

Mr. Hain: The National Assembly of Wales provided information technology support service functions to the Wales Office until 31 March 2004, and the Department of Constitutional Affairs (DCA) has provided these services since then. Accordingly the Assembly were responsible for sourcing and awarding any contracts up to March 2004 and the DCA has done so since then. In the last financial year the Wales Office spent £176,161.40 on IT services provided via DCA.

Expenditure records before this time are not kept in this format, and this information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what the (a) originally estimated, (b) most recently estimated and (c) outturn cost was in each of the five largest information technology contracts agreed with outside suppliers over the last five years. [71757]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office has not let any information technology contracts in the last five years. We are covered by contracts let by the Department of Constitutional Affairs.

Ministerial Visits

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what visits he has made to each of the prisons in Wales; and when each visit took place. [73732]

Mr. Hain: I have not visited any prisons in my capacity as Secretary of State for Wales. Responsibility for prisons in England and Wales is a matter for my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary.

Private Members' Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list those private Members' Bills in respect of which his Department has adopted a policy of neutrality in each session since 2001-02; and if he will make a statement. [72488]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office does not collect the relevant information and to provide it would incur disproportionate costs.

Small Change Big Difference

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what steps his Department has taken following the launch of the Government's "small change big difference" campaign. [72009]

Mr. Hain: Responsibility for delivering health policy in Wales has been devolved to the National Assembly for Wales. The Welsh Assembly Government have in place the 'health challenge Wales' campaign—a call to people and organisations to work together for a healthier nation. Further information is available on the Welsh Assembly Government's website at:

http://new.wales.gov.uk

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Complaints (Solicitors)

Dr. Cable: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what plans she has to improve the process of handling complaints against solicitors. [73362]

Bridget Prentice: On 24 May, the Government published their draft Legal Services Bill. The draft Bill provides for the establishment of a Legal Services Board (LSB), which will provide consistent oversight of the legal profession's front line regulators. The draft Bill also provides for the establishment of an office for legal complaints (OLC) that will provide a single and fully independent body for dealing with all consumer complaints about legal service providers who are members of bodies or organisations that are regulated by the Legal Services Board (LSB). The OLC will, therefore, replace the existing complaints handling bodies, such as the Law Society's Consumer Complaints Services.

The OLC will be accountable to the LSB, which will also set targets for the OLC.

The draft Bill will be receiving pre-legislative scrutiny by Joint Committee.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will list responsibilities which her Department and its predecessors have lost since 1997; what the (a) date and (b) destination Department was in each case; what responsibilities the Department and its predecessors have taken on since 1997; and what the (i) date and (ii) source Department was in each case. [71136]

Bridget Prentice: Ministerial responsibilities are set out in the "List of Ministerial Responsibilities", which is updated regularly. A revised version will be published shortly. Copies of previous versions are available in the Library.

Small Claims Limit

Mr. O'Hara: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the timetable is for the consultation on alternative options for dealing with the small claims limit. [69903]

Vera Baird: The Government are currently working with stakeholders to make the claims process more timely, proportionate, and cost-effective. We plan to publish a consultation paper on any proposals which emerge, but no date for this has been set.

SCOTLAND

Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the occasions when an amendment has been moved by (a) a Labour backbencher, (b) an Opposition backbencher and (c) an Opposition front bench spokesman to a Bill sponsored by his Department which has been accepted by his Department during the 2005-06 Session; and if he will make a statement. [72485]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office has not sponsored any legislation in the current Session.

Departmental Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list those (a) Acts and (b) parts of Acts which received Royal Assent between 1976 and 2006 for which his Department has policy responsibility and which remain in force. [70396]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office has policy responsibility for the Scotland Act 1998 and the Scottish Parliament (Constituencies) Act 2004, both of which remain in force.

Scotland Act

David Mundell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether the Government plans to transfer additional functions to Scottish Ministers under section 63 of the Scotland Act 1998. [72543]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Government and the Scottish Executive have no immediate plans for any transfers under section 63 of the Scotland Act 1998.

Scottish Parliament

David Mundell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what discussions he has had with the First Minister of Scotland on proposals for the establishment of a second Scottish Constitutional Convention to review the powers of the Scottish Parliament; [72813]

(2) whether he has discussed the recommendations of the Steel Commission report, Moving to Federalism—A New Settlement for Scotland, with the First Minister of Scotland. [72815]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I have frequent discussions with the First Minister on a wide range of issues.

Small Change Big Difference

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what steps his Department has taken following the launch of the Government's "small change big difference campaign". [72000]

David Cairns: The statutory functions of the Scotland Office relate to constitutional matters arising from the devolution settlement for Scotland and the conduct of elections to the Scottish Parliament. The focus of the 'small change big difference' campaign is the encouragement of healthier lifestyles which is primarily a devolved matter for the Scottish Executive to determine.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan (Women)

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of women's rights in Afghanistan; and what steps are being taken to further the empowerment of women in Afghanistan in accordance with Millennium Development Goal 3, to promote gender equality and empower women. [73481]

Hilary Benn: The current status of women's rights indicates that Afghanistan will not meet the Millennium Development Goal targets by 2015. Raising awareness of the existing gender bias and discrimination is important if things are going to change. The Afghan Government have demonstrated its commitment to ensuring equality between men and women by signing the International Convention on the Elimination of all forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW) and by protecting women's rights within the new Afghan constitution.

In March 2006, the Afghan Government set out its strategy for greater gender equality in its first Interim National Action Plan for the Women. The UK is supporting this through our contributions to the Afghan Reconstruction Fund (£140 million over three years) which help pay the Government's recurrent costs as well as fund their own development priorities.

DFID also supports a number of specific development programmes which support the role of women in Afghan society. At the national level we provided significant support to the election process in 2005 and have worked with the Government to strengthen the role of women in the democratic process. The Parliamentary and Provincial elections had a strong turn-out of women voters (43 per cent. of voters were women).

DFID's support to the Government's National Priority Programmes includes support to enhancing the role of women at a community level including the National Solidarity Programme which ensures that women are engaged in determining community development priorities through the formation of Community Development Councils. DFID is also supporting the Government's National Micro-finance Programme, which provides access to credit and savings services to over 140,000 clients, 60 per cent. Of whom are women.

Cayman Islands

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he expects to receive from the EU the recovery grant of €7.4 million for the Cayman Islands for the purposes of defraying some of the costs of repair following the damage done by Hurricane Ivan. [73610]

Mr. Thomas: The European Commission has proposed an allocation of €3.7 million for post-Hurricane Ivan rehabilitation aid for the Cayman Islands. We hope that remaining procedures will be completed speedily and the funds disbursed in the near future.

We are following up with the Commission on the details of this decision and exploring the options open to the Cayman Islands to have their original request of €7 million reconsidered.

Departmental Bills (Amendments)

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will list the occasions when an amendment has been moved by (a) a Labour backbencher, (b) an Opposition backbencher and (c) an Opposition front bench spokesman to a Bill sponsored by his Department that has been accepted by his Department during the current session; and if he will make a statement. [72105]

Hilary Benn: DFID has not sponsored any legislation during the current session.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many staff from his Department attended the Civil Service Islamic Society Eid-Ul-Adha event in London in 2005; and what the total cost was to his Department of their attendance. [73000]

Mr. Thomas: My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster will write to the hon. Member with details of the Civil Service Islamic Society Eid-Ul-Adha event. Copies of her letter will be placed in the Library.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what incentives his Department offers to encourage staff to share vehicles when travelling to work. [73002]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is strongly committed to the travel targets set out in the Framework for Sustainable Development on the Government Estate. We operate a car sharing scheme for our East Kilbride office on our internal website and we have also included links to similar schemes available on external websites. We also maintain updated bus and train timetables on our internal website and actively encourage staff to use public transport through regular notices, permanent displays of maps and guides, and promotion of events such as Bike Week 2006. We have no car parking spaces for staff in our London offices, but over 70 secure bicycle parking spaces, with storage and shower facilities.

Information Technology

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much was spent on information technology (IT) sourced from outside his Department in each of the last five years; who is responsible for such projects in his Department; and what IT (a) expertise and (b) qualifications they possess. [71768]

Mr. Thomas: DFID's central records do not distinguish IT purchases, so provision of spending information for these purchases would incur disproportionate costs. DFID procurement conforms to guidance from the Office of Government Commerce, and purchases are approved by a number of officials with delegated authority. All major IT purchases are reviewed by the Head of Information Systems, who has a mathematics degree and more than 25 years' experience of working in IT, including 16 years in a managerial role.

Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will list those (a) Acts and (b) parts of Acts which received Royal Assent between 1976 and 2006 and for which his Department has policy responsibility which remain in force. [70373]

Hilary Benn: DFID has policy responsibility for the Commonwealth Development Corporation Act (1978), the Crown Agents Act (1995), the Commonwealth Development Corporation Act (1999) and the International Development Act (2002).

Small Change Big Difference

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department and its agencies have taken following the launch of the Government's "small change big difference" campaign. [72004]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has embraced the "small change big difference" campaign in many ways by encouraging its staff to improve their future health and well-being by making small, easily achievable changes to their lifestyle. The Department supports these changes by ensuring that our staff restaurants offer nutritious food, using fresh produce and offering "healthy options" wherever possible.

DFID encourages its staff to take control of their health and lives and to achieve a healthy work-life balance. The Department offers its staff flexible work patterns and provides a website that provides information and advice on how to deal with everyday issues such as bereavement, stress, nutrition, smoking and drinking.

Our well-being centres offer gym facilities to encourage staff to improve their health and well-being through physical activity. We also have secure bicycle parking spaces for staff who cycle to work, with storage and shower facilities.

As the programme of work develops, the Department of Health (DOH) will be working across all of Government to ensure the programme joins up to promote maximum impact. The DOH is leading the implementation for this initiative as part of its cross-government commitment to deliver the public health White Paper "Choosing Health".

TRANSPORT

Air Travel

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of changes in the demography of air passengers in the UK within the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [71147]

Gillian Merron: The last formal assessment undertaken was for the Air Transport White Paper in December 2003. The Department keeps these matters under review through regular surveys (eg CAA Airport Passenger Survey, British Social Attitudes Survey, International Passenger Survey and ONS Omnibus Survey).

As part of the analysis leading up to the Air Transport White Paper (ATWP), the Department carried out a formal assessment of the public "Attitudes to Air Travel", by population characteristics, using data from February 2002 ONS Omnibus Survey which can be found on the DfT Website.

http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_transstats/documents/page/dft_transstats_505963.hcsp

Another supporting paper to the ATWP "Passenger Forecasts: Additional Analysis" reported differences between countries and regions within the UK in the propensity to fly, ie the relationship between the number of passengers and the general population. This can be found on the DfT website.

http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_aviation/documents/page/dft_aviation_031861.pdf

Airbus A380

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) which Ministers were present for the arrival of the Airbus A380 at Heathrow Airport on 18 May; [74183]

(2) what departmental costs were incurred in transporting officials and Ministers to the arrival of the Airbus A380 at Heathrow Airport on 18 May. [74184]

Gillian Merron: The total cost incurred by the Department in transporting officials to the arrival of the Airbus A380 at Heathrow Airport on 18 May was £55. No Ministers from the Department were present, but my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer attended.

Aircraft Emissions

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the flights taken by Ministers in his Department since 2001; and what measures to offset the carbon emissions were taken for each flight. [68937]

Gillian Merron: Information about flights undertaken by Ministers in the Department for Transport on official business since its formation on 29 May 2002 has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the 'Ministerial Code' and 'Travel by Ministers', copies of which are available in the Library. Since 1999, the Government have published on an annual basis a list of all overseas visits by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500. Copies of the lists are available in the Library. Information for 2005-06 is currently being compiled and will be published when it is ready.

All central Government ministerial and official air travel is being offset from 1 April 2006. Departmental aviation emissions will be calculated on an annual basis and subsequently offset through payments to a central fund. The fund will purchase certified emissions reductions credits from energy efficiency and renewable energy projects with high sustainable development benefits, located in developing countries.

Carbon dioxide emissions arising from 32 (Royal) Squadron flights are included in the Government's carbon offsetting commitment. Carbon emissions arising from the use of these flights will be recorded and offset in the same way as those for scheduled flights.

Buses

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what action his Department is taking to ensure bus fares do not rise faster than the cost of motoring. [68689]

Gillian Merron: The Government are very concerned about the growing divergence between the cost of public transport and private motoring which is largely due to market forces. The rise in bus fares mostly reflects the increased costs of labour, fuel and insurance to bus operators. These costs need to be met either through fare increases or subsidy. The Department makes it clear in its dealings with the bus industry that affordable fares are a crucial factor in promoting patronage growth and accessibility of services.

The Government provide support for local bus services in the form of Bus Service Operators Grant, worth over £370 million annually to the industry. This grant reduces operating costs and therefore helps to minimise fares.

In addition, the Government have introduced free concessionary bus travel for over-60s and disabled people and made available an additional £350 million to local authorities to reimburse to operators the revenue foregone. As from 1 April 2008, holders of concessionary passes will be eligible for free local bus travel in any part of the country.

We are working up arrangements to develop new ways in which local authorities and operators can plan bus networks together by mutual agreement and consistently with competition law. This could include agreement on bus fares and ticketing.

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with bus companies about the impact of above-inflation increases in bus fares on socially excluded communities. [64690]

Gillian Merron: Transport Ministers regularly have meetings with bus companies and discuss a variety of matters with them. It is made clear at these meetings that affordable fares are seen as a crucial factor in promoting patronage growth and accessibility of services.

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research his Department has undertaken into the effects of above-inflation increases in bus fares on socially excluded communities. [68691]

Gillian Merron: No research has been undertaken by the Department specifically on the effect of high bus fares on socially excluded communities. However, we know from other social exclusion research that the affordability of public transport can be an issue for these communities. Relevant reports include:

"Social Exclusion and the Provision & Availability of Public Transport" (DTLR, 2000).

"Making the Connections: Final Report on Transport and Social Exclusion" (Social Exclusion Unit, 2003).

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will consider the extension of the free transport concession for those over 60 years in the West Yorkshire metro district for bus travel to include rail travel. [68853]

Gillian Merron: The Department has no plans to extend the statutory entitlement to concessionary travel to include rail services.

Mr. Ian Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how the extension nationwide of the free bus travel scheme for older and disabled people will be funded. [70994]

Gillian Merron: The Chancellor announced that up to £250 million in additional government funding would be made available for providing a national concessionary travel scheme from April 2008. We are currently looking at the options for delivering the national scheme and will consult with stakeholders including local authorities and bus operators in due course.

Calypso

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what safety deficiencies were identified when the Calypso was inspected at Tilbury in May; and why the ship was not detained at the docks on grounds of safety. [73436]

Dr. Ladyman: The passenger ship the Calypso was inspected in Tilbury under Port State Control on 5 May 2006. The ship was attended by Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) surveyors, London Port Health and a radio inspector. A full inspection and satisfactory safety drill was carried out. A total of 13 deficiencies were found and the nature of these deficiencies was not considered serious enough to warrant detention of the ship.

Departmental Bills (Amendments)

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the occasions when an amendment has been moved by (a) a Labour back bencher, (b) Opposition back bencher and (c) Opposition front bench spokesman to a Bill sponsored by his Department which has been accepted by his Department during the 2005-06 Session; and if he will make a statement. [72474]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Transport has sponsored the following Bills during the current session: Crossrail (Hybrid) Bill, Merchant Shipping Pollution Act [Lords], Road Safety Bill [Lords] and the Civil Aviation Bill. Information on amendments moved and accepted during the committee and report stages on these Bills is published in the Official Report.

Departmental Budget

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much of the budget for his Department remained unspent in the 2005-06 financial year. [72868]

Gillian Merron: 2005-06 estimated outturn was published in the Department for Transport Annual Report 2006 (Cm 6817). Provisional outturn against final departmental expenditure limits will be published before the summer recess, in July.

Departmental Funding (Halifax)

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funding for which his Department is responsible has been allocated to the Halifax constituency in the past 12 months. [72313]

Gillian Merron: The Department allocates funding to support local transport to Calderdale borough council and West Yorkshire Passenger Transport Authority/Executive, which both cover the constituency. The local transport capital funding allocations that the Department announced in December 2004 for 2005-06 is set out in the following table.

£ million

Nature of funding	Calderdale	West Yorkshire PTA
Highways capital maintenance	3.639	0
Integrated transport improvements	2.337	8.442
Total	5.976	8.442

West Yorkshire Passenger Transport Executive received in the past 12 months a Rural Bus Subsidy Grant of £1.019 million of which £139,518 has been spent on bus services in Calderdale.

With regards to funding for rail and trunk roads, it is not possible to allocate funding to a specific constituency.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people in his Department have been (a) disciplined and (b) dismissed for (i) inappropriate use of the internet while at work and (ii) using work telephones to access premium rate numbers in each of the last five years. [67989]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Transport was established in May 2002.

Number of people disciplined or dismissed for inappropriate use of the internet at work in the Department for Transport

	Disciplined	Dismissed
2002	0	2
2003	1	2
2004	13	2

For using work telephones to access premium rate numbers one member of staff was disciplined in 2003, one in 2004 and one in 2005.

Regular reminders are issued to staff about their responsibility to not misuse the telephone, e-mail and internet systems. In order to ensure that these are not abused, or that the Department's security is not compromised, telephone, e-mails and internet use may be monitored periodically.

The Department's Staff Handbook establishes that staff must not make inappropriate use of official time including use of telephones and computer-related services. Such inappropriate use may constitute a disciplinary offence. There is also a separate policy on the use of the internet.

Staff are encouraged to regularly review these items to ensure they are complying with their responsibilities.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) EU foreign nationals and (b) non-EU foreign nationals have been employed in his Department in each of the last five years; what vetting procedures are in place for each category of staff; and whether these include liaison with foreign law enforcement agencies. [68021]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Transport does not hold information on EU foreign nationals, and non-EU foreign nationals centrally.

The Department's procedures for security vetting comply with the policy set out to Parliament by the then Prime Minister on 15 December 1994, which came into force on 1 January 1995. All staff who require security clearance for their posts in the Department are subject to this policy, regardless of their nationality.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of his staff in each of the last three years; and what the total cost was. [73119]

Gillian Merron: The number and cost of non-pensionable bonuses awarded to Department for Transport staff (including all of its agencies) for each of the last three years was as follows:

	Number of bonuses	Cost of bonuses (£000)
2003-04	2,949	1,229
2004-05	3,419	1,500
2005-06	5,918	2,165

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many staff from his Department attended the Civil Service Islamic Society Eid-Ul-Adha event in London in 2005; and what the total cost was to his Department of their attendance. [73115]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster will write to the hon. Member with details of the Civil Service Islamic Society Eid-Ul-Adha event. Copies of her letter will be placed in the Library.

Leased Land

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) land and (b) property his Department and its predecessors (i) leases and (ii) leased in (A) Southend West constituency, (B) Essex, (C) Hertfordshire and (D) the metropolitan police area of London in (1) 1979, (2) 1983, (3) 1987, (4) 1992 and (5) 1997. [72473]

Gillian Merron: The Department leases 46 properties in the areas mentioned above and detailed information has been placed in the Library of the House. The Department does not lease land. The Department was formed in 2002 and information for the period prior to this date can be obtained only at disproportionate costs.

Maritime and Coastguard Agency

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he next expects to review the effectiveness of safety inspections carried out by the Maritime and Coastguard Agency; and if he will make a statement. [73435]

Dr. Ladyman: The UK attaches the highest priority to maritime safety. We are committed to promoting safer shipping and to minimising the incidence of accidents at sea.

MCA surveyors carry out flag state inspections of UK ships, and Port State Control inspections of foreign flag ships calling at UK ports. They are respected and recognised internationally for their commitment to provide a professional and high quality service.

Standards on UK ships are maintained at a high level. The UK is near the top of the Paris MoU's Port State Control white list and our vessels were less likely to be detained in Paris MOU Ports in the last three years than those of all but two other flags.

The UK's performance as port state was reviewed this year in an independent European Maritime Safety Agency Audit. The audit found that our Port State Control organisation (MCA) had good management, well developed structure and experienced and committed personnel. It also noted that we have developed "a remarkable quality conscious culture which stimulates and provides opportunities for improvement of performance".

There is no need for a further review.

Ministerial Cars (Cleaning)

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidance he has issued on the cleaning of Ministers' cars in circumstances of (a) a hosepipe ban and (b) a drought order in the Thames Water region. [73638]

Dr. Ladyman: The Government Car and Despatch Agency (GCDA) introduced restrictions on the cleaning of ministerial cars on 3 April 2006. If a hosepipe ban or drought order is introduced GCDA will comply fully with their conditions.

Nuclear Rail Freight

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the (a) safety and (b) security of trains transporting nuclear material; and with whom responsibility lies for providing the risk assessment for such trains. [73317]

Dr. Ladyman: The information requested is as follows.

(a) The regulations for the safe transport of radioactive material require that periodic assessments of the radiological impact of the transport of radioactive material are carried out. This Department has carried out surveys which show that the radiation doses from the transport of radioactive material under both normal and abnormal conditions are low.

The latest reports that include rail transport are: Survey into the Radiological Impact of the Normal Transport of Radioactive Material in the UK by Road and Rail (NRPB-W66) and Radiological Consequences Resulting from Accidents and Incidents Involving the Transport of Radioactive Materials in the UK 2004 Review (HPA-RPD-007). Copies of these reports have been placed in the House Library and are also available on the internet at the following websites:

http://www.hpa.org.uk/radiation/publications/w_series_reports/2005/nrpb_w66.htm

http://www.hpa.org.uk/radiation/publications/hpa_rpd_reports/2005/hpa_rpd_007.htm

(b) The security of nuclear transport is a matter for the Department of Trade and Industry. The transportation of spent nuclear fuel by rail is carried out in a secure manner and in accordance with stringent security regulations: the Nuclear Industries Security Regulations 2003. These regulations are administered and enforced by the Office for Civil Nuclear Security (OCNS), who regulate the security of such movements of spent nuclear fuel. The security of the transportation of civil nuclear material was thoroughly reviewed following the events of 11 September 2001, and is regularly reviewed in light of the prevailing threat. OCNS is satisfied that the measures in place to prevent theft or sabotage are adequately robust.

Under health and safety legislation it is the responsibility of the organisation carrying out any activity to carry out a risk assessment. In the specific case of activities involving radioactive material this is a requirement of the Ionising Radiations Regulations 1999 (1999 No. 3232).

Officials' Travel Costs

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discounts are available in relation to hotel accommodation used by (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers in his Department. [69083]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Transport, Highways Agency and Driving Standards Agency all use a centrally negotiated contract with Expotel, providing discounted rates for hotels throughout the UK. This is available to both civil servants and special advisers.

The Vehicle Certification Agency uses a centrally negotiated contract, and has a discount arrangement with a hotel in Detroit.

The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency has negotiated a preferential rate with Arnos Manor Hotel in Bristol, and MCA has similar arrangements with the Jury's Inn and Ibis West hotels in Southampton.

The Government Car and Despatch Agency and the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency currently have no discounted hotel rates in place.

Public Transport

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what steps he is taking to improve the skills of employees in the transport sector; and what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Education and Skills on this subject; [68856]

(2) what steps he is taking to improve the recruitment and retention of workers in the transport sector; [68857]

(3) what steps he is taking to encourage the recruitment of a more diverse cross section of workers in the transport sector; [68858]

(4) what discussions he has had with (a) the leaders of transport sector employers and (b) the Secretary of State for Education and Skills on their capacity to (i) train and (ii) improve the skills of their work force. [68860]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Transport is committed to valuing diversity and promoting equality. The Department facilitates the Women's Transport Network (WTN) to provide a forum for women to contribute to policy development in the transport field and to encourage women to enter and progress in the transport industries.

However, the recruitment and training of staff are commercial matters for individual transport sectors and employers to manage.

Railways

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport from which rolling stock manufacturers new rail vehicles have been purchased in each of the last seven years, broken down into companies based in (a) the UK, (b) mainland Europe and (c) elsewhere. [73608]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Crewe and Nantwich (Mrs. Dunwoody) on 20 December 2005, Official Report, columns 2934-37W.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for which stations his Department has specified a reduction in the number of stopping trains each day since Ministers took over responsibility for passenger rail franchising from the Strategic Rail Authority. [62518]

Derek Twigg: Over the past 12 months since taking over responsibility for passenger rail franchising from the Strategic Rail Authority the Secretary of State for Transport has only specified the service at stations covered by the South Western Franchise. The Department has specified a minimum service level, outline details of which are found in the stakeholder briefing document available at www.dft.gov.uk. Bids for the replacement franchise are currently being prepared following the issue of the ITT on 31 March 2006. The contents of the ITT are confidential to bidders until the franchise is awarded later this year. The winning bidder will then develop the timetable.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the railway stations for which he has specified a reduction in the number of services in the past 12 months. [62465]

Derek Twigg: Over the past 12 months the Secretary of State for Transport has only specified services at stations covered by the South Western Franchise. The Department has specified a minimum service level, outline details of which are found in the stakeholder briefing document available at www.dft.gov.uk. Bids for the replacement franchise are currently being prepared following the issue of the ITT on 31 March 2006. The contents of the ITT are confidential to bidders until the franchise is awarded later this year. The winning bidder will then develop the timetable.

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what measures are in place to ensure disabled access to trains at rural railway stations. [71732]

Gillian Merron: All station operators, including those in rural areas, are required to meet the requirements of Part 3 of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 with regard to access for disabled people. The Act requires them to take reasonable steps to ensure that disabled people do not find it impossible or unreasonably difficult to access their services by removing or altering physical features, by finding a way to avoid them, or by providing the service by a reasonable alternative means. This may be done by making physical alterations to stations or taking such other action as is reasonable for any particular station. Operators are responding to these duties. Currently over half of railway journeys originate from step-free stations.

We do, however, recognise that further work at stations may be needed in some cases to make the railway system accessible to disabled people. We published the 'railways for all' strategy on 23 March which includes details of how the £370 million 'access for all' funding will be targeted to deliver access improvements at stations over the next 10 years.

We have also made available an additional £7 million a year that train operators, local authorities and other third parties can bid for on a match funding basis to make smaller scale accessibility improvements at stations, including rural stations.

We are also taking steps to ensure rail vehicles are accessible to disabled people and the Rail Vehicle Accessibility Regulations 1998 require that all new passenger rolling stock introduced from 1 January 1999 is accessible to disabled people. Over 4,500 rail vehicles which meet the requirements of those regulations have already been introduced and from no later than 1 January 2020 all rail vehicles will have to comply.

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 16 March 2006, Official Report, column 2403W on railways, whether (a) he and (b) other Ministers in his Department attended Northern Night at the 2005 Labour party conference. [63179]

Derek Twigg: The Department does not hold information about political engagements undertaken at party conferences.

Road Pricing

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) whether his road pricing pilot will be revenue neutral; [71860]

(2) what his policy will be for charging drivers based outside the geographic area of his proposed road pricing pilots who enter those areas during the course of the pilot; [71868]

(3) whether participation in his proposed road pricing pilot will be voluntary. [71869]

Dr. Ladyman: There are no current applications to the Secretary of State for the confirmation of road pricing (charging) schemes. The Secretary of State cannot pre-judge any applications that might be made to him in the future, and he has not done so.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he will announce which region will host the pilot project for his road pricing policy. [71861]

Dr. Ladyman: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 22 May 2006, Official Report, column 1281W given to the hon. Member for Bristol East.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport who will meet the (a) management, (b) administration and (c) technology costs of his proposed road pricing pilot. [71867]

Dr. Ladyman: No decisions have been taken on what the balance of central Government contributions to local contributions might be in the case of the road pricing elements of TIF schemes. This will depend on what proposals are put forward by local authorities.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) whether motorists participating in the proposed road pricing pilot will be entitled to a fuel duty rebate; and how differential petrol prices will apply to those (a) in and (b) not participating in the pilot; [71870]

(2) whether motorists participating in the proposed road pricing pilot will be entitled to lower rates of fuel duty when driving outside the area covered by the pricing scheme. [71871]

Dr. Ladyman: Decisions on fuel duty are taken by the Chancellor through the usual Budget process. The Government's policy is that fuel duties should be applied at uniform rates across the country.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his policy will be on road pricing on major trunk roads passing through the areas covered by his proposed pilot. [71872]

Dr. Ladyman: We expect local authorities to work closely with the Highways Agency as they develop proposals for road pricing schemes. Should this result in proposals for pricing on the trunk road network these will be considered on their merits. The Secretary of State cannot pre-judge any decision that he may be called upon to make in the future and has not done so.

Rotherwas Access Road

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 6 February 2006, Official Report, column 801W, on the Rotherwas Access Road, when a decision will be announced on the Rotherwas Access Road. [73834]

Gillian Merron: The Department is currently considering Herefordshire's business case for this scheme alongside the West Midland region's advice on its priorities for major transport schemes within the indicative regional funding allocations announced in July 2005. The Department expects to announce our response later this year.

School Transport

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if he will encourage passenger transport executives (a) to pilot and (b) to develop the yellow bus system for school transport; [69536]

(2) what recent discussions he has had with (a) passenger transport authorities, (b) bus operators and (c) local authorities on new ways of transporting children to school; [69588]

(3) what initiatives his Department has undertaken to encourage (a) passenger transport executives and (b) local authorities to develop innovative systems of transportation of school children; and what funding he has allocated for this purpose for 2006-07; [69590]

(4) what recent discussions he has had with local authorities on their plans to promote safer, more sustainable transport for school children; [69591]

(5) whether his Department has evaluated the pilots of the yellow bus system of transporting children to school. [69595]

Gillian Merron: The Department has set out our plans for promoting safer, more sustainable travel to school and our expectations of local authorities in Travelling to School: an action plan which we published jointly with the Department for Education and Skills (DfES) in September 2003.

The Department wants children to walk or cycle to school but, where it is too far or it is considered not safe for them to do so, we want to see more children catching the bus.

The Department is not planning a national roll out of dedicated school buses, but we want to encourage individual local authorities and Passenger Transport Executives to consider school bus schemes as part of broader local transport planning and decide if they would be appropriate to their area. The Department knows from our earlier evaluation of various small-scale yellow and other dedicated school bus schemes that well-designed schemes have the potential to reduce car dependency for journeys to school and the traffic congestion that results from this. But care also needs to be taken to ensure that they are appropriate to local circumstances and do not reduce levels of walking or cycling or undermine the viability of important bus services available to the wider public.

The Department is providing £18.7 million over the next three years to purchase 150 dedicated buses for West Yorkshire Passenger Transport Executive's MyBus school bus scheme. The evaluation of this scheme should be completed next year but the initial signs are that there has been some impact in reducing the number of children travelling to school by car and other non-transport benefits have also been reported.

The Education and Inspections Bill includes provisions to improve home to school transport, including enabling a small number of local authorities to propose Pathfinder schemes to test innovative approaches to home to school transport. These schemes would support school choice, and increase the proportion travelling by sustainable means.

DfES has policy responsibility for home to school transport and will be talking to local authorities interested in running Pathfinder schemes, including passenger transport executives where relevant, later this year. Formal expressions of interest will only be sought after the Bill has been enacted, and formal consultation on the Pathfinder guidance and prospectus has taken place. DfES will support schemes, which it anticipates will start in September 2009, with £4 million pump priming and annual revenue support building up over several years to £12 million.

Small Change Big Difference Campaign

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department and its agencies have taken following the launch of the Government's 'small change big difference' campaign. [72001]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Transport promotes the health benefits of more walking and cycling through its initiatives to encourage more sustainable travel and through publications, such as 'walk in to work out'.

As the programme of work develops the Department of Health will be working across all of Government to ensure the programme joins up to promote maximum impact. DH is leading the implementation for this initiative as part of its cross-Government commitment to deliver the public health White Paper 'Choosing Health'.

Special Advisers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been paid in (a) salary, (b) travelling expenses, (c) subsistence allowance and (d) removal expenses to special advisers in his private office in each of the last five years. [69084]

Gillian Merron: In respect of (a) since 2003, the Government have published on an annual basis the names and overall cost of special advisers and the number in each payband. For information relating to the last financial year I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement made by my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister, on 21 July 2005 Official Report, columns 158-61WS.

Information on Special Advisers' salaries for the last financial year is currently being collected and will be published in the normal way when it is ready.

The Department for Transport was formed in May 2002. The total recorded travel (b) and subsistence costs (c) for Special Advisers since then are:

Financial Year	Travel and Subsistence (£)
2002-03	1,296.51
2003-04	834.30
2004-05	1,080.08
2005-06	5,425.26

It is not possible to disaggregate amounts spent on travel and subsistence.

The amount spent on travel and subsistence in 2005-06 is higher than in previous years, largely as a consequence of travel required due to the UK's Presidency of the European Union between July and December 2005.

All official travel by Special Advisers is undertaken in accordance with the requirements of the Ministerial Code and the Civil Service Management Code.

The Department for Transport has no record of payments of removal expenses for Special Advisers.

Telephone Advice Lines

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many telephone advice lines his Department and its non-departmental public bodies support; and how many telephone advisers each employs; and how much funding is provided by (a) his Department and its non-departmental public bodies, (b) other Government Departments, (c) the private sector and (d) the voluntary sector. [66589]

Gillian Merron: Within DfT(c) the only area running advice lines is Mobility Advice Vehicle Information Service (MAVIS), who have three lines:

MAVIS information line

National number for the UK Forum of Mobility Centres

Blue Badge Enquiry Line

A total of three staff are employed to provide information services, which include answering the advice lines. It is therefore not possible to calculate the cost of answering these advice lines.

The overall number of advice lines in use by DfT's agencies and NDPBs is 41, with the number of staff involved in support of these advice lines being 836.

Identifying the specific costs associated with these lines would incur disproportionate cost—many staff involved are not solely employed as telephone advisors. Funding for the agencies' and NDPBs' advice lines come from both the DfT and the private sector.

Tables giving details for the agencies' and NDPBs' advice lines, including funding have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Transport Infrastructure Funding

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list publicly-funded schemes of greater than £50,000 in value for transport infrastructure in (a) London and (b) West Yorkshire. [71502]

Gillian Merron: The Department does not hold comprehensive lists of all publicly funded transport infrastructure schemes in London and West Yorkshire.

For schemes in London, the Department allocates funds to Transport for London through the London Transport Grant. It is for Transport for London to decide how to allocate that money.

For improvement and maintenance schemes in West Yorkshire costing less than £5 million, the Department allocates block (not scheme-specific) support to the metropolitan district councils and passenger transport authority to implement the West Yorkshire local transport plan.

In addition, railway schemes in London and West Yorkshire are funded mainly by Network Rail.

The major schemes which have been funded directly by this Department, and which have opened or been fully approved in the last five years in London and West Yorkshire are as follows:

London

King's Cross station LUL ticket hall modernisation. Under construction.

West Yorkshire

A64 York Road Guided Bus scheme (Leeds). Opened 2001.

A641 Manchester Road Guided Bus scheme (Bradford). Opened 2002.

South Bradford Integrated Transport Scheme. Opened 2004.

Connecting the City (Bradford City Centre). Opened 2004

Leeds Inner Ring Road Stage 7. Under construction.

East Leeds Link Road. Fully approved with construction due to commence autumn 2006.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Music Education

13. Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on future Standards Fund funding of music education in schools. [73383]

Mr. Dhanda: Funding beyond 2007-08 is dependent on the outcome of the comprehensive spending review. However, there has been an overall increase in funding of music education in schools through the standards fund for this year and next.

In addition to grant of around £60 million made to local music services, there has been a further £30 million identified for schools intended specifically to support instrumental and vocal tuition for key stage 2 pupils.

Children's Directors

14. Kali Mountford: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what guidance he has issued to children's directors on co-ordination of their different policy responsibilities. [73384]

Beverley Hughes: There has been guidance since 2004 when 'Every child matters: change for children' was published along with a joint DH/DfES publication on supporting local delivery. The White Paper 'Our health our care, our say' (January 2006) set out expectations for joint working between PCTs, GPs and children's trusts, including commissioning of services, local area agreements, delivery through multi-disciplinary networks and teams, performance assessment and alignment of planning and finance cycles for PCTs and local authorities. Guidance for practitioners and managers is also kept up to date.

Communications with local authorities are coordinated through a communications gateway which significantly contributes to the coherence of communications to local authorities.

Single Sciences

15. Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on changes to the arrangements for studying single sciences at GCSE level. [73385]

Mr. Dhanda: The "science and innovation investment framework 2004 to 2014: next steps" document outlines our commitment to encourage schools to provide greater access to the three separate sciences. By September 2008 our aim is that all pupils achieving at least level 6 at key stage 3 will have access to study three separate science GCSEs, to increase progression to, and attainment at, A-level science.

Africa (Children's Policies)

16. Ms. Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what action his Department has taken to pursue the Commission for Africa's recommendation on support for children's policies in Africa. [73386]

Bill Rammell: We have recently supported a very successful young carer's workshop in Nairobi in partnership with the Commonwealth organisation for social work, the Commonwealth youth programme and the Children's Society.

I am particularly pleased there was such a strong contribution from young carers' from Africa and the UK. The conference has strengthened the voice of young people who carry out these difficult responsibilities in very challenging situations.

Financial Capability Education

17. Ms. Diana R. Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proposals the qualification and curriculum authority has developed for making financial capability education more explicit in the national mathematics curriculum. [73387]

Jim Knight: QCA are taking forward the remit to raise the profile of financial capability education in a number of ways. To identify financial contexts within the development of functional mathematics; through guidance for mathematics teachers; and through a suite of sample lesson plans, set in the context of shopping and retailing.

Ataullah Siddiqui

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what process was undertaken to assess the suitability of Ataullah Siddiqui for the role of adviser to the Government on Islam in Higher Education; [72455]

(2) what steps his Department took to investigate whether there were links between Ataullah Siddiqui and the Jamaat-e-Islami Party prior to his appointment as adviser to the Government on Islam in Higher Education; [72456]

(3) what steps his Department took to investigate whether there were links between the Islamic Foundation of Leicester, the Markfield Institute of Higher Education and the Jamaat-e-Islami Party prior to the appointment of Ataullah Siddiqui as adviser to the Government on Islam in Higher Education. [72457]

Bill Rammell: I have appointed Dr. Siddiqi to advise the Department on how the quality of information about Islam available to students in universities and colleges can be improved. Dr. Siddiqi will be taking account of a range of views, and will be making recommendations early in 2007.

I appointed Dr. Siddiqi to this role because after careful consideration I decided he was the best qualified of a number of candidates. Dr. Siddiqi has a commitment to improving relationships between Muslims and the wider community, and is vice-chair of the Christian-Muslim forum launched by the Archbishop of Canterbury in January 2006. He has a distinguished academic record and an appropriate level of understanding of the education system. While the content of his report is a matter for him to decide, after appropriate consultation, Dr. Siddiqi shares the Government's concern that the material available about Islam in educational institutions is often unduly narrow in its outlook, and does not deal adequately with the role of Islam in a modern pluralistic society.

Dr. Siddiqi has assured me categorically that he has no links to the Jamaat-e-Islami Party.

Dr. Siddiqi is director of the Markfield Institute for Higher Education, although his appointment is in a personal capacity. The Markfield Institute of Higher Education is a higher education institution whose courses are validated by the University of Loughborough, and are subject to an audit of quality by the Quality Assurance Agency. It is sponsored by the Islamic Foundation Trust, an organisation which has a number of collaborations with universities in the UK and overseas. Neither Markfield nor the Islamic Foundation Trust have organisational links to Jamaat-e-Islami.

Children Centre Support

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which individuals and organisations his Department consulted before making the decision to contract out children's centre support work from the Department. [73466]

Beverley Hughes: The decision to contract out support for the roll-out of children's centres followed a recommendation from a wider review of the Government's 10-Year Childcare Strategy, during which a wide range of stakeholders were consulted, including local authority lead officials, children's centre managers and Sure Start and Children's Fund regional team leaders.

Before deciding to accept this recommendation the Department—in addition to work with a range of its own staff—held discussions with the Training and Development Agency for Schools, the Children's Workforce Development Council, with Government Office Directors of Children and Learners and with the Department's Trade Union side.

Connexions

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Connexions Card, with particular reference to take-up. [71720]

Beverley Hughes: The latest independent evaluation report of the effectiveness of the Connexions Card, undertaken by York Consulting Ltd. and published in January 2005 found that there had been improvements in engagement of schools and colleges and young people since 2003. There was also indicative evidence that the card may be having a positive effect on some cardholders and that many cardholders are positive about the potential benefits of the card. However, there was no evidence that the originally intended impact on increasing post-16 participation in further education and training is yet being achieved. Numbers taking up the card at that time were lower than original expectations. There are currently 604,645 Connexions cardholders.

Foreign Languages

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which foreign languages are taught in schools in Coventry South. [73462]

Jim Knight: Information is not collected on the subjects taught in schools. While it is possible to provide information on schools where at least one pupil has been entered for a particular subject, it is not possible, however, to say whether the school has actually taught the subject or whether the pupil has been entered privately. 15-year old pupils in Coventry South entered GCSEs in 2005 in the following languages—Arabic, Bengali, Chinese, Classical Civilisation, French, German, Greek, Gujarati, Italian, Latin, Panjabi, Portuguese, Spanish, Turkish and Urdu. Similar information is not readily available for other age groups.

Information Technology

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the (a) originally estimated, (b) most recently estimated and (c) outturn cost was in each of the five largest information technology contracts agreed by his Department with outside suppliers over the last five years. [71796]

Phil Hope: The information as requested is not readily available centrally within the Department for Education and Skills. To respond fully would involve an extensive internal and external information collection exercise which would exceed the recommended disproportionate cost threshold.

An analysis of the Department's individual learning account (ILA) programme is given in the report: 'The House of Commons Committee of Public Accounts (2003), individual learning accounts, tenth report of session 2002-03' (Ref: HC 544), TSO, London.

An analysis of the Department's UK e-university project is given in the report: 'The House of Commons Education and Skills select committee (2005), UK e-university, third report of session 2004-05' (Ref: HC 205), TSO, London.

In addition, I refer the hon. Member to the answers given by the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for Children Young People and Families on 13 June 2005, Official Report, column 192W; and, 3 November 2005, Official Report, column 1314W.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans he has to improve the quality of information and communication technology teaching in schools. [73382]

Phil Hope: Through the national strategies and national council for school leadership we are developing materials and peer-to-peer support to help school leaders and teachers make the best use of information and communications technology teaching to raise standards across the curriculum. We are supporting schools to invest in new teaching technologies such as interactive whiteboards and tablet PCs that are transforming many classrooms.

Private Contractors

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills with which private companies the Department has contracts; and what the (a) value and (b) purpose of each contract is. [73467]

Bill Rammell: This information could be supplied only at disproportionate cost.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Abdul Razzaq Ali al-Jedda

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the Iraqi government on the detention since October 2004 without charge or trial of joint UK/Iraqi national Abdul Razzaq Ali al-Jedda; and if she will make a statement. [73596]

Dr. Howells: Mr. al-Jedda is being detained by the British contingent of the Multi-National Force in Iraq for imperative reasons of security under the authority conferred by United Nations Security Council Resolutions 1546 (2004) and 1637 (2005).

Cayman Islands

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what timetable has been set for the modernisation of the Cayman Islands Constitution; and if she will make a statement. [73611]

Mr. Hoon: The timetable for Overseas Territory constitutional reviews is a matter for agreement between the Government and the Territory concerned. Following the publication of the Cayman Islands Constitution Review Commissioners' report in March 2002, there were initial negotiations on a new constitution between representatives of the UK and the Cayman Islands in December 2002. A new draft Constitution was prepared to reflect the outcome of these discussions and sent to the Islands in February 2003. This was debated by the Legislative Assembly in November 2003. The then Cayman Islands Government put the review process on hold in early 2004. Following the election of a new government in May 2005, constructive exploratory talks were held between a UK team and Cayman Islands representatives in March 2006. Once the consultation process, which we understand the Cayman Islands intends to hold, has been completed, the UK stands ready to participate in further discussions with Cayman Islands representatives.

Chad

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of (a) the rebel attack on 13 April on N'Djamena and (b) allegations of Sudanese involvement (i) in this action and (ii) with rebel groups in Chad; and if he will make a statement. [66688]

Mr. McCartney: The United Nations Security Council has condemned the recent attempt to overthrow the Government of Chad by force and called on the parties in Chad to resolve their political differences by negotiation.

We are aware of reports concerning the Government of Sudan's alleged support for Chadian rebels. We welcome the African Union's (AU) initiative to send a mission to Chad to examine the political situation and investigate such allegations. This mission arrived in N'Djamena on 21 April and will report to the AU Peace and Security Council.

We continue to call on all sides to show restraint, and on the Governments of Chad and Sudan to resolve their differences and restore calm to the region without the use of violence.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to (a) Sudan, (b) the African Union and (c) the UN regarding the attack on N'Djamena. [66717]

Mr. McCartney: The Chadian army defeated attacks on N'Djamena and Adre by rebel groups on 13 April. We are aware of reports concerning the Government of Sudan's alleged support for Chadian rebels. We continue to call on all sides to show restraint, and on the Governments of Chad and Sudan to resolve their differences and restore calm to the region without the use of violence.

Although we have not made recent representations to the African Union (AU), we welcome their initiative to send a mission to Chad to examine the political situation and investigate such allegations. This mission arrived in N'Djamena on 21 April, and will report to the AU Peace and Security Council.

We were proactive in supporting the United Nations Security Council's condemnation of the attempt to overthrow the Government of Chad by force and called on the parties to resolve their political differences by negotiation.

Congo

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make representations to the Government of the Democratic Republic of Congo on the arrest of the Reverend Kuthino Fernando; and what discussions she has had with the Government on the use of secret police. [73508]

Mr. McCartney: Through our embassy in Kinshasa, we have registered our concern over the arrest of Reverend Kuthino with the Government of the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC). We continue to remind all parties in the DRC that freedom of expression must be respected and ethnically charged speech must be prevented, particularly during the upcoming electoral campaign.

The international community has repeatedly made clear to the Congolese authorities that major reform of the security services is necessary. We have stated publicly that human rights abuses committed by security agencies need to be prevented, and their perpetrators brought to justice.

Departmental Expenditure

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will list the 10 non-public sector entities that have received the largest total sum of payments from her Department in each of the last five years. [71791]

Mr. Hoon: The top 10 non-public body suppliers for each year are:

Disability Access

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether any building in her Department falls short of disability access regulations. [73032]

Mr. Hoon: All Foreign and Commonwealth Office buildings in the UK meet the access requirements under disability access regulations, with the exception of a small number of portacabins at Hanslope Park which were erected prior to the regulations coming into force. These have limited access for people with a mobility disability and are due for demolition within the next two years. At present no one with such disability requires access to the portacabins. If access were needed we would look at the options available in accordance with the Disability Discrimination Act.

EU Directives

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will list the directives in respect of which the European Commission has taken the UK Government to court for failing to transpose them into national law since 1997. [69519]

Mr. Hoon: The following table sets out the information. A number of the cases are marked as being 'Removed from the Register'. These are cases where the application was lodged at the European Court of Justice but did not proceed to judgment, in most cases because the UK satisfied the Commission that the directive had been implemented. Where information on these cases is available it has been included. However, it would incur disproportionate cost to provide details for them all.

ECJ case reference	Directive
C-39/99	REMOVED FROM REGISTER
C-69/99	Failure to properly transpose articles 3 and 5 of directive 91/676/EEC on protection of waters against pollution by nitrates from agricultural sources

European Council

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the future of the vetoes held by individual member states over measures proposed in the European Council. [73780]

Mr. Hoon: The European Council operates by consensus. There are no proposals to change this.

Information Technology

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much was spent on information technology (IT) sourced from outside her Department in each of the last five years; who is responsible for such projects in her Department; and what IT (a) expertise and (b) qualifications they possess. [71789]

Mr. Hoon: The total value of information technology contracts greater than £1 million let by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) over the last five years is £478,245,262.

Some of these contracts run for more than five years. The total includes a £180 million contract with Global Crossing for provision of both voice and data communications for the FCO's Telecommunications Network.

In accordance with the Office of Government Commerce (OGC) best practice, each project has a senior responsible owner at an appropriate level with responsibility for, and knowledge of, the business requirement. Project management is provided internally or sourced externally according to the skills and qualifications required for the scale of project concerned. All IT-enabled projects above the relevant threshold are approved and monitored by the FCO's Investment Committee, and are subject to external validation through the OGC Gateway review process. Both ensure that the project team is adequately staffed and professionally skilled to deliver effectively. To give full details of all staff concerned would incur disproportionate cost.

Nepal

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her Department's policy is on the granting of export licences to Nepal for the sale of arms. [73722]

Dr. Howells: All applications from the UK are rigorously assessed on a case-by-case basis against the Consolidated EU and National Export Licensing Criteria, taking full account of the prevailing circumstances at the time of application. This process includes specific criteria whereby we will not issue a licence where there is a clear risk that the proposed export might be used for internal repression, might aggravate existing tensions or conflict in the country of final destination or that the export may be used aggressively against another country. Details of all export licences approved to Nepal are available in the Quarterly and Annual Reports on Strategic Export Controls (available on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website at: http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c= Page &cid=1089131553823), and are subject to detailed retrospective scrutiny by the Quadripartite Committees.

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what monitoring of the ceasefire in Nepal is undertaken by UK representatives; and if she will make a statement. [73745]

Dr. Howells: None. The UK has no locus to act as a ceasefire monitor.

Prisoners (Iraq/Afghanistan)

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has received from the US Administration in the last six months regarding UK policy on the transfer of prisoners held by UK forces in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan to the custody of US forces in those countries. [73725]

Dr. Howells: We have received no formal representations in the last six months. But we regularly discuss the range of issues relating to the operational theatres in Iraq and Afghanistan, including detention, with the US.

Uganda

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of reports that the British law firm Denton Wilde Sapte is to prosecute the Ugandan opposition leader Dr. Kizza Besigye for treason in a trial which carries the death penalty; and if she will make a statement. [73073]

Mr. McCartney: We are aware of media reports that a British firm of solicitors may have been approached by the Ugandan public prosecutor to assist in the prosecution of Dr Besigye. This is a matter for the parties concerned.

The prosecution has however given no indication that they will seek the death penalty should Dr. Besigye be convicted. The last occasion on which a capital sentence imposed by the High Court was carried out in Uganda was in 1999. We have repeatedly made clear to the Ugandan Government our opposition to the death penalty and the need for a fair and transparent judicial process.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the internal situation in Uganda; and if she will make a statement. [73113]

Mr. McCartney: Uganda faces two main internal challenges: developing and sustaining democratic accountability and good governance, and bringing to an end the long-running conflict in the North. We have a regular dialogue with the Ugandan authorities on both issues and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for International Development discussed them in depth during his visit on 15-16 May. He emphasised that this was a crucial time in Uganda's political development. The re-introduction of a multi-party political system after 25 years was an important achievement: both Government and Opposition must work together to achieve an accountable and transparent political process. He welcomed the President's manifesto commitment to tackle corruption and to hold those responsible to account. We welcome commitments by the Government of Uganda to deal with the conflict in the North.

UK Prisoners Abroad

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 May 2006, Official Report, columns 905-7W, on UK prisoners abroad, how many UK citizens detained in overseas gaols had a last residential address in (a) Essex and (b) Southend West. [73245]

Dr. Howells: As British nationals detained overseas are not required to inform local consular officials of their last UK residential address, I am unable to provide the information requested by the hon. Member.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will take steps to ensure that Arthur Mutambara of the Movement for Democratic Change is released from custody in Zimbabwe or given a fair trial. [73668]

Mr. McCartney: We note with concern the arrest of Arthur Mutumbara and his party colleagues. They were released on 19 May. It is not yet clear if charges will be pressed. Our embassy in Harare has been and remains in contact with Mr. Mutambara's associates. This appears to be yet another instance of the Zimbabwean Government harassing those who oppose them. We will continue to press for the restoration of democracy and the rule of law.

CABINET OFFICE

Information Technology

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent on information technology (IT) sourced from outside her Cabinet Office in each of the last five years; who is responsible for such projects in the Cabinet Office; and what IT (a) expertise and (b) qualifications they possess. [71783]

Mr. McFadden: The amount spent on information technology (IT) hardware, software, consultancy and services sourced from outside the Department in each of the last five financial years is shown in the table.

	Expenditure (£)
2001-02	16,630,784
2002-03	16,719,547
2003-04	21,195,208
2004-05	22,385,617
2005-06	35,756,263

These totals do not include the costs of ancillary or supporting IT provided as an integral part of contracts for other goods and services and not separately identified.

The figures for 2005-06 are subject to audit. Audited figures will be available in the published resource accounts, due before the summer recess.

Overall policy for IT projects in the Department falls under the shared services director in the e-Government unit. The current post holder has 20 years experience in IT management roles in both private and public sectors and is a qualified accountant.

Ministerial Tenure

Mr. Allen: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the average length of time in office has been for (a) Cabinet Ministers, (b) Ministers of State and (c) Parliamentary Under-Secretaries of State since 1997. [73603]

Hilary Armstrong: Information on ministerial appointments can be obtained from the 'List of Ministerial Responsibilities'. Editions since 1997 are available in the Library.

Social Exclusion (Air Travel)

Anne Main: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment she has made of the role of budget airlines in reducing social exclusion by enabling passengers wider access to foreign and internal travel; and if she will make a statement. [71168]

Hilary Armstrong: No formal assessment of the role of budget airlines in reducing social exclusion has been made, however we recognise the value that access to affordable travel may have in helping promote social inclusion.

Tackling social exclusion is one of this Government's most ambitious and important goals and transport problems can reinforce social exclusion. The social exclusion unit has focused on ensuring that local services and activities are accessible, and as a result of the 2003 'Making the Connections: Transport and Social Exclusion' report, accessibility planning is now a central feature of local transport plans.

Vehicle Sharing

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what incentives her Department offers to encourage staff to share vehicles when travelling to work. [73046]

Mr. McFadden: Given that the vast majority of Cabinet Office employees are located in central London and travel to and from work by public transport, the Cabinet Office does not offer specific incentives to encourage its employees to share vehicles when travelling to work.

Despite this, the Cabinet Office will be encouraging more sustainable travel (business and travel to and from work) among its employees depending on the nature and circumstances of particular sites. For example, the Cabinet Office's Environmental Policy is currently being revised and the travel policy section is being strengthened to this effect and will encourage employees to car share where public transport is not reasonably accessible travelling to and from work.

Further initiatives will be considered as part of any Government-wide publicity campaigns on travelling more sustainably and the Cabinet Office's membership of the Civil Service Travel Group (CSTG). The CSTG aims to improve travel sustainability across the entire civil service by developing and delivering on action plans for each Department.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Government Vehicles

Norman Baker: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister under what circumstances ministerial cars and drivers under the control of his Department may be used to transport his personal acquaintances on private business; and whether it is his policy to reimburse the costs of such use. [67355]

The Deputy Prime Minister [holding answer 2 May 2006]: Guidance on the use of ministerial cars is set out in the "Ministerial Code" and "Travel by Ministers".

My Permanent Secretary at the then Office of the Deputy Prime Minister has replied, on his own behalf and that of the Cabinet Secretary, to a letter from the hon. Member for Old Bexley and Sidcup (Derek Conway) concerning the alleged misuse of my ministerial car. A copy of this reply has been made available in the Library of the House. The Permanent Secretary confirmed he was satisfied that the Department had appropriate systems in place and that at no time did I direct that my car be used as had been alleged.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Civil Service Uniform

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many security guards wearing Crown-based insignia (a) there are in and (b) have been contracted by the civil service, broken down by community background. [66396]

Mr. Hanson: The following table outlines the number of security guards employed and contracted by the Northern Ireland civil service who are supplied with uniforms bearing a crown based insignia.

Security guards employed and contracted by NICS

	Number
Security guards in NICS who wear crown insignia	49
Security guards contracted by NICS who wear crown insignia	—
Total	49

The following table provides a breakdown by community background for the entire NICS guard force, as the information for only those supplied with uniforms with crown based insignia or who are contracted by the NICS is not readily available.

Councillors (Company Boards)

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what steps are being taken to address the reasons for the moratorium preventing local councillors from serving on the boards of arm's length companies; [72922]

(2) if he will bring forward legislation to enable councils to appoint (a) councillors and (b) officers to serve as directors of arm's length companies. [72923]

David Cairns: There is no moratorium preventing district councillors from serving on the boards of arm's length companies which district councils in Northern Ireland are currently involved in.

At present, district councils do not have the power to establish or participate in companies. However, the Department of the Environment will commence consultation very shortly with district councils and other interested parties on a proposal to make subordinate legislation to allow councils, in exercising certain functions, to establish or participate in companies in order to carry out their duty of Best Value. The legislation will enable councils to appoint councillors or officers to serve as directors of such companies.

In the meantime, until this subordinate legislation is made, the Department has agreed to give sanction to district councils under Article 19 of the Local Government (Northern Ireland) Order 2005 in respect of payments of attendance allowance and expenses to councillors and officers who represent their councils on companies. The approval of the Department prevents local government auditors from taking action which would result in persons responsible for the expenditure having to repay it.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what incentives (a) each Department in Northern Ireland and (b) the Northern Ireland Office, offer to encourage staff to share vehicles when travelling to work. [73086]

David Cairns: The Chief Executive of Roads Service (Dr. Malcolm McKibbin) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Dr. Malcolm McKibbin:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question about what incentives each department in Northern Ireland, including the Northern Ireland Office, offer to encourage staff to share vehicles when travelling to work.

I have been asked to reply as this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Roads Service.

The Travelwise Campaign in Northern Ireland is aimed at promoting more sustainable transport options, including walking, cycling, greater use of public transport and the concept of car sharing, particularly for the journey to work and places of education.

Travelwise NI assists Government Departments as well as private and public sector businesses in promoting workplace travel plans, to encourage staff to travel more sustainably. Car Sharing is only one element of a travel plan.

To facilitate car sharing in Government Departments, in June last year, Nigel Hamilton, Head of the NI Civil Service launched the Travelwise NI Car Share Scheme on behalf of Roads Service. This is a no-charge web-based scheme where Civil Servants are encouraged to go on-line at www.travelwisenicarshare.com and register their journey details. The system automatically searches for a person travelling in the same direction and puts staff in contact with each other to share their journeys.

The scheme has been widely promoted across Government Departments through the media, information days, internal magazines and competitions and has now been rolled out to businesses and to the public. To date, 1,312 members have registered on the scheme and 38% of members have had their journeys matched and are potentially car sharing.

By way of local incentives, the Department for Regional Development created 21 dedicated car share spaces at its Headquarters in Clarence Court, Belfast, to encourage greater car sharing among staff. I also understand that the Department of Finance and Personnel and the Department of Education offer staff who car share a guaranteed car parking space at some of their buildings.

I should also add that Roads Service is currently responsible for 20 Park & Ride/Park & Share car parks across the province which provide 1,478 car park spaces. Civil Servants, like any member of the public, can park their cars at these sites and share the journey to work, thereby reducing travel costs. These sites are promoted at a Divisional level as well as through the Travelwise NI Website (www. travelwiseni.com). Further Park & Ride and Park & Share sites have been identified within the Sub-Regional Transport Plan and the Regional Strategic Transport Network Transport Plan.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many and what percentage of staff in (a) each department in Northern Ireland and (b) the Northern Ireland Office, are making additional voluntary contributions to their pension. [73087]

Mr. Hanson: The following table details the number and percentage of staff in each department in Northern Ireland, including the Northern Ireland Office who are making additional voluntary contributions to their pensions.

Figures relating to the Northern Ireland Office include both members of the Northern Ireland Civil Service and the Home Civil Service working in that Department.

Employing dept	Active members	AVC contributors	Overall percentage

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to staff in (a) each department in Northern Ireland and (b) the Northern Ireland Office, in each of the last three years; and what the total cost was. [73088]

Mr. Hanson: The following table details the non-pensionable bonuses that were awarded to staff in each Department of the Northern Ireland Administration and the Northern Ireland Office (including Agencies), in each of the last three financial years.

It is part of the Government's pay policy that not all reward should be in the form of consolidated increases: non-consolidated, non-pensionable payments should also be part of civil service pay strategies and should focus on in-year performance. These payments, which form part of the annual NICS pay deal, represent the bulk of the following figures.

Department	2003-04 Number of bonuses	2003-04 Cost	2004-05 Number of bonuses	2004-05 Cost	2005-06 Number of bonuses	2005-06 Cost	All three years Total number	All three years Total cost

Roads

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Department for Regional Development spent on improving the road network in County (a) Tyrone, (b) Derry and (c) Fermanagh in each of the past five years; and how much the Department has budgeted for (i) 2006-07 and (ii) the next two years for roads in these counties. [73222]

David Cairns: The Chief Executive of Roads Service (Dr. Malcolm McKibbin) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Dr. Malcolm McKibbin, dated 25 May 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question about how much the Department for Regional Development spent on improving the road network in County (a) Tyrone, (b) Derry and (c) Fermanagh in each of the past five years; and how much the Department has budgeted for (i) 2006-07 and (ii) the next two years for roads in these counties.

I have been asked to reply as this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Roads Service.

First of all I must advise that Roads Service does not maintain details of expenditure on a county basis. However, such information is available on a district council basis. The table below details Roads Service's expenditure on major and minor capital works improvements for the nine district councils whose boundaries straddle Counties Tyrone, Londonderry and Fermanagh:

Roads Service expenditure on major and minor works by council area

Roads Service expenditure on major and minor works by council area

Minor Capital Works	661	434	274	1,308	1,693
Total Magherafelt	677	434	274	1,308	1,693

In providing the above information I should explain that Roads Service does not simply split its total budget for capital expenditure on roads across all the district council areas. Major road improvements are prioritised on a countrywide basis taking account of a broad range of criteria such as strategic planning policy, traffic flow, number of accidents, potential travel save times, environment impact and value for money. While the actual spend on a major works scheme may be within one district council area, the benefits of such schemes are not confined to the district council, constituency or county in which they are located.

Roads Service expenditure on minor road improvements includes minor works, accident remedial schemes, transportation measure and minor bridge strengthening. The resources available for such works are allocated to the 4 Roads Service Divisions and, in turn, apportioned across district council areas on a needs-based priority approach using indicators such as population, weighted road lengths and the number of accidents. This ensures, so far as possible, an equitable distribution of funds across the country.

With regard to the capital budget for 2006-07, again it is not possible to split this budget into counties. The total Roads Service Capital Budget in 2006/07 is £111M and the split per the relevant Roads Service Division is as follows:

The initial budget allocation for major and minor works in Western Division is £22M (£7M Minor, £15M Major). Our Western Division incorporates 6 District Council areas—Cookstown, Dungannon, Fermanagh, Omagh, Magherafelt, and Strabane.

The initial budget allocation for major and minor works in Northern Division is £12M (£6M Minor, £6M Major). Our Northern Division incorporates 8 District Council areas—Antrim, Ballymena, Ballymoney, Coleraine, Derry, Larne, Limavady, and Moyle.

With regard to the capital budget for the next two years I can advise that the total Roads Service capital budget in 2007/08 is £112M. However, this budget has not yet been allocated to our Divisions. The 2008/09 budget is outside the current budget period and cannot be confirmed.

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the (a) budget and (b) timetable is for construction of the Skeoge Link Road in Derry. [73308]

David Cairns: The Chief Executive of Roads Service (Dr Malcolm McKibbin) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Dr Malcolm McKibbin, dated 25 May 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question about what the (a) budget and (b) timetable is for construction of the Skeoge Link Road in Derry. I have been asked to reply as this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Roads Service.

I can confirm that good progress is being made by Roads Service to secure the delivery of the Skeoge Link Road in Derry. The road is to be constructed to dual carriageway standard at an estimated cost of £5 million.

The Notice of Intention to make a Vesting Order was published in March 2006 and no objections to the Notice were received. The Scheme was passed for planning approval at a meeting with Derry City Council on 16 May 2006 and discussions are ongoing with developers to complete the statutory agreements.

Roads Service has completed the detailed design of the scheme and will be in a position to invite tenders at the end of June 2006. This would enable construction to commence in September. However, this time scale remains dependant on the agreed transfer of lands from the developers, which has still not been secured.

I would like to assure you of Roads Service's continued commitment to provide this much needed road scheme, which would complete the strategic route from the Foyle Bridge through to Buncrana Road, remove through traffic from Glengalliagh Road, and will also unlock land for further housing and industrial development.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much roads maintenance funding has been allocated to each of the district electoral areas in (a) Down and (b) Newry and Mourne Council area in each of the last 10 years. [73476]

David Cairns: The Chief Executive of Roads Service (Dr. Malcolm McKibbin) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Dr. Malcolm McKibbin, dated 25 May 2006

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question about how much roads maintenance funding has been allocated to each of the district electoral areas in (a) Down and (b) Newry and Mourne Council area in each of the last 10 years.

I have been asked to reply as this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Roads Service.

First of all I must advise that Roads Service does not maintain details of expenditure on a district electoral area basis. However, such information is available on a district council basis. Details of roads maintenance funding allocated by district council area are only available from 1999/2000 and are detailed in the table below:

£000

	Council area
	Down	Newry and Mourne
1999/2000	2,328	3,234
2000/01	3,608	4,466
2001/02	4,366	5,456
2002/03	4,641	5,256
2003/04	5,089	5,042
2004/05	7,069	7,567

In providing this information I should explain that the funds available for roads maintenance are allocated to the 4 Roads Service Divisions who, in turn, allocate across district council areas. The resources available for each maintenance activity (resurfacing, patching, gully emptying, grass cutting etc.) are apportioned to district councils using appropriate indicators of need. This ensures, so far as is possible, an equitable distribution of funds.

Water Services

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of the Northern Ireland regional rate revenue is allocated to water services in Northern Ireland in 2006-07. [73477]

Mr. Hanson: The regional rate is an un-hypothecated tax and is not allocated to specific areas of expenditure, but instead contributes to the overall resources available to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland to allocate to regional public services in Northern Ireland.

PRIME MINISTER

Assisted Dying for the Terminally Ill Bill

Mr. Amess: To ask the Prime Minister how many representations he has received (a) supporting and (b) opposing the Assisted Dying for the Terminally Ill Bill [Lords]; what percentage the latter represents of the former; and if he will make a statement. [72042]

The Prime Minister: My Office has received a petition containing approximately 100,000 signatures against the Assisted Dying for the Terminally Ill Bill [Lords].

Departmental Bills (Amendments)

Mr. Amess: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list the occasions when an amendment has been moved by (a) a Labour backbencher, (b) an Opposition backbencher and (c) an Opposition front bench spokesman to a Bill sponsored by his Department that has been accepted by his Department during the current session; and if he will make a statement. [72129]

The Prime Minister: I support all Bills introduced by the Government, however my Office does not have direct responsibility for introducing or taking through the House any individual Bills.

Information Technology

Chris Huhne: To ask the Prime Minister how much was spent on information technology (IT) sourced from outside his Office in each of the last five years; who is responsible for such projects in his Office; and what IT (a) expertise and (b) qualifications they possess. [71774]

The Prime Minister: For these purposes my office forms part of the Cabinet Office. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office (Mr. McFadden) today.

Israel

Mr. Amess: To ask the Prime Minister when he visited the State of Israel in an official capacity in each year since 1997; what matters were discussed; and if he will make a statement. [72044]

The Prime Minister: Since 1999 the Government have published an annual list of all visits overseas undertaken by Cabinet Ministers costing £500 or more during each financial year. Copies of these lists are available in the Library of the House. Information on the number of officials accompanying me on overseas visits is included in the list. All travel is undertaken in accordance with the rules set out in the ministerial code and travel by Ministers. Information for the year 2005-06 will be published as soon as it is ready after the end of the financial year.

I have regular discussions with the Israeli Government on a wide range of issues. Transcripts of press conferences I have held are available on the No. 10 website.

Journalists (Foreign Visits)

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Prime Minister which journalists accompanied him on (a) his recent trip to Iraq and (b) his trip to Australia and New Zealand in March; and how much each paid for their airfare. [73550]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to him on 3 May 2006, Official Report, column 1675W.

Meetings

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Prime Minister whether (1) he has met (a) Mr Richard Caring, (b) Mr Ron Aldridge, (c) Dr Chai Patel, (d) Mr Barry Townsley, (e) Mr Andrew Rosenfeld, (f) Mr Derek Tullett, (g) Sir Gulam Noon, (h) Mr Nigel Morris, (i) Sir David Garrard and (j) Sir Christopher Evans on official business at 10 Downing Street in the past 12 months; and if he will make a statement; [61429]

(2) whether he has met representatives of Merlin Biosciences Limited on official business in the past 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [61478]

The Prime Minister: My officials and I have meetings with a wide range of organisations and individuals on a wide range of subjects. Information relating to internal meetings, discussion and advice is not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

Portland PR

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Prime Minister what meetings officials in his private office have had with Portland PR; what contracts Portland PR has with persons who report directly to him; what contractual relationship exists between the Government and Portland PR which is not covered by the responsibilities of any other Minister in the Government; and what the terms of the contract are in each case. [72170]

The Prime Minister: My officials and I have meetings with a wide range of organisations and individuals on a wide range of subjects. Information relating to internal meetings, discussion and advice is not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

Private Members' Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list those Private Members' Bills in respect of which his Department adopted a policy of neutrality in each session since 2001-02; and if he will make a statement. [72127]

The Prime Minister: My Office does not have direct responsibility for individual Private Members Bills.

Public Sector Reform

Mr. Francois: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to his announcement on 15 May 2006, on public service reform, what guidance he has issued to the Chancellor of the Exchequer on his new role in leading public sector reform. [73536]

The Prime Minister: I have regular meetings and discussions with ministerial colleagues and others on a wide range of subjects. Information relating to internal meetings, discussion and advice is not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

Reshuffle (Costs)

Philip Davies: To ask the Prime Minister what the cost was of the recent Cabinet reshuffle, broken down by main budget heading. [71950]

The Prime Minister: The numbers of salaried Ministers is governed by the Ministerial and Other Salaries Act 1975. The cost of machinery of Government changes will be met by relevant departments within existing departmental budgets.

Whaling

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Prime Minister what discussions he had at the recent EU summit in Vienna with Latin American and Caribbean' leaders concerning their countries' voting intentions at the next International Whaling Commission meeting in June; and if he will make a statement. [72638]

The Prime Minister: While the subject of whaling was not raised at the EU summit in Vienna, this Government's strong opposition to commercial and scientific whaling is well known and Ministers continue to raise the issue at every appropriate opportunity.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

IT Infrastructure

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Leader of the House what recent assessment the Commission has made of the (a) effectiveness and (b) reliability of information technology (i) equipment and (ii) infrastructure provided for hon. Members' constituency offices. [72613]

Mr. Straw: The Administration Committee monitors the quality of ICT services in the House on behalf of the Leader of the House of Commons. The Committee asks for reports and oral updates from the Parliamentary ICT Service, on a regular basis. The Committee recently received a briefing on the current performance of the VPN service and all Members were informed by email of the outcome of that meeting. The Committee intends to undertake a fuller review of ICT services later in the year.

Private Members' Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Leader of the House if he will list those Private Members' Bills on which he or his predecessor has adopted a policy of neutrality in each session since 2001-02; and if he will make a statement. [72100]

Mr. Straw: So far as I am aware, there have been no such cases. The only recent Private Members' Bill that the Leader of the House (then my predecessor the right hon. Member for Ashfield) has been responsible for responding to, was Clare Short's Armed Forces (Participation in Armed Conflict) Bill, where the Government stance was not neutral. It is rare for the Leader of the House to be the responsible Minister for responding to a Private Member's Bill.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the role of UK forces in Afghanistan. [72972]

Mr. Ingram: UK forces are deployed in Afghanistan in support of a UN authorised, NATO-led mission, the International Security Assistance Force (ISAF), and as part of the US-led international coalition. We are there to prevent Afghanistan from again harbouring terrorism, to build security and Government institutions, and to support the Afghan Security Forces in combating insurgents and illegally armed groups, all of which remain threats to Afghan security and stability.

Commonwealth Recruits

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of recruits to the Army in each of the last 10 years came from other Commonwealth countries. [73738]

Mr. Watson: The proportion of those personnel who have entered untrained strength to the Army who have a nationality of a Commonwealth country (excluding UK) are as follows:

Proportion of Commonwealth (excluding the UK) inflow into the untrained strength of the Regular Army

	Officer	Soldier	Percentage Total
1995-96	1.6	0.3	0.4
1996-97	2.1	0.3	0.3
1997-98	1.3	0.2	0.3
1998-99	1.5	0.7	0.7
1999-2000	1.2	2.8	2.7
2000-01	1.5	5.1	4.9
2001-02	1.5	8.1	7.7
2002-03	3.5	12.7	12.2
2003-04	3.3	10.9	10.5
2004-05	4.0	8.8	8.5
2005-06	1.9	5.4	5.1

Notes:
1. The figures are for trained Regular Army only and therefore exclude Gurkhas, Home Service battalions of the Royal Irish Regiment, Full Time Reserve Service, Mobilised Reserves, TA and all other Reserves.
2. Figures are based on Untrained Intake into the Army and for soldiers include inflows from Illegal Absence. Rates are based on all inflow regardless of nationality.
3. The nationality given above is that recorded on inflow to the untrained strength and is not necessarily the same as the nationality at birth.
4. Includes inflows only from those with a nationality of a Commonwealth country. It therefore excludes inflows from those with a nationality of UK, UK dependency, Eire and Other Countries.

Defence Information Initiative

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on progress with the Defence Information Initiative. [71907]

Mr. Ingram: The transfer of the first group of legacy systems to ATLAS was achieved in August 2005—on time—and the single point of contact 'help desk' facility went live in November 2005. During January 2006 the timing for rollout was re-scheduled to account for changes in Defence planning since earlier contract negotiations. System build has progressed over the last nine months such that, during May, the first Territorial Army sites will go live on the new DII(Future) system.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he will publish his Department's expenditure plans for 2006-07 and 2007-08. [73107]

Mr. Ingram: We will publish the Ministry of Defence's expenditure plans before the summer recess.

Hercules Aircraft

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the level of risk to UK military personnel flying in UK Hercules aircraft without anti-explosive foam in conflict zones. [68386]

Mr. Ingram: We constantly monitor the overall threat to our aircraft and specific research looking at the threats, options for protection and air platform survivability measures is currently under way. Among other issues, this research will review the effectiveness of foam in Hercules fuel tanks. Operational flying can never be a risk free activity but the Air Warfare Centre continually assesses the threats to our aircraft and considers measures to mitigate these risks. The details of these programmes cannot be released as this would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness and security of our armed forces.

Hospitals

Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the most recent valuation is of the land and buildings at the Royal Hospital Haslar. [72583]

Mr. Watson: A valuation of the land and buildings at the Royal Hospital Haslar was undertaken in March 2006.

I am withholding details of the valuation as release would be likely to prejudice the commercial interests of the Department by unduly influencing the market if and when the properties concerned were sold.

Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many surgical and medical treatments were undertaken in respect of (a) service personnel and (b) civilians at the Royal Hospital Haslar in the last 12 months, broken down by types of treatments. [72579]

Mr. Watson: The surgical and medical treatments undertaken at the Royal Hospital Haslar in the 12 month period from 1 April 2005 until 31 March 2006 are as follows:

Service personnel

Category	Number
Chronic Pain	19
Endoscopy	166
Ear, Nose and Throat	24
General Surgery	238
Maxillo-facial	376
Orthopaedic	372
Plastic Surgery	57
Total	1,252

Civilians
Category	Number
Chemotherapy	1,107
Chronic Pain	311
Endoscopy	1,903
Ear, Nose and Throat	43
General Surgery	2,733
Maxillo-facial	531
Orthopaedic	6,601
Plastic Surgery	673
Total	13,902

Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) messing, (b) accommodation and (c) recreational facilities are available to service personnel based at Birmingham hospitals; and what facilities are planned for the Ministry of Defence Hospital Unit at Portsmouth. [72580]

Mr. Watson: Service personnel employed or undergoing training at Birmingham hospitals are placed on the establishment of the Royal Centre for Defence Medicine (RCDM) and are mainly housed in leased accommodation.

There are currently no dedicated messing facilities for service personnel based at the RCDM, but they do have regular access to facilities at HMS Forward (a local Royal Naval Reserve Unit) and at the police recreation centre in Birmingham. Similarly there are no dedicated recreational facilities, but Service personnel enjoy free use of a number of leisure centres in Birmingham as a result of contractual arrangements in place between the Ministry of Defence and Birmingham City Council.

With regard to the MOD Hospital Unit (MDHU) in Portsmouth it is planned to have Single Living Accommodation and associated messing facilities in place for 200 Service personnel by 2009. Having identified a number of potential options for meeting this requirement a detailed assessment study is now being undertaken to establish the preferred solution. Service recreation facilities within the Portsmouth area are excellent and will continue to be available to MDHU Portsmouth personnel. Such facilities include the Royal Naval School of Physical Training, HMS Temeraire, which provides a wide range of sports facilities.

Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the total operating costs were of (a) each of the Ministry of Defence hospital units and (b) the Royal Hospital Haslar in the last year for which figures are available; and how the costs for the Royal Hospital Haslar were shared between his Department and the Department of Health. [72582]

Mr. Watson: The operating costs for Royal Hospital Haslar and each of the Ministry of Defence hospital units (MDHU) for the 2004-05 financial year are set out in the following table. This is the last year for which audited figures are available.

Unit	Operating costs (£ million)
Royal Hospital Haslar	33.547
MDHU Derriford	8.802
MDHU Peterborough	7.822
MDHU Frimley Park	9.376
MDHU Northallerton	7.063

In 2004-05 the costs for Royal Hospital Haslar included the costs of what is now MDHU(Portsmouth), the fort blockhouse support unit, and military retained services. The cost share arrangements between the Ministry of Defence and the Department of Health resulted in costs of £7.5 million falling to the Portsmouth hospitals trust for the 2004-05 financial year, with the remaining £26.047 million being the responsibility of the Ministry of Defence.

Iraq

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many requests he has received from commanders in Iraq for additional armoured vehicles during the last 12 months; and what the Government's response was to each request. [65447]

Mr. Ingram: The force level and composition of British forces in Iraq is formally reviewed on a regular basis. Commanders in Iraq contribute to this process, which may result in adjustments to the number of armoured vehicles. Should any additional requests be received in addition to these regular reviews, they would be considered and actioned accordingly. However, I can confirm that no such requests for additional armoured vehicles have been received in the last 12 months.

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which major units of the British Army are based in Iraq; and where in Iraq they are based. [71705]

Mr. Ingram: Details of the major units deployed to Iraq and where they are based can be found in the following table:

Unit	Location
1st The Queen's Dragoon Guards	Muthanna
The Queen's Royal Hussars (The Queen's Own and Royal Irish)	Maysan
12th Regiment Royal Artillery	Basrah and Shaibah
1st Battalion Grenadier Guards	Shaibah and Baghdad
1st Battalion The Princess of Wales's Royal Regiment (Queen's and Royal Hampshires)	Shaibah
2nd Battalion The Royal Anglian Regiment	Shaibah
1st Battalion The Devon and Dorset Light Infantry	Shaibah and Umm Qasr
1st Battalion The Light Infantry	Basrah City
33 Engineer Regiment	Shaibah
35 Engineer Regiment	Shaibah
1 Logistic Support Regiment	Shaibah

A composite company of the Territorial Army drawn from the Lancastrian and Cumbrian Volunteers and The King's and Cheshire Regiment is also currently based in Basrah.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 4 May 2006, Official Report, columns 1813-14W, on Iraq, whether service by a UK civilian police officer engaged in training Iraqi police officers would qualify for the award of an Iraq Medal. [73742]

Mr. Watson: A civilian police officer engaged in training Iraqi police officers would not have been sent to Iraq by the Ministry of Defence to work in direct support of the military and would therefore not qualify to receive the MOD Iraq Medal.

It is possible that such a civilian police officer would qualify to receive a special medal which is to be issued to recognise service by UK civilians in Iraq. This medal has been approved by the Queen and was announced at the end of June 2005 by the Prime Minister. The eligibility criteria for this second Iraq medal currently being considered by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and will be announced in due course.

Medals

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 27 April 2006, Official Report, column 1272W, on medals, for what reason the report of Lord Guthrie did not explicitly state that the 30-day qualifying period had to be continuous. [72190]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 23 May 2006]: The report on the meeting of the sub-committee of the Committee on the Grant of Honours Decorations and Medals, which was established to consider the case for a medal for service in the Suez Canal zone in the early 1950s, was produced by the Ceremonial Secretariat at the Cabinet Office. It did not contain and was not intended to contain a detailed account of the eligibility criteria. The main focus of the report was on the justification for the institution of a new medal. It merely indicated that the sub-committee recommended that service of at least 30 days would be required. It did not indicate whether eligible service must be continuous. Neither did the report indicate that it could be aggregated.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the 30-day qualifying period for Army personnel to receive the General Service Medal for service in the 1951 to 1954 Suez Canal zone campaign is required to be continuous. [72191]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 23 May 2006]: Command Paper 5999 was presented to Parliament in October 2003 by the Secretary of State for Defence and laid down the qualifying criteria for the Naval General Service Medal and General Service Medal for service in the Suez Canal zone between 16 October 1951 and 19 October 1954. In accordance with standard procedures, a copy was placed in the Library of the House.

The period of time required to qualify for the medal was identical for all three services and stated that 30 days or more continuous service in the qualifying area was necessary to receive the medal.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 27 April 2006, Official Report, column 1272W, on medals, how many Naval General Service Medals have been awarded to Royal Navy personnel for 30 days service in the Zone; and if he will list the Royal Navy (a) ships and (b) other units which spent 30 days serving continuously in the Suez Canal Zone between 1951 and 1954. [72192]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 23 May 2006]: There has been a total of 2,208 Naval General Service Medals with Canal Zone Clasp awarded to Royal Navy and Royal Marines to date.

The following table details the Royal Navy ships and units that spent 30 days serving continuously in the Suez Canal Zone between 16 October 1951 and 19 October 1954.

Ship	Dates	Number of days
Barfleur	19 January 1954-21 February 1954	34

Wrangler	14 April 1954-25 May 1954	42

Military Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) Canberra, (b) Nimrod and (c) Tornado GR4A aircraft are (i) in service and (ii) fit for purpose. [71920]

Mr. Ingram: The following table shows the numbers of Canberra, Nimrod and Tornado GR aircraft that are planned to be in service at the end of March 2007, and that were fit for purpose (FFP) last month.

Aircraft type	Total fleet	Number of Aircraft FFP (Average for April 2006)[1]
Canberra[2]	0	n/a
Nimrod[3]	22	15
Tornado GR[4]	139	49

[1] Figures are rounded to the nearest whole number.
[2] The Canberra fleet is due to be withdrawn from service this year. Because of the small size of the Canberra fleet, FFP is recorded in terms of sorties.
[3] Includes Nimrod R1 and Nimrod MR2 aircraft.
[4] Tornado GR4A fleet numbers are not recorded separately.

Aircraft are deemed fit for purpose if they are capable of undertaking the required task on a given day. Aircraft are not available for tasking if they are undergoing scheduled maintenance, modification programmes or any other unforeseen rectification work that can arise on a day to day basis. The figures do not reflect the fact that an aircraft assessed as not fit for purpose may be returned to the front line at very short notice to meet the operational need.

Military Vehicles

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many working armoured Land Rovers were in the Army's possession in each year since 2001. [72080]

Mr. Ingram: Between 2001 and 2006 a fleet of 982 protected Land Rovers has been maintained. However, as it is not the Ministry of Defence policy to have the whole fleet available to support the front line at all times, vehicles are subject to an ongoing programme of maintenance or repair. The numbers of available Land Rovers is therefore subject to change and the information requested is not held. During the period all operational and training requirements have been met. Those vehicles damaged on operations are either repaired or replaced as necessary.

Nepal

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what direct funding the UK has allocated to the Royal Nepalese Army in 2006-07. [73723]

Mr. Ingram: Following action in February 2005 by the King of Nepal to assume direct personal rule, UK military assistance to the Royal Nepalese Army was significantly reduced. The funding planned for military assistance this financial year (2006-07) is £7,523,000. It covers human rights training, explosive ordnance disposal equipment and training, help to develop professionalism and aid to develop a military engineering capability. In light of the welcome political changes currently taking place in Nepal, HMG is currently reviewing its policy of assistance to the country.

Nuclear Powered Submarines

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the procedure is for dealing with reactor start-up effluent from nuclear powered submarines using X berths; and if he will make a statement. [73322]

Mr. Ingram: Effluent is not produced by reactor start up but by the warming up process. Reactor warm up effluent from Swiftsure and Trafalgar class nuclear powered submarines using X berths is dealt with in accordance with standard operating procedures. At HM Naval Base Clyde it is collected in a primary effluent tank and taken for treatment prior to disposal. At HM Naval Base Devonport effluent is collected either directly into the effluent treatment system or in a primary effluent tank and taken for treatment prior to disposal. For Vanguard class submarines (and the Astute class when they enter service) the effluent is kept on board the submarine and reused when the reactor has cooled down.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with whom responsibility lies for (a) monitoring of any discharges from nuclear powered submarines using (i) Z berths and (ii) X berths and (b) clean-up operations which may be required; and if he will make a statement. [73323]

Mr. Ingram: Discharges directly to the environment from nuclear powered submarines at Z berths and X berths are not permitted.

The responsibility for monitoring and clean-up operations, should any be required, rests with the dockyard companies, naval base commanders or the Royal Navy, depending on the location of the berth.

The Defence Science and Technology Laboratory (DSTL) Environmental Sciences Department monitors the level of radioactive pollution around Z and X berths as part of its wider marine environmental survey programme, the findings from which are published annually.

Priory Clinic Group

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has paid to the Priory Clinic Group for psychiatric services in each of the last five years. [73737]

Mr. Watson: The Ministry of Defence's contract with the Priory Group, which commenced on 1 April 2004, only provides in-patient care. Community-based care is available to every military unit through our 15 Departments of Community Mental Health, located in military establishments in the UK, with additional satellite units in Germany and Cyprus. Medical diagnosis is performed by fully trained and accredited mental health personnel with a full range of National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) platinum standard psychiatric treatments. These help to ensure better access to mental health support within or close to an individual's unit or home. Community-based psychiatry also means Defence Medical Service mental health staff work within their local service community, and so are more closely aligned with their operational role.

The following table gives the sums paid by MOD to the Priory Group since April 2004, plus costs for interim services provided by the Priory Group between December 2003 and the start of the current contract. This figure takes into account the cost of assessing patients as well as any treatment programmes provided. The Priory contract replaced the care provided by the Duchess of Kent Psychiatric Hospital whose costs in its final year of operation were some £10 million.

Financial year	Amount spent (£)
2003-04	357,877
2004-05	4,147,963
2005-06	4,441,181
2006 to date	379,283
Total	9,326,304

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether military psychiatric services were contracted to the Priory Clinic Group without open tender, with particular reference to an opportunity for the NHS to submit a bid. [73739]

Mr. Watson: The requirement for the provision of a regionally based in-patient psychiatric healthcare service was put out to competitive tender by the Ministry of Defence Commercial Branch in Glasgow in accordance with MOD policy. During the tendering process, an Industry Day was held on 15 April 2003, attended by four out of the five companies who had originally responded to the relevant adverts. Subsequently, Invitations to Tender were issued to three of the four companies who had attended the Industry Day. The Priory Group's tender best met our requirements for high quality in-patient care, without delay and on a regional basis, and they were awarded the contract. Whilst NHS providers did have the opportunity to bid, there were no expressions of interest from the NHS.

Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the Answer of 3 June 2005, Official Report, columns 242-3W, on the private finance initiative, what total value of assets and liabilities for each of the listed private finance initiatives and public private partnerships is recorded on the Government Balance Sheet; what proportion of assets and liabilities is listed; what the accounting treatment is for assets and liabilities; and whether it is compatible with (a) generally-accepted accounting practices and (b) international financial reporting standards. [15963]

Mr. Ingram: 10 projects are on the Ministry of Defence Balance Sheet from the 49 Private Finance Initiative Projects (PFI) listed in my reply of 13 June 2005, Official Report, column 16W. The following table provides details of the 10 On Balance Sheet projects, their asset and liability values and values of these projects expressed as a proportion of the Department totals. The financial data given in the Table accords with the data published in the MOD Annual Reports & Accounts 2004-05.

MOD On Balance sheet PFI projects—FY 2004-05

Total	733,597,725	668,[illegible],286
Proportion percentage of all MoD	0.72	4.08

The Storage Facilities PFI Project has never resided on the MOD Balance Sheet; it resides on the DTI Balance Sheet.

The Accounting Treatment judgements applied to assets and liabilities are based on:

Accounting Standards Board's Financial Reporting Standard (FRS) 5 (entitled "Reporting the Substance of Transactions")

Accounting Standard Board's Application Note F (entitled "FRS5 —Reporting the Substance of Transactions: Private Finance Initiative and Similar Contracts; and

HM Treasury Private Finance Taskforce's Technical (TTF) Note No 1 (How to Account for PFI transactions), ("the Treasury or TTF Guidance").

The objective of the Technical Note (TN) is to provide additional practical guidance to public sector bodies on certain areas of the Application Note to ensure that the overarching principles of the Application Note are consistently applied.

The Accounting Treatment judgements are made in compliance with UK Generally Accepted Accounting Practices (UKGAAP). International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) have not yet been adopted by HMG for Public Sector reporting.

It should be noted that differences between asset and liability valuations arise due to timing differences emanating from respective write down procedures; Assets are written down on a straight line basis whereas financial liabilities are written down on an actuarial or equivalent basis in accordance with MoD accounting guidance.

Private Members' Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list those Private Members' Bills in respect of which his Department has adopted a policy of neutrality in each session since 2001-02; and if he will make a statement. [72478]

Mr. Watson: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

RAF Heavy Lift

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to augment the RAF's heavy lift capability. [72284]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 22 May 2006]: We keep our airlift capability under review to ensure that we have access to sufficient capacity to support operations and, where necessary, we charter heavy lift aircraft. We plan to purchase from Boeing the four in-service C-17s currently on lease, and we are looking at the possibility of purchasing a fifth, though we have not yet made a final decision. The RAF's lift capability will also be considerably enhanced when the A400M comes into service early in the next decade.

Training Areas

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many tactical training areas there are in the West Midlands region. [73461]

Mr. Watson: There are seven training areas in total in the West Midlands, of which only three are designated as tactical training areas. These are at Swynnerton, Nesscliff and Leek/Upper Hulme.

Unmanned Combat Aerial Vehicles

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent research has been commissioned by his Department into the development of unmanned combat aerial vehicles. [71524]

Mr. Ingram: The Ministry of Defence is pursuing a twin-track strategy for exploring the conceptual thinking and the underlying technology for unmanned combat air vehicles (UCAVs).

The first strand of this strategy concentrates on the concepts of employment, interoperability and cost effectiveness of UCAVs with specific emphasis on a UK/US coalition warfare environment. This work is being carried out as a collaborative Government-to-Government project arrangement under the auspices of the US Joint Unmanned Combat Air System Programme (J-UCAS) and began in March 2005.

The second strand ensures we continue to work with UK industry to develop and explore critical technologies which have relevance to all types of Uninhabited Aerial Vehicles (such as survivability, propulsion and vehicle management). Central to this, and as set out in the Defence Industrial Strategy, will be a Technology Demonstrator Programme. Subject to a satisfactory value for money proposal, we hope to proceed with this later this year. It will be aimed at giving us and industry a better understanding of our indigenous capabilities, to inform any potential acquisition by the UK of a future UCAV capability.

Veterans Day

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer about the (a) merits and (b) timing of a Veterans' Day (i) prior to and (ii) after the decision was announced. [59677]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 20 March 2006]: HM Treasury and Defence Ministers regularly discuss issues relating to defence and security matters, including measures to ensure Veterans receive the recognition they deserve. One such discussion, which had been informed by prior consultation with the Confederation of British Service and Ex-Service Organisations (COBSEO) led to the announcement on 13 February by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer about Veterans Day. The announcement had been preceded by a joint presentation of medals to Veterans by the Chancellor and the then Secretary of State for Defence.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when his Department first announced the decision to hold a Veterans' Day; and how the decision was announced. [59678]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 20 March 2006]: The institution of a Veterans Day was announced by my right hon. Friend, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, on 13 February 2006 in a speech he made at the Royal United Services Institute. The then Minister for Veterans wrote to hon. Members on 23 February to advise them that Veterans Day would be on 27 June each year.

Last year's Veterans Awareness Week, which culminated in the memorable celebrations to mark the 60th anniversary of the end of the Second World War, gave us all a chance to pay tribute to those veterans who fought in the service of their country and to remember their immense sacrifice and the debt that we continue to owe to them.

This year the day will focus on veterans of all ages and provide the opportunity to celebrate and raise public awareness of their diversity, achievements and the contribution they have made, and continue to make, to the nation. It will also be an opportunity to recognise the service given by our current armed forces who will become tomorrow's veterans.

We are encouraging organisations throughout the UK to support Veterans Day through their own events, and we are targeting school children, in particular those in the 9-11 age bracket who are currently learning about World War II, through an art competition.

HEALTH

Allergy UK

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much her Department has given to Allergy UK in each of the last three years; for what purposes; what plans she has to give further assistance; what recent discussions (a) Ministers and (b) officials have had with Allergy UK; when (i) Ministers and (ii) officials have attended a meeting of Allergy UK in each of the last three years; when her Department has (A) distributed copies of the Allergy UK Annual Report and (B) made reference to Allergy UK in Department of Health materials; and if she will make a statement. [72047]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Allergy UK, in common with other national voluntary organisations working in the health and social care fields, is eligible to apply for funding under the Department's Section 64 general scheme of grants.

In 2002, Allergy UK was awarded a grant of £112,800 over a three-year period to support their network allergy project. The aim of this project was to support the increased involvement of patients, including those from minority ethnic and other hard to reach groups, in the development of local allergy services.

A further project, "Support Contacts", has been awarded funding of £117,000 over a three-year period from 2004-05. The grant is supporting a national network of people with allergies who can offer support and advice to others affected by their own particular condition.

Funding for Section 64 grants is limited though the Department continues to welcome innovative proposals that are of national significance, complement statutory services, and help secure and promote high-quality health and social care in England.

No invitations have been received by Ministers or officials to attend meetings of Allergy UK. As part of the ongoing review into allergy services, officials met with Allergy UK in November 2005. The final report of the review to Ministers will include evidence provided by Allergy UK.

It is not a function of the Department to distribute copies of the annual report of external organisations, whom we would expect to have their own distribution arrangements in place.

All departmental publications, leaflets and other sources of information are published on the internet, either on the Department's website itself (www.dh.gov.uk), other departmental sites, or partner websites. Contributions by external organisations to these publications are acknowledged within their content.

Patient Pathway Target

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) pursuant to the document "Tackling hospital waiting: the 18 week patient pathway", when she expects the action plan to cut waiting times for audiology to be published; [72765]

(2) what progress is being made in measuring waiting times for NHS hearing aid services; and if she will make a statement; [72766]

(3) pursuant to the document "Tackling hospital waiting: the 18 week patient pathway", what measures her Department will put in place to ensure that direct access referrals for audiology are not re-routed to ear, nose and throat consultants. [73224]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not collect waiting time data for hearing aid services. However, since January 2006 we have been collecting waiting time and activity data for 15 diagnostic tests/procedures, including pure tone audiometry.

As stated in the publication "Tackling hospital waiting: the 18 week patient pathway-an implementation framework" directly accessed audiology including adult hearing services are outside the scope of the 18 week patient pathway. However, a separate action plan is currently under consideration to improve access to those services outside the 18 week programme. The intention is to develop and take the work forward in partnership with stakeholders.

The Department estimates that 80 per cent. of referrals to adult hearing services from general practitioners are direct to audiology departments. We acknowledge the risk that there may be pressure to redirect these existing direct referrals to ear, nose and throat consultants in secondary care, as this way patients would be covered by the 18 weeks target. The measures that are being taken to address this risk are detailed on page 31 of the publication "18 Week Patient Pathway: Delivery Resource Pack", which is available in the Library and on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/13/46/70/04134670.pdf.

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what treatments are (a) subject and (b) not subject to the 18 week Patient Pathway Target; and for what reasons those in the latter group are not included in each case. [72764]

Andy Burnham: The principles and definitions underpinning the delivery of the 18 week Patient Pathway were published on 10 May 2006 in annex A of the publication "Tackling hospital waiting: the 18 week patient pathway-an implementation framework", which is available in the Library and on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/13/46/69/04134669.pdf

The principles and definitions set out what is included in the 18 week Pathway. The end of the 18 week Pathway is defined as "the start of the first treatment that is intended to manage a person's disease, condition or injury".

Not all treatments available would be appropriate as a first intervention and it will vary from patient to patient, so it is not possible to provide a list of treatments that are either included or excluded from the target.

Capita

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what meetings (a) she and (b) Ministers in her Department have held with directors and senior executives of (i) Capita Group plc and (ii) its subsidiaries since 1 January 2004; and whether (A) Capita Group plc and (B) its subsidiaries have provided input (1) in writing and (2) in person to policy discussions in her Department since 1 January 2004. [61076]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The former Minister, Liam Byrne, Parliamentary Under Secretary for Care Services, met with John Tizard of Capita plc on 16 January 2006. Neither the Secretary of State nor the rest of her ministerial team have met with directors and senior executives of Capita plc or its subsidiaries since 1 January 2004.

Capita plc or its subsidiaries have not been invited to input either in writing or in person to the Department's policy discussions.

Choose and Book System

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of (a) GPs and (b) GP practices have (i) registered to use and (ii) indicated an interest in using the new"choose and book" system for hospital appointments from (A) within and (B) outside the pilot areas. [65773]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 24 April 2006]: As at 15 May 2006, 35,577 (97 per cent.) of general practitioners (GPs) had registered to use the "choose and book" service and been issued with chip and pin style "smartcards" to enable them to do so.

As at 16 May 2006, 5,073 (60 per cent.) GP practices had gone live with the 'choose and book' service, defined as having made at least one booking.

As at 17 May 2006, over 344,000 referrals had been made through the "choose and book" service. These bookings come from 300 of the 303 primary care trusts (PCTs) in England, which demonstrates a significantly larger usage of the system than the six PCTs that were "early adopters" or pilots of "choose and book".

The implementation team is now in the process of rolling out the system nationally across England.

Cognitive Behavioural Therapy

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people received cognitive behavioural therapy through the national health service in the last period for which figures are available. [73480]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information is not centrally available.

Departmental Budget

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much of the budget for her Department remained unspent in the 2005-06 financial year. [72855]

Andy Burnham: The Department's 2005-06 financial outturn position will be published in the "Public Expenditure Outturn" White Paper in July 2006.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of (a) staff and (b) new staff employed in (i) her Department and (ii) each of the agencies for which she has responsibility were registered as disabled in each of the last three years for which data are available. [61378]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is shown in the following tables.

Staff recorded as disabled, 2004 to 2006

	1 April 2004		1 April 2005		1 April 2006
	Disabled	Percent of disabled [1]	Disabled	Percent of disabled [1]	Disabled	Percent of disabled [1]

Drug Treatment

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many individuals from Suffolk have entered drug rehabilitation treatment in each of the last five years. [72539]

Andy Burnham: The table shows how many individuals from Suffolk entered drug rehabilitation treatment between 2003 and 2005.

	Number of individuals
2003-04	1,075
2004-05	1,340

The National Treatment Agency introduced a revised and more accurate methodology for counting the numbers in treatment in October 2004. Figures are not available for the years 1999-2000, 2000-01, 2001-02 and 2002-03 although the potential for providing estimates based on data collected using the earlier methodology is being explored.

Health Service Staff (Northamptonshire)

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) hospital doctors, (b) nurses, (c) general practitioners and (d) other health service staff were employed in Northamptonshire in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2005. [70818]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is shown in the following table.

National health service hospital and community health services: NHS staff employed in the Leicestershire, Northamptonshire and Rutland strategic health authority (SHA) area by specified staff groups as at 30 September each specified year

		Headcount
	1997	2005
Total NHS staff	28,276	35,869
HCHS doctors[1]	1,611	2,360
General medical practitioners (excluding retainers)[2]	908	1,021
Qualified nursing, midwifery and health visiting staff including practice nurses	8,626	11,002
Other NHS staff	17,131	21,486

[1] Excludes hospital medical practitioners and hospital medical clinical assistants, most of whom are general practitioners (GPs) working part time in hospitals
[2] General medical practitioners, excluding retainers and registrars, includes contracted GPs, GMS others and PMS others. Prior to September 2004 this group included GMS unrestricted Principals, PMS contracted GPs, PMS salaried GPs, restricted principals, assistants, salaried doctors (Para 52 SFA), PMS others, flexible career scheme GPs and GP returners.

Hospital Bed Days

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) emergency and (b) non-emergency bed days there were in (i) England and (ii) each strategic health authority in each year since 1997. [47934]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information has been placed in the Library. Care and treatment needs have changed considerably in this period and will continue to do so.

Infant Mortality

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made to date in meeting the 10 per cent. reduction target in the gap in infant mortality rates between routine and manual socio-economic groups in (a) Peterborough, (b) the Eastern Region and (c) England; and if she will make a statement. [73358]

Caroline Flint: Infant mortality has fallen for the whole population since the 1997-99 target baseline, including for routine and manual groups.

The target is not formally monitored at local or regional level as the annual number of infant deaths in the routine and manual group in a local area would be very small. Even after aggregating a number of years' data, the rates would show fluctuations over time too large for them to be statistically reliable.

The latest available national data for England and Wales is for the period 2002-04. This indicates that the overall infant mortality rate for all those within a valid socio-economic group was 4.9 deaths per 1,000 live births, and the rate for those in routine and manual groups was 5.9 per 1,000 live births. The rate is 19 per cent. higher among the routine and manual group compared to the whole population. This rate is unchanged since 2001-03.

The implementation of the children's national service framework for children, young people and maternity services, the priority being given to tackling health inequalities and greater local focus in "Choosing Health, Our health, our care, our say", and the national health service reforms will deliver significant progress in tackling this target as part of a continuing overall reduction in infant mortality.

Information Technology

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the ability of the NHS IT programme to respond to developments in information technology. [70119]

Caroline Flint: The national programme for information technology's (NPfIT) services and systems are based on modern, robust tools and technologies which have been tried and tested widely in business and in the IT industry. They are based on industry standard platforms that have been underpinned by enterprise wide arrangements that achieved large cost savings for the taxpayer and the national health service with market leading IT products from Microsoft, Oracle, Sun, Novell and others. They use industry standards in whose development the Department's NHS connecting for health agency takes an active role, where appropriate.

NPfIT contracts specify service requirements and service levels rather than the underlying technical components. However, each contract contains an obligation for innovation and to keep up to date the technology employed including, as a minimum, a refresh of the relevant hardware and software platforms. Selection of the programme's suppliers was in part informed by their technical development plans and track record for continuing product development. In that way, the applications and technologies procured will not remain static but keep pace with functional needs and technical developments.

NHS connecting for health, under its research services contract with Gartner, maintains an awareness of emerging technology. The agency has also held a technology innovation forum involving contracted IT suppliers and those with whom enterprise-wide arrangements are in place to promote technical innovation for the NHS. In specific areas where patient safety, infection control or clinical utility is an issue, or where innovation to address new policy requirements is needed, NHS connecting for health has taken an active role in the definition of standards in hardware and software to meet these requirements.

In addition, an active programme of research and development is delivered on behalf of the programme by leading industry partners. This brings together the skills of the IT industry, the opportunities offered by NHS connecting for health, and NHS research and development skills to develop and evaluate new products and services of use to the NHS and of global interest. Its objective is to stimulate, support and evaluate innovations in the use of IT to improve patient experience, clinical practice and the process of care that could be generally used when the full functionality of the NPfIT will be universally available.

Maternity Services

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the timetable is for issuing guidance on home birth maternity services; and whether the Healthcare Commission will be producing that guidance. [72434]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence are developing clinical guidelines on "Intrapartum Care: Management and delivery of care to women in labour". The guideline will cover the appropriate place of birth, including care of women giving birth at home.

Under the provisional schedule, a stakeholder consultation on the draft guideline will be held between 22 June and 29 August 2006, with the final guideline being issued in February 2007.

Migraine

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent research she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on migraine; and if she will make a statement. [71974]

Andy Burnham: The main agency through which the Government supports medical and clinical research is the Medical Research Council (MRC). The MRC is an independent body funded by the Department of Trade and Industry via the Office of Science and Innovation.

The MRC is not currently funding research specifically relating to migraine. However, a strategic grant award to Dr. Leone Ridsdale, King's College, London for a prospective study on diagnostic management referral and one year outcome for patients with headache in primary care has recently been completed. The aim of this study was to provide evidence about the accuracy of diagnosis, the prognosis, reasons for referral, and the economic costs for patients and society.

The Department funds research to support policy and to provide the evidence needed to underpin quality improvement and service development in the national health service and through its health technology assessment programme has supported a pragmatic, randomised trial into the use of acupuncture for migraine and headache in primary care; and a randomised placebo controlled trial of propranolol and Pizotifen in preventing migraine in children.

Over 75 per cent. of the Department's total expenditure on health research is devolved to and managed by NHS organisations. Details of individual projects, including a number concerned with migraine, are available on the national research register at:
www.dh.gov.uk/research

Ministerial Visits

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many official visits each Minister in her Department has made to (a) dental practices, (b) opticians, (c) pharmacies, (d) general practitioner surgeries, (e) care homes, (f) community hospitals, (g) genito-urinary medicine clinics, (h) ambulance trusts, (i) mental health trusts, (j) rehabilitation services and (k) stroke units since May 2005; and what the purpose was of each visit. [60585]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested, up to and including March 2006, is shown in the following table.

	SofS	MS(HS)	MS(R)	MS(DQ)	MS(PH)	PS(CS)
Dental practices	1	7	—	—	—	—

Ministerial visits and staff engagement are a key component of the Department's communication strategy. The purpose of visits is to gain a greater understanding of the challenges and successes experienced by staff, patients, carers and users in the national health service and social care economy. Visits also provide an opportunity to engage with frontline staff and patients.

Neo-natal Nursing

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many neo-natal nursing staff are employed in the Norfolk, Suffolk and Cambridgeshire strategic health authority area. [73303]

Andy Burnham: The number of neo-natal nursing staff employed in the Norfolk, Suffolk and Cambridgeshire strategic health authority (SHA) is not collected centrally.

The numbers of qualified maternity nursing staff, including neo-natal nurses in the SHA area, are shown in the following table.

National health service hospital and community health services: qualified maternity nursing staff in the Norfolk, Suffolk and Cambridgeshire SHA area by organisation as at 30 September 2005

NHS Appointments Commission

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) pursuant to the answer of 16 November 2005, Official Report, column 1299W, on Gloucestershire Primary Care Trusts, from what date the NHS Appointments Commission gained responsibility for the appointment of chairs and board members of primary care trusts; and what criteria she used to assess the suitability of the candidates before she appointed the (a) Chairman and (b) non-executive directors of the West Gloucestershire Primary Care Trust prior to that date; [73221]

(2) whether the NHS Appointments Commission will appoint all the chairmen and board members of the new primary care trusts; what criteria will be used to make those appointments; and what timetable will be followed. [72754]

Ms Rosie Winterton: [holding answers 24 May 2006 and 23 May 2006]: The NHS Appointments Commission was established in April 2001 and began making appointments to the national health service bodies in 2002. I can confirm that the NHS Appointments Commission will be appointing all the chairmen and non-executive board members of the new primary care trusts (PCTs). I have asked the Commission's chairman to write to the hon. Member setting out the criteria that have been used to make PCT appointments, those used for the new PCTs and the timetable for the appointments.

NHS Finances

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 18 May 2006, Official Report, column 1175W, on NHS finances, what responsibility the Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire strategic health authority has with regard to the financial management of the Gloucestershire Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust. [73743]

Caroline Flint: Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire strategic health authority (SHA) has no formal responsibility over financial management of national health service foundation trusts (NHSFTs). SHAs no longer performance-manage NHSFTs. As independently regulated organisations, the board of directors of a NHSFT is responsible for the organisation's performance.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 18 May 2006, Official Report, column 1175W, on NHS finances, whether the Department of Health requires the Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire strategic health authority to achieve financial balance in 2006-07, including clearing accumulated deficits from prior years. [73744]

Caroline Flint: The new strategic health authority (SHA) boundaries were announced on 12 April 2006. From 1 July 2006, the Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire SHA will form part of the South West SHA.

The Department is currently in discussion with the constituent parts of the new South West SHA about their 2006-07 financial plan which will contribute to financial balance across the national health service in 2006-07.

NHS Supplies Market

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how the supplies market within the NHS will be controlled and regulated; and if she will make a statement. [49249]

Andy Burnham: The Department's policy on the procurement of goods and services in or on behalf of the national health service is based on value for money, having due regard to propriety and regularity and ensuring full compliance with the European Union public procurement directive and other regulatory requirements. The directive promotes equal treatment, transparency and competitive procurement.

Owing to the complexity and variety of products and services within the NHS supplies market detailed management is ultimately based on a case by case basis against the background of the specific category market.

However the structure of the Department and of the NHS means that the relevant bodies will work together to ensure that key purchasing and supply performance measures are integrated into the overall management of NHS performance.

NHS Treatment (Scottish Residents)

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people normally resident in Scotland received NHS treatment in England in 2005. [72608]

Andy Burnham: Approximately 5,314[1] people normally resident in Scotland received national health service treatment in England in 2004-05.

Over-the-Counter Medicines Initiative

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the progress of the "Better regulation for over-the-counter medicines" initiative. [67797]

Andy Burnham: I refer my hon. Friend to the written ministerial statement published in the House on 23 May 2006.

Oxycodone Hydrochloride

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the market share distribution for the supply of oxycodone hydrochloride; what steps are being taken to increase the number of suppliers; and when she expects more suppliers to enter the market. [73505]

Andy Burnham: Napp is currently the only company marketing oxycodone hydrochloride products in the United Kingdom. It is a commercial decision for any company to enter a particular market. The Department has no information regarding new suppliers entering the market.

Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of the debt of those hospitals which are in deficit and those hospitals which have been in deficit over the last two complete years for which figures are available is accounted for by the annual private finance initiative charge. [72361]

Andy Burnham: The table provides details of unitary payments and deficits from the audited accounts for private finance initiative (PFI) schemes for the last two complete years.

There is no direct correlation between a trust meeting its PFI unitary charge and incurring a deficit, as the following table shows. Unitary payments—paid for from a trust's general revenue allocations—include elements for hard and soft facilities management services, financing costs as well as ensuring the availability of the facility, and are just one component of a trust's total expenditure.

		2003-04		2004-05

Primary Care Trusts

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what she expects the impact on primary care trust finances to be of the move to payment by results in areas where acute trusts are most efficient; and if she will make a statement. [73344]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 24 May 2006]: Primary care trusts (PCTs) that have historically paid less than the national average cost will pay more for activity covered by payment by results, whereas PCTs that have been paying above national average cost will pay less. In 2006-07, allocations to PCTs have been adjusted to help smooth the impact of this change in expenditure.

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the expected costs are of the implementation of the new configuration of primary care trusts in Bedfordshire; and if she will make a statement. [72959]

Andy Burnham: Total costs are dependent on a number of factors, including the number of new organisations, the number of people in the new organisations, new pay ranges for very senior managers, as well as changes in estate costs following reconfiguration.

For these reasons, it is not possible to give definite costs.

We anticipate, however, that the reconfiguration of strategic health authorities and primary care trusts in Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire will save £7 million.

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received about the impact of the new configuration of primary care trusts in Bedfordshire on the financial deficit of Bedfordshire Heartlands; what impact she expects the new configuration to have on the deficit; and if she will make a statement. [72960]

Andy Burnham: Ministers have received a range of representations about primary care trust (PCT) reconfiguration in Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire. However, no representations have been received about the impact of PCT reconfiguration on the financial deficit of Bedfordshire Heartlands.

We anticipate that the reconfiguration of strategic health authorities (SHAs) and PCTs in Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire will save £7 million.

SHAs and PCTs are currently drawing up plans to achieve financial balance and these will be reviewed by the Department in June.

Runaway Children

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department is taking to safeguard the health of children and young people who run away or go missing from home or care. [73349]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The "Every child matters: change for children" programme, a joint programme between the Department and the Department for Education and Skills, sets out the national framework for local change programmes to build services around the needs of children and young people. "Change for children" is particularly concerned with targeting support on children most at risk of negative outcomes, such as those associated with running away or going missing. As part of this programme, the Children Act 2004 reforms place a duty on a range of health bodies to have regard to the need to safeguard and promote the welfare of children and to co-operate with local authorities to improve integrated working arrangements so that key people and bodies are working towards shared outcomes.

The national service framework for children, young people and maternity services published in September 2004 is a 10-year programme also intended to stimulate long-term and substantial improvement in children's health and in the better outcomes that are the result of better health. The Department will be seeking to make health an integral part of the everyday services that young people use.

It is possible for any child or young person to access national health service primary medical services by registering as a patient with a local general practitioner practice. Where a child is being registered, an application may be made on their behalf by a parent or other person who has parental responsibility for them. It is also possible to access primary care services through a NHS walk-in centre or NHS Direct where there is no need to register.

Services in all primary care trust areas, including primary, community, specialist and acute services, need to take account of young people's needs. By creating services centred around the needs of children and families and ensuring that every child achieves their potential, these reforms will close the gap between those who do well and those who do not, including, for example, children and young people who run away or go missing from home or care.

Section 64 Grants

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what basis the decision was made to withhold the full payment of section 64 awards to charities in Loughborough; and when charities with two or three-year grants will receive full payment. [73293]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Voluntary and community sector organisations with continuing section 64 grants will receive quarterly instalments during 2006-07 providing they have complied with the terms and conditions of the award. Full payment in 2006-07 will not be made until the final quarterly instalment is paid in January 2007.

Payment of the first quarterly instalment due in April 2006 was delayed while a departmental central budget review took place. This has now concluded and outstanding payments made. Interim payments were offered to minimise financial risk.

A decision to withhold full payments for an individual organisation would be made on a case by case basis.

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent representations her Department has received from grant applicants based in Leicestershire about the time taken for section 64 grant decisions to be made. [73331]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: There is no record of any direct representation from either of the two grant applicants based in Leicestershire about the time taken for grant decisions to be made.

Sexual Health

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to reduce (a) unplanned pregnancies and (b) sexually transmitted diseases; and if she will make a statement. [72446]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 21 March 2006, Official Report, column 250W.

Measures to reduce the spread of sexually transmitted infections (STIs) were set out in the "National Strategy for Sexual Health and HIV" (2001) and the public health White Papers "Choosing Health" (November 2004) and "Our health, our care, our say: a new direction for community services" (January 2006), which are available in the Library and on the Department's website at www.dh.gov.uk.

Sexual health and access to genito-urinary medicine clinics is one of the six top priorities for the NHS in 2006-07. By 2008 everyone should be offered an appointment within 48 hours of contacting a genito-urinary medicine clinic. Strategic health authorities have all submitted plans to meet this target.

In addition to these national measures, primary care trusts are responsible for providing sexual health services which meet the needs of their local populations. To support them in this role, the Department, working with professional bodies, has published recommended standards for sexual health service a toolkit of best practice for sexual health promotion, and guidance on commissioning.

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment she has made of the impact of the use of condoms on the incidence of sexually transmitted diseases; and if she will make a statement. [72447]

Caroline Flint: We have assessed the domestic and international evidence for the impact of condom use on the incidence of sexually transmitted infections (STIs). For example, in the early 1990s, the Thai Government implemented a 100 per cent. condom programme to encourage sex workers to increase their use of condoms in commercial sex facilities. Rojanapithayakorn and Hanenberg (1996) reported that there was a substantial increase in the proportion of reported commercial sex acts in which condoms were used, i.e. from 25 per cent. in 1989 to 94 per cent. in 1995. During this period, the incidence of curable STIs reported in Government clinics decreased dramatically, which was coupled with a decrease in the prevalence of HIV among Thai military recruits.

Evidence such as this, has been used to guide the brief for the forthcoming sexual health campaign, which will focus on the risks of unprotected sex and the benefits of using condoms to avoid the risk of STIs or unintended pregnancies.

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent in each year since 1997 on free contraception in areas with high rates of sexually transmitted diseases and unplanned pregnancy; and if she will make a statement. [72448]

Caroline Flint: This information is not held centrally.

We have asked primary care trusts (PCTs) to complete the first ever national questionnaire of contraceptive services. This has provided PCT sexual health leads and commissioners of contraceptive services with an audit tool to map their current service provision and to highlight gaps in local services so that they can develop contraceptive services that meet their local population needs. To support them in this role, the Department is investing £40 million over the next two years (£20 million in both 2006-07 and 2007-08) to improve access to contraceptive services and to the full range of methods.

Improving access to free contraception, including condoms, to avoid the risk of sexually transmitted infections (STIs) or unplanned pregnancies is one of the key aims of the Government's White Paper "Choosing health: making healthy choices easier". Reducing the rate of value added tax on condoms and emergency hormonal contraception from 1 July 2006 will also make the costs of these items more affordable to those who choose not to access free services.

Waiting Times

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the specialities where waiting times have increased to the maximum target waiting time since waiting times were last reviewed, broken down by NHS trust. [65781]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is available on the Department's website at www.performance.doh.gov.uk/waitingtimes/index.html, where waiting time data is available broken down by both speciality and national health service trust.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 15 May 2006, Official Report, column 758W, on waiting times, what definition of "very few" she uses; and whether "very few" means (a) less than 10, (b) less than 50, (c) less than 100 or (d) another amount. [72559]

Andy Burnham: Of the 771,100 patients waiting for treatment at the end of March 2006, 199 people had been waiting for longer than six months. This was three patients for every 10,000 waiting for treatment—a figure I would describe as very few.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to question 70897, on waiting times, what the maximum period between initial GP diagnosis and operation could be without breaches of the six month target. [72560]

Andy Burnham: The waiting time standard is now a maximum of 13 weeks from referral by a general practitioner (GP) to a first out-patient appointment. That consultation may lead to further out-patient appointments and diagnostic tests and currently, these are not subject to waiting time targets. If the hospital consultant then considers that the patient needs to be admitted for treatment, there would be a maximum wait of six months from that point. The target for 2008 will transform this into a maximum wait of 18 weeks from GP referral to the start of treatment.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experimentation

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps his Department is taking to encourage the development and validation of alternative methods of scientific experimentation to replace and reduce the use of animal experiments. [72392]

Joan Ryan: The Home Office is fully committed to encouraging the development of alternatives to animal experimentation where this is possible. Indeed, under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986, we will not license the use of animals in scientific procedures if alternative non-animal techniques are available.

In addition, the Home Office contributes £250,000 annually to the National Centre for the Replacement, Reduction and Refinement of Animals in Research (NC3Rs) which was established by the Government in May 2004 to co-ordinate and stimulate research and practice in the 3Rs. The NC3Rs funds high-quality 3Rs research and facilitates the exchange of information and ideas, the identification of knowledge gaps, and the translation of research findings into practice to benefit both animals and science. The Centre submits an annual report to the Minister for Science and Innovation on its activities, the first of which was published in January 2006 and is available on their website at:

www.nc3rs.org.

Internationally, the United Kingdom Government continues to support the European Centre for the Validation of Alternative Methods (ECVAM) through contributions to the European Union. We take a lead in formulating European policies, standards and targets which neither disadvantage the United Kingdom nor drive work abroad to countries where lower standards apply.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers in Suffolk have (a) had their application refused and (b) been removed from the UK in each of the past five years. [72532]

Mr. Byrne: The number of asylum seekers supported by the National Asylum Support Service (NASS) are published on a quarterly and annual basis, broken down by Local Authority. The next publication covering the first quarter of 2006 was published on 23 May 2006, and will be available on the Home Office Research Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

Data on asylum seekers supported by NASS broken down by parliamentary constituency are also available from the Library of the House.

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers there were in West Suffolk constituency in each year since 1997. [72534]

Mr. Byrne: The National Asylum Support Service (NASS) assumed responsibility for the support of asylum seekers on 3 April 2000. The following table shows the numbers of asylum seekers (including dependants) supported by NASS in West Suffolk constituency as at the end of each year (available from December 2003).The number of asylum seekers supported by the National Asylum Support Service (NASS) are published on a quarterly and annual basis, broken down by local authority.

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers there are in (a) West Suffolk and (b) the East of England region. [72536]

Mr. Byrne: The number of asylum seekers supported by the National Asylum Support Service (NASS) are published on a quarterly and annual basis, broken down by Government Office Region and Local Authority. The next publication covering the first quarter of 2006 will be published on the 23 May 2006, and will be available on the Home Office Research Development and Statistics website at:

Correspondence

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Minister for Immigration will reply to the letter from the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood, of 4 April 2006, on behalf of Sakineh Soltan Malek-Mohammadi, wife of Rahmatollah Farahmand (Home Office Reference G1091885, acknowledgement reference B9197/6). [71365]

Mr. Byrne: The Immigration and Nationality Directorate wrote to the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood on 19 May 2006.

Drug-related Crime

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents of drug-related crime there were in each police authority area in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [71840]

Mr. McNulty: There are no figures available specifically on drug-related crime. The available information relates to recorded drug offences only and is given in the following tables.

Embarkation Controls

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the commitment given by his predecessor to reintroduce embarkation controls will be implemented. [72945]

Joan Ryan: The five year immigration strategy for asylum and immigration, published in February 2005, contains details of our plans, through the e-Borders programme, to strengthen and modernise our border control including providing an electronic record of all those entering and leaving the UK. This is scheduled to commence in 2008.

Entry Visas

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will take steps to identify the persons granted entry visas to the UK in the last five years who have subsequently (a) applied for asylum on entry and (b) overstayed the time allowed by the visa; and if he will make a statement. [70864]

Mr. Byrne: The Government are already committed to detecting those who fail to comply with their conditions of entry, including overstayers. Key initiatives to tackle such immigration abuse include: sharing information with other Government agencies and acting upon any intelligence we receive where appropriate; and targeting embarkation controls at major UK ports to detect immigration offenders who are leaving the UK.

Roll-out of a programme to capture biometrics details of visa applicants will be completed by 2008. This will enable IND to identify those who applied for a visa and subsequently claim asylum in the UK without documentation. UK Visas' Central Reference System is used to access further details when someone applying for asylum has retained their original documentation and identity.

Foreign Prisoners

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what offences each of the 1,023 foreign national offenders released from prison without consideration for deportation were originally imprisoned. [68788]

John Reid: I refer to the written ministerial statement I made on 15 May.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the crimes committed by those foreign prisoners released into the community without proper application of the deportation review process. [71448]

Mr. Byrne: I refer to the written ministerial statement made by my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary on 15 May 2006.

IND Contracts

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were employed by the immigration and nationality directorate on temporary contracts in each of the last five years. [68721]

John Reid: The number of people employed on temporary contracts by the immigration and nationality directorate is recorded in the following table. Additionally, the directorate has contracts with employment agencies for the provision of temporary workers and these figures have also been included in order to provide a full picture.

The figures in the following table show the average numbers of temporary workers in the organisation beginning with the financial year 2002-03. The earliest date for which figures are available is 2002. The final figure relates to 31 March 2006 and represents the latest actual position.

	Casual	Agency	Total
2002-03	60	1,232	1,292
2003-04	135	1,170	1,305
2004-05	196	1,002	1,198

2006	239	1,623	1,862

Leave to Remain

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been refused leave to remain in the UK because they did not fulfil the criteria for international protection since the policy came into effect, broken down by ethnic origin; and if he will make a statement. [72161]

Mr. Byrne: Where a person is excluded from international protection, we would normally seek to remove them from the United Kingdom, unless to do so would breach our obligations under the European convention on human rights. Under published policy, an excluded person who cannot be removed for legal reasons may either be granted six months' discretionary leave or placed on temporary admission or granted temporary release. Home Office records show that since 30 August 2005, the policy has been applied in a total of 10 cases to keep the individuals concerned on temporary admission or temporary release. Of those cases, nine were Afghan nationals and one was a national of Burundi.

This information is based on internal management information and as such is not published within the official statistics.

Passports

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of British passports were issued to foreign-born British citizens in each of the last five years. [72383]

Joan Ryan: The Identity and Passport Service does not hold readily accessible data about numbers of foreign-born British passport holders.

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many British passports have been issued to (a) asylum seekers and (b) those granted indefinite leave to remain in each of the last eight years. [72384]

Joan Ryan: British passports cannot be issued to asylum seekers because they do not hold British nationality. The grant of indefinite leave to remain does not qualify a person to hold a British passport.

A person granted indefinite leave to remain may in due course qualify to apply for naturalisation as a British citizen after meeting the residence and other requirements. Persons granted naturalisation may then apply for British passports. The Identity and Passport Service does not hold readily accessible data about numbers of passports issued to people who have been naturalised and does not hold information on whether such applicants have previously been asylum seekers.

Police

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the annual cost is of employing (a) a police officer and (b) a probation officer in each police authority area; and what the equivalent figure was in each of the last five years. [71842]

Mr. McNulty: The answers are given in the following tables.

Notes:
1. South-east England allowance: This was introduced on 1 April 2001 for all officers appointed on or after 1 September 1994 and has been paid since 1 April 2001 at the following rate:
Essex, Herts, Kent, Surrey, Thames Valley-£2,000 p.a.
Bedfordshire, Hampshire, Sussex-£1,000 p.a.
2. Officers in all three ranks are eligible for a competence-related threshold payment when they have been at the top of the salary scale for 12 months. This payment was worth £1,002 (2003), £1,032 (2004) and £1,062 (2005).
3. Please note the figures in the table do not include the figures above.

Notes:
1. Salaries quoted are for qualified probation officers and exclude allowances.
2. Probation officer pay is determined by national negotiations.
3. Spine point range for probation officers is 107-137.
4. London weighting added where appropriate.
5. Pay in 2001-02 was part of a two year deal from April 2000.
6. Employment costs are 22.92 per cent. of salaries.

Prisons

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost of providing (a) educational facilities, (b) dental services, (c) medical services, including costs involved in transporting inmates to and from hospital, (d) clothing and (e) food has been in each prison in England and Wales in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [37538]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Prison Service does not collect information separately on the costs of providing education facilities in English public prisons and the information sought could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Such information is also not available for the Welsh public prisons.

The Department of Health received £118 million from the Home Office for prison health care costs, including for dentistry, in 2002-03. Some £139.7 million was spent in 2003-04 and £158 million was spent in 2004-05 on medical and psychiatric care for prisoners in England. The allocation for 2005-06 is £175.7 million. The current comparable amount for health care in the Welsh public prisons is £3,395,000. The cost of providing prisoners with escorts for hospital appointments is not available.

As the cost of providing clothing is included in the overall figure for prisoners' consumables it is not possible immediately to disaggregate it for the English or Welsh public prisons.

The cost of food for the public prisons in England was £28.625 million for 2003, £36.807 million for 2003-04 and £38.322 million for 2004-05. The 2005-06 budget for food for the Welsh public prisons is £756,000.

Comparable information for the contracted prisons is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Probation Service

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many throughcare cases held by the probation service in England and Wales (a) have not been allocated to a named probation officer and (b) are held nominally by a senior probation officer. [63081]

Mr. Sutcliffe: National Standards 2005 state:

"GS3—Sentenced cases will be allocated to an offender manager.

SS3.1—Following sentence each case will be assigned to a tier within the National Offender Management Model, be recorded as such and will be allocated to an offender manager. The tiering decision will be based on an OASys assessment where available. For offenders sentenced to custody, allocation should be made within five working days of sentence.

SS3.2—Probation areas will ensure that:

Tier four and tier three cases are allocated within one working day of sentence.

Tier two and tier one cases are allocated within a maximum of three working days after sentence.

Requirements which require commencement before three working days are allocated accordingly.

Data against this national standard are available from October 2005. Between October 2005 and February 2006, 86 per cent. of cases were allocated an offender manager in accordance with national standards. Data by probation area and region showing the proportion of cases in which the standard was met between October 2005 and February 2006 are shown in the following table.

Racial Abuse

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints of racial abuse in his Department have been (a) investigated and (b) upheld in each of the last five years. [72878]

Mr. Byrne: The figures available for the Department are set out in the table at annex A.

	Complaints of racial abuse	Up-held
1 April 2001 to 31 March 2002	2	1
1 April 2002 to 31 March 2003	0	0

1 January 2005 to 31 March 2005[1]	8	1
1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006[2]	10	1

[1] Data is categorised as three cases of racial harassment, one of which was upheld and five cases of racial discrimination.
[2] Data is categorised as three racial harassment cases, one of which was upheld, and seven racial discrimination cases include one which was not upheld and six which still ongoing.

Recidivism

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes were committed by people who had previously been (a) convicted of a crime and (b) cautioned in each of the last five years, broken down by police authority area; and if he will make a statement. [71843]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not available.

Information on the criminal histories of offenders is published annually for offenders convicted in courts of indictable offences. The criminal histories are counts of previous convictions, and not cautions. The data are available for England and Wales as a whole, and are not broken down by police authority area.

The most recent data on the previous convictions of those sentenced in court are available in chapter 6 of Sentencing Statistics 2004, Home Office Statistical Bulletin 15/05, a copy of which is available in the House Library and is available online at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/hosbpubs1.html
Information is presented in the bulletin going back to 1994.

Refugees

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criteria determine the exclusion of an individual from international protection under the UN Refugee Convention 1951 resulting in that individual receiving temporary admission instead of leave to remain; and if he will make a statement. [71839]

Mr. Byrne: Article 1F of the Refugee Convention excludes any individual from being a refugee where there are serious reasons for considering that they have: committed a crime against peace, a war crime, or a crime against humanity; committed a serious non-political crime prior to arrival in the country of refuge; or been guilty of acts contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations.

Article 33(2) of the Refugee Convention allows an asylum seeker or recognised refugee to be removed even if they have a well founded fear of persecution where they represent a threat to national security or where having been convicted of a particularly serious crime they constitute a danger to the community. Section 72 of the Nationality, Immigration and Asylum Act 2002 provides an interpretation of Article 33(2) of the 1951 Convention and defines the term "particularly serious crime" for the purposes of Article 33(2).

Zimbabwe

Mr. Benyon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applicants from Zimbabwe for indefinite leave to remain in the UK under the ancestral visa route have (a) been refused because their application was proved to be fraudulent and (b) had their application delayed because of an inquiry into fraud in the last 12 months. [72085]

Mr. Byrne: In the last 12 months to 30 April 2006, 12 applicants from Zimbabwe for Indefinite Leave to Remain (ILR) under the UK ancestral visa route have been refused. Detailed data which give the reason for the refusals are not held. Some 87 ILR applicants from Zimbabwe have had their application delayed while inquiries proceed. Of these, 77 remain under consideration while documents are checked and other inquiries made.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Access to Work

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the budget of the access to work scheme for his Department to meet its target of getting one million more disabled people into work over the next 10 years. [68316]

Mrs. McGuire: Access to work spend has increased from £14.6 million in 1997-98 to £59.5 million in 2004-05 and I am pleased that this programme is now helping some 32,000 disabled people to move into or retain jobs. However, the vast majority of the 2.6 million disabled people who are working do not need the kind of support available from access to work.

We will continue to review the balance between the different types of support and to ensure that the Pathways to Work Pilots continue to achieve impressive results by using a range of provision, including Access to work, to meet individual needs.

Affordable Credit

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on progress on implementation of the Affordable Credit Deductions Scheme. [65674]

Mr. Plaskitt: As part of the Government's strategy to increase access to Affordable Credit for people on low income, we intend to introduce arrangements which, under certain circumstances, will enable lenders to apply for deductions from benefits to repay loans where re-payment arrangements have broken down. We intend to bring forward legislation in the autumn to enable the scheme to come into effect by the end of 2006.

Attendance Allowance

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will change the attendance allowance qualifying period from six months to three months; and if he will make a statement. [72845]

Mrs. McGuire: Attendance allowance provides a contribution towards the extra costs faced by severely disabled people aged 65 or over as a result of long-term disability. The purpose of the six-month qualifying period is to establish that disability and the care needs arising from it are long-term, rather than the result of short-term or transient conditions, and we have no plans to change it. However, the decision maker will always look at how long care has been required when a disabled person claims the allowance and will consider whether some or all of the qualifying period has already been completed.

Benefit Claimants

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in (a) Devon and (b) Torbay claimed (i) income support, (ii) incapacity benefit and (iii) jobseeker's allowance for the most recent month for which figures are available. [73163]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following table.

Income support, incapacity benefit, severe disablement allowance and jobseeker's allowance claimants in Devon and Torbay: November 2005

	Devon	Torbay parliamentary constituency
Income support	17,100	4,400
Incapacity benefit or severe disablement allowance	26,900	5,830
Jobseeker's allowance	5,153	1,458

Notes:
1. Income support and incapacity benefit severe disablement allowance figures are rounded to the nearest 10. Jobseeker's allowance figures are un-rounded.
2. Incapacity benefit and severe disablement allowance claimant figures include incapacity benefit credits only cases.
3. Jobseeker's allowance figures are not seasonally adjusted.

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the period between claimants' first contact and first issue of payment between April 2005 and March 2006. [68456]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of jobcentre plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking for an estimate of the period between claimants' first contact and the issue of payment between April 2005 and March 2006. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as chief executive of jobcentre plus.

The specific information you have requested is not available. The jobcentre plus measure of the time taken to process a claim for jobseeker's allowance, income support and incapacity benefit is the actual average clearance time. The standard required for 2005-06 is 12 working days for jobseeker's allowance and income support, and 19 days for incapacity benefit.

The actual average clearance time for the three benefits is measured in different ways. Jobseeker's allowance is measured from the date of first contact. The clearance time start date for incapacity benefit is the date that the properly completed claim is received at any location within the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP), and for income support it is the date on which a claim form containing all the evidence required is received. A case is treated as cleared when a decision on the person's entitlement to benefit is made or the claim is referred for payment.

The following table shows the cumulative actual average clearance times for income support, jobseeker's allowance and incapacity benefit for the period April 2005 to March 2006. We have action plans in place to address clearance times where they do not meet the standard.

	Actual average clearance times
Incapacity benefit	16.3
Income support	11.3
Jobseeker's allowance	14.5

Benefit Fraud Inspectorate

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the future of the Benefit Fraud Inspectorate. [71479]

Mr. Plaskitt: As part of the Government's strategy for reducing inspection costs and burdens, the Benefit Fraud Inspectorate's inspection remit, in relation to housing benefit and council tax benefit in England, will merge with the Audit Commission's in April 2008.

The Department for Work and Pensions, in conjunction with the devolved Administrations, is looking at the feasibility of the Benefit Fraud Inspectorate's inspection work in Scotland and Wales being undertaken by the relevant audit bodies there from April 2008.

Other work currently performed by the inspectorate, such as the direct consultancy support it provides to local authorities across Great Britain, is expected to remain with the Department.

Benefits System

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he (a) is taking and (b) plans to take to simplify the benefits system; what recent representations he has received on simplifying the system; and if he will make a statement. [73350]

Mr. Plaskitt: We have set up a dedicated Benefit Simplification Unit to act as a catalyst in driving forward simplification across the benefits system.

The Government set out their long-term vision of a simpler, single system of benefits for people of working age in the Green Paper "A new deal for welfare: Empowering people to work". Copies are available in the Library.

The formal consultation period ended on 21 April 2006 and we are now preparing a report which will summarise the responses we have received. The report will be published in the early summer.

Car Park Barriers

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps are being taken to prepare guidance on safety for those companies which operate car park barriers. [68865]

Mrs. McGuire: Some guidance on gates and barriers already exists within Health and Safety Executive publications, in particular "Workplace Transport Safety, An employers' guide (HSG136)". This guidance applies to barriers in car parks and workplaces generally. There is also a British Standard relating to car park barriers.

In response to recent concerns, HSE will be providing guidance on the safe operation of horizontal swinging barriers through its website within the next week.

Independent of the concerns regarding car park barriers, a research project has been proposed on the operation and design of retail car parks and delivery areas. The aim of this project, which is subject to approval, is to produce guidance on car park safety including barriers where relevant.

Child Support

Mr. Devine: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in Livingston have had their cases migrated from the old Child Support Agency system to the new system. [72258]

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Child Support Agency cases of constituents in East Lothian have migrated from the old system to the new system. [72607]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not currently available at the geographical level requested.

Customer Management Systems

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of benefit claims is operated by the full customer management system, broken down by regional centres. [69445]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what proportion of benefit claims are operated by the full customer management system broken down by regional centres. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as chief executive of jobcentre plus.

We currently have 23 contact centre sites located throughout the UK that provide the first contact service for customers wishing to make new claims to working age benefits. The contact centre sites do not necessarily respond to customer calls made from the geographical location in which they are sited, and therefore we cannot provide information broken down to 'regional level'.

Whilst I am unable to provide the proportion of benefit claims made using the customer management system (CMS), I can confirm that there are currently 16 sites operating full CMS process and 7 sites that are operating some adjusted processes to respond to customer calls.

Departmental International Work

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the international work of his Department, with particular reference to (a) co-ordination of information and labour market policies and (b) mutual recognition and administrative simplification in relation to benefits. [72235]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Department for Work and Pensions works closely with a large number of countries on labour market issues, for example, other EU member states, in particular the new member states to help them and to learn from them. DWP Ministers and Officials participate in meetings of a wide variety of international institutions such as the Council of Europe, EU, UN, ILO and other international organisations such as the OECD to develop best practice and share information. This work is underpinned by national contributions to international labour market statistics. DWP promotes the UK reform agenda through the ministerial EU Employment and Social Policy Council and the EU Employment Committee and Social Protection Committee.

Within the EU, legislation coordinates member states' social security schemes so that people who move from one state to another are not adversely affected by the application of different national legislations. For example, contributions paid in one member state can, in some cases, count towards satisfying conditions for another state's benefit. The Council of Ministers has agreed a modernised revision of the relevant regulation and work has begun on revising the provisions for administering that regulation. This will include development of electronic exchanges of information between member states to replace the current paper-based system.

The United Kingdom also has bilateral social security agreements with a number of countries outside the EU and these have broadly similar provisions to the EC coordination regulation.

Departmental Relocation

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 11 May 2006, Official Report, columns 469-70W, on departmental relocation, how many of these sites his Department (a) is paying rent on, (b) still owns and (c) has sold on. [73165]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department does not own or rent any of these sites. They were transferred, for value, to Land Securities Trillium under a PFI deal known as the PRIME contract. Under the terms of the PRIME contract, the Department receives fully serviced accommodation in return for the payment of a unitary charge. This charge ceases once we have vacated the accommodation.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of the staff in his Department is (a) male, (b) female and (c) disabled, broken down by grade. [68996]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is in the following table.

Grade	Percentage male	Percentage female	Percentage declared disabled
SCS	66.54	33.46	3.54
Grade 6/7	56.05	43.95	3.24
SEO/HEO	42.05	57.95	4.97
EO	31.26	68.74	6.38
AA/AO	28.42	71.59	4.34
Total	30.83	69.17	5.03

Notes:
1. Figures are as at 31 December 2005
2. Figures given are for the Department for Work and Pensions excluding the Health and Safety Executive.
3. Figures are rounded to the nearest 0.01 per cent.
4. The calculation of percentages is based on the number of people who have declared their disability. There is no requirement for DWP staff to declare their disability.

Disability Benefits

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the average annual cost to public funds of maintaining a claimant on disability benefits. [71113]

Mrs. McGuire: The available information is in the following table.

Disability benefits (disability living allowance, attendance allowance and industrial injuries disablement benefit): (i) estimated average annual amount of benefit paid per recipient[1]; and (ii) estimated average annual administrative cost per recipient[2]

Benefit	Disability living allowance	Attendance allowance	Industrial injuries disablement benefit
Average annual amount paid per recipient (£)	3,130.00	2,650.00	2,200.00
Average annual administrative cost per recipient (£)	35.60	8.00	n/a

[1] Figures are for 2005-06 and are rounded to the nearest 10. For disability living allowance they are based on payments data from statistical extracts for 100 per cent. of cases in payment in the quarter to November 2005; for attendance allowance they are based on payments data from statistical extracts for 5 per cent. of cases in payment in the quarter to November 2005; and for industrial injuries disability benefit they are based on payments data from statistical extracts for 100 per cent. of cases in payment in the quarter to September 2005.

[2] Figures are the estimated cost in 2004-05 of maintaining a case where benefit is in payment. They do not include the administrative costs of deciding claims to benefit.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what assessment his Department has made of the appropriateness and accessibility of disability living allowance application forms for under 16-year-olds; [64712]

(2) what progress is being made in simplifying the disability living allowance claim form for under 16-year-olds. [64713]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of disability living allowance is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Disability and Carers Service, Mr. Terry Moran. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Terry Moran:

In reply to two of your recent Parliamentary Questions about the Disability Living Allowance claim pack for under 16 year olds, the Minister for Disabled People, Anne McGuire MP, on behalf of the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, promised you a substantive reply from the Chief Executive of the Disability and Carers Service.

You asked what assessment his Department has made of the appropriateness and accessibility of Disability Living Allowance application forms for under 16 year olds and also what progress was being made in simplifying the Disability Living Allowance claim form for under 16 year olds.

The Department is committed to improving citizens' accessibility to all its services, including the application forms for Disability Living Allowance for children and adults. The recent launch of on-line electronic claim services for Disability Living Allowance has provided a new option of immediate access through electronic channels for those who prefer that means of making a claim. This option can be used for claims in respect of children.

The Department, specifically the Disability and Carers Service, continues to work to monitor and improve the Disability Living Allowance claim forms and will continue to take account of the different needs of people with particular disabilities where this is practicable. Consultation about the claim forms is ongoing with the Disability and Carers Service Advisory Forum, which includes representatives of a range of disabled people, this consultation includes the appropriateness and accessibility of the forms.

I hope this is helpful.

Employment Targets

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what studies he has (a) commissioned, (b) evaluated and (c) collated on the impact of labour market trends on achieving his Department's employment targets. [72251]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Department's Public Service Agreement (PSA) employment target is to demonstrate progress on increasing the employment rate between spring 2005 and spring 2008. We are on course to achieve this.

Latest data shows the GB employment rate at 74.8 per cent (January-March 2006).

Progress towards PSA targets is set out in the annual departmental report. The report for 2005-06 was published in May and is available in the Library. We have not commissioned, evaluated or collated any separate studies on the impact of labour market trends on achieving our PSA target.

Gas Safety (Prosecutions)

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will instruct the Health and Safety Executive to seek to prosecute all unregistered gas-fitters where there is evidence of a breach of the Gas Safety (Installation and Use) Regulations 1998. [71534]

Mrs. McGuire: The Health and Safety Executive (HSE) has taken a number of prosecutions against unregistered gas fitters and will continue to do so where prosecution is appropriate. HSE prosecutions, including those against unregistered gas fitters, are based on the standards in the Health and Safety Commission's Enforcement Policy Statement and the Code for Crown Prosecutors.

The Enforcement Policy Statement includes a requirement that all action, including prosecution must be proportionate to the seriousness of the breach of the law, and any risks to health and safety arising from the particular breach. Consequently, it would not be appropriate for every breach of a given kind to result in prosecution.

Gershon Review

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what account he took of undertakings made in response to the Gershon review's conclusions on target headcount when making the staffing projections set out on page 154 of his Department's Annual Report for 2006. [72239]

Mr. Jim Murphy: As set out in the Gershon review the Department is planning to reduce staff numbers by 30,000 full-time equivalents by the agreed date of 31 March 2008 from a baseline of 132,537 as at 1 March 2004.

The figures shown in Table 6 of Annex A on page 154 of the departmental report reflect these plans but are presented as average staff numbers over each financial year rather than as an end of year point in time. This is in line with agreed reporting conventions.

Health and Safety

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent guidance has been issued to the Health and Safety Executive on improving safety standards in the handling of hazardous cargoes at ports and terminals. [72496]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The Health and Safety Executive (HSE) has not recently issued or received any new guidance on safety standards for handling of hazardous cargoes at ports and terminals.

The legal and guidance framework that HSE works to in relation to Liquid Natural Gas terminals is set out in the note "LNG Terminals—planning and consent issues", which is available on HSE's website at http://www.hse.gov.uk/gas/supply/ingterminals.pdf.

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking in conjunction with the Health and Safety Executive to improve (a) the accuracy of accident books kept by employers and (b) their compliance with the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences directions. [71267]

Mrs. McGuire: A new version of the accident book was produced in conjunction with Health and Safety Executive (HSE) in 2003 to comply with the Data Protection Act and this was further amended in 2004. The book captures all the information required by the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1979.

The Health and Safety Executive introduced in 2001 simplified notification methods such as telephone reporting directly to the HSE Incident Contact Centre. The Accident Book contains brief guidance to the employer on what they are required to do to comply with RIDDOR.

The Health and Safety Executive are currently conducting a fundamental review of RIDDOR aiming to simplify the current requirements, which should aid compliance. A formal consultation exercise should take place in early 2007.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether businesses which are open to the public have a responsibility to provide first aid facilities to customers who are hurt on their premises; what discussions he has had with businesses on this issue; and if he will make a statement. [72588]

Mrs. McGuire: The Health and Safety (First-Aid) Regulations 1981 require employers to assess their first aid needs in their workplace for their employees, but not members of the public. However, many businesses that provide a service to members of the public will include them in their first aid needs assessment.

In August 2003, the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) consulted industry about extending first aid provision to the public through a discussion document. In September 2004, the Health and Safety Commission concluded that there was already a good voluntary response to the provision of first aid to the public and that changes to the law were not necessary.

HSE strongly encourages businesses which are open to the public to include the needs of the public and others on their premises when assessing their first-aid needs.

Jobcentre Service (Kent)

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many complaints have been made about the jobcentre service in North and West Kent since 1 October 2005. [68559]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 8 May 2005]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many complaints have been made about the Jobcentre service in North and West Kent since October 2005. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

We have received 62 complaints about Jobcentre Plus services in North and West Kent from October 2005 to May 2006, the majority of which concerned delays in processing Working Age benefits at Canterbury Benefits Delivery Centre.

As part of our transformation programme, we are reducing the number of offices where benefit processing is undertaken, and creating larger Benefit Delivery Centres. Claims for Income Support, Incapacity Benefit and Jobseeker's Allowance for customers living in the Medway and West Kent areas are processed at Canterbury Benefit Delivery Centre. Unfortunately, backlogs of benefit claims have developed as these significant changes bed in.

A recovery plan is in operation to reduce the volume of outstanding work. This includes the temporary transfer of work to other sites where additional highly experienced staff are available such as Gillingham, Tunbridge Wells and Sittingbourne. As a safeguard, any customer experiencing financial hardship while awaiting benefit can request an interim payment.

Pathways to Work

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many individuals in (a) Peterborough constituency and (b) Cambridgeshire are participating in the Pathways to Work programme; and if he will make a statement. [72094]

Mrs. McGuire: Our successful Pathways to Work pilots have been acknowledged internationally as the best way of helping people on incapacity benefits back into work quickly. They have resulted in 21,400 Pathways job entries, including over 3,360 from voluntary customers.

Peterborough and Cambridgeshire are currently not covered by the programme, but our Welfare Reform Green Paper, "A new deal for welfare: Empowering people to work", sets out our plans to roll out the programme across the whole country by 2008.

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he plans to extend the Pathways to Work programme to Greater Manchester. [73134]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Our successful Pathways to Work pilots have been acknowledged internationally as the best way of helping people on incapacity benefits back into work quickly. They have resulted in 21,400 Pathways job entries, including over 3,360 from voluntary customers.

Pathways to Work was rolled out in Greater Manchester Central District on 24 April 2006 and is now operational in all sites. The first customers are scheduled for work focused interviews in the week commencing 12 June 2006. Manchester East and Manchester West Districts will form part of the national roll-out of Pathways to Work as set out in the Green Paper—"A new deal for welfare: Empowering people to work".

Pension Credit Helpline

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many telephone calls were made to the pension credit helpline in each month from September 2005 to February 2006; how many of these calls (a) were handled, (b) received an engaged tone and (c) were abandoned; and if he will make a statement. [61500]

James Purnell: The administration of The Pension Service is a matter for the chief executive, Ms Alexis Cleveland. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Alexis Cleveland, dated 25 May 2006:

You asked the Secretary of State how many calls made to the Pension Credit Application Line in each month from September 2005 to February 2006 were (a) handled (b) engaged (c) abandoned; and if he will make a statement. I have been asked to respond as this matter falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as the Chief Executive of The Pension Service.

Firstly, please accept my apologies for the delay in response. The table below shows the information, as requested, with additional information covering the period March and April. The number of calls received by the Pension Credit Application Line (PCAL) during November and December 2005 was exceptionally high due to the response to a marketing campaign The Pension Credit Application Line uses an automated filter, the Auto Attendant, when experiencing high volumes of calls. At times when this is required, customers who wish to make a claim for Pension Credit are advised by the Auto Attendant that they will be put through to the call queue. The automated message advises all other callers of the high call volumes and they are given the option to call again (during opening hours) or to contact their local Pension Centre, for which the correct telephone number is provided. When the auto attendant is not operating, callers receive a standard greeting message, during which they may abandon their call (for instance if they have dialled a wrong number).

Month	(i) Inbound calls	(ii) Receiving engaged tone	(iii) Calls filtered to the queue by the auto attendant (when in use)	(iv) Of (iii), Calls abandoned	(v) Of (iii) Calls answered
September	104,181	0	102,879	5,491	102,101
October	523,023	2	131,887	28,940	102,876
November	393,746	0	207,303	55,321	152,159
December	93,885	0	88,422	11,981	76,441
January	202,493	0	139,213	36,837	102,326
February	152,372	0	78,560	3,276	75,186
March	221,421	10	153,422	9,746	143,627
April	132,604	6	89,884	5,029	88,837

Note:
There is a discrepancy in the calls answered total due to missing calls. This arises due to a small number of calls not registering on the IT system correctly.

During September 2005 the system that records the number of inbound calls and calls available to be answered did not accurately record data on two days. This resulted in the calls in columns (i) and (iii) to be under recorded, because of missing data.

In April 2006 we improved the recording process. We can now record the point at which a call is abandoned, of the total 5,029 calls abandoned in April, 1,043 reached the point where they could have been answered i.e. in the adviser queue.

I hope this information is helpful.

Post Office Card Accounts

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 15 February 2006, Official Report, column 2187W, on Post Office card accounts, what conclusions his Department has drawn from its recent pilot studies testing approaches to moving people from Post Office card accounts to bank accounts as to (a) the number of current Post Office card account users who will continue to use the post office and (b) the impact that the termination of the Post Office card account will have on rural post offices; and if he will make a statement. [73575]

Mr. Plaskitt: The pilots ran between 13 February and 10 March 2006. We have just finished evaluating the results and are in the process of sharing the results with the Post Office. I will place a summary report of the findings in the Library shortly.

Single Room Rent Restrictions

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will commission research into the barriers vulnerable young people face in accessing privately rented shared accommodation at a rent at or below the local single room rent restriction. [68453]

Mr. Plaskitt: We published research on the single room rent last year as DWP research report 243 "Research into the Single Room Rent Regulations". A copy is available in the Library. There are currently no plans to commission any further research. The current evaluation of the local housing allowance pathfinders in the private rented sector will be completed later this year and will inform our plans for the further reform of housing benefit in the private rented sector.

Staff Surveys

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff surveys have been conducted in his Department in each of the last three years. [72865]

Mrs. McGuire: A corporate departmental survey has been conducted in DWP annually for the last three years. In addition, smaller interim surveys were conducted in 2004 and 2005. The annual surveys are censuses; the interim surveys are random samples.

In addition to these surveys, different parts of DWP have used ad hoc staff surveys to gauge opinion on specific issues as part of continuous improvement work.

Television Sets

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many television sets are in operation in the Department (a) in total, (b) in Ministers' private offices and (c) in each office building in the Department; and how many television licences are held by the Department. [62801]

Mrs. McGuire: There are 589 television sets in operation in the Department for Work and Pensions of which 12 are in Ministers' private offices.

We are not able to provide an accurate figure on how many television sets are in each office building as the information is not recorded in the format requested. To provide that would incur disproportionate cost.

The Department is covered by 444 television licences.

In establishing this answer the Department has also consulted the Health and Safety Executive and the Rent Service, both Executive Agencies for which the Department is responsible across the country.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Antisocial Behaviour

John Mann: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister which councils have not prosecuted any tenants for antisocial behaviour. [65161]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

There are a wide range of powers available to local authorities to tackle the antisocial behaviour of both tenants and residents. We do not have full data on the use of these powers.

We are taking steps to improve data on uptake of housing related powers. For example, my department has asked that local authorities collect data on use of possession and demotion from last year (2005-06), which will be available in the summer.

Arm's Length Management Organisations

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many arm's length management organisations which have been inspected have achieved (a) no stars, (b) one star, (c) two stars and (d) three stars. [70997]

Yvette Cooper: Some 45 arm's length management organisations have had at least one inspection. Based on the most recent inspection for each of those ALMOs, one has achieved no stars, five have achieved one star, 29 have achieved two stars and 10 have achieved three stars.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many applications she has received from councils to set up (a) stock-transfers and (b) arm's length management organisations in the next round. [71005]

Yvette Cooper: We have yet to invite applications. We will open the bidding round shortly.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what housing stock has been transferred from local authority control to arm's length management organisations; and how many transfers were based on (a) a ballot of tenants and (b) other methods of seeking tenant approval. [71006]

Yvette Cooper: Local authorities do not transfer their housing stock to arms length management organisations (ALMOs). The stock and the ALMO remain wholly owned by the local authorities. ALMOs are set up by local authorities to manage all or part of their housing stock.

The Department for Communities and Local Government does not prescribe how a local authority should demonstrate tenant approval for the transfer of the management of the authority's housing functions to an ALMO. However, a local authority must demonstrate that tenants have been fully involved in the process in order to be successful in their ALMO application. They should also show that tenants will continue to be consulted about the ALMO's operation and performance.

The following table lists which ALMOs have held ballots and which have used other methods.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list transfers to arm's length management organisations since 1999; and what the estimated value is of each item of stock. [71016]

Yvette Cooper: Local authorities do not transfer their housing stock to arm's length management organisations (ALMOs). The stock and the ALMO remain wholly owned by the local authorities. ALMOs are set up by local authorities to manage all or part of their housing stock.

The ALMO programme has been running since 2001-02. Since then, 57 local authorities have transferred their housing management functions to an arm's length management organisation (ALMO). They are listed as follows. Because this is a management contract between the ALMO and the local authority, the Department for Communities and Local Government does not estimate the value of the individual items of housing stock.

Arm's length management organisations:

Cabinet Committees

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many Cabinet committees he will be chairing in his new role; and how frequently he expects them to meet. [69880]

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) how many Cabinet committees he is scheduled to chair in the week commencing (a) 15 May, (b) 22 May and (c) 29 May; [69857]

(2) which Cabinet committees he chairs; and how frequently each such committee has met in the past month. [69860]

Mrs. May: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list the Cabinet committees he chairs; and which he chaired at 10 April 2006. [71070]

Hilary Armstrong [holding answer 11 May 2006]: I have been asked to reply.

My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has asked my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister to chair nine Cabinet Committees and to act as his deputy on a further seven Committees. An updated list of all Cabinet Committees, and of who chairs them, was placed in the Library by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 17 May 2006. Previous lists contain information on the number of Committees chaired by my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister prior to that date. Information relating to the proceedings of Cabinet Committees, including when and how often they meet, is generally not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

Cambridge Local Plan

David Howarth: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the ruling by the inspector on the Cambridge Local Plan that the proportion of affordable housing to be required on qualifying sites should be reduced. [66333]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The inspector who conducted the inquiry into the Cambridge Local Plan submitted his report to Cambridge city council at the beginning of April. It is for the city council to consider the report before adopting its local plan. It would not be appropriate at present for the First Secretary of State to comment on the report in view of the Secretary of State's powers under the planning legislation.

Departmental Bills (Amendments)

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list the occasions when an amendment has been moved by (a) a Labour Back Bencher, (b) an Opposition Back Bencher and (c) an Opposition Front Bench spokesman to a Bill sponsored by her Department and its predecessors that has been accepted by her Department during the 2005-06 session; and if she will make a statement. [72126]

Angela E. Smith: The Department for Communities and Local Government is sponsoring The Housing Corporation (Delegations) Etc. Bill during the current session.

Information on amendments moved and accepted during the Committee and Report stage on this Bill is published in the Official Report.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list responsibilities which her Department and its predecessors have lost since 1997; what the (a) date and (b) destination Department was in each case; what responsibilities the Department and its predecessors have taken on since 1997; and what the (i) date and (ii) source Department was in each case. [71137]

Angela E. Smith [holding answer 15 May 2006]: Ministerial responsibilities are set out in the "List of Ministerial Responsibilities", which is updated regularly. A revised version will be published shortly. Copies of previous versions are available in the Library.

Electromagnetic Fields

Mark Tami: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with electricity supply companies on the routing of high voltage power lines underground in areas of high density housing. [71622]

Yvette Cooper: Ministers for the Department for Communities and Local Government have not had any discussions with electricity supply companies on the matter of routing high voltage power lines underground in areas of high density housing.

Mark Tami: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) guidance she issues and (b) restrictions she places on electricity companies on the siting of electricity sub-stations in areas of high population density. [71650]

Yvette Cooper: New substations or major extensions to existing substations may require planning permission from local planning authorities. However, the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995 does allow certain development to take place within existing substations and on operational land without the need to apply for planning permission.

The Secretary of State has not issued any guidelines to electricity companies on the siting of electricity substations.

Flood Plains

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what action he plans to take against those councils ignoring advice from the Environment Agency not to build on flood plains. [52253]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

Local authorities are responsible for the planning decisions they take. They must take all relevant factors into account to strike an appropriate balance between the needs of the local community and flood risk, and can be challenged in the courts on whether they have exercised their judgment in a lawful manner. The Environment Agency has succeeded in a judicial review, where it considered an authority had not given sufficient weight to its views of flood risk in a planning decision. To support authorities in making these decisions the Government recently consulted on a package of measures to strengthen the application of planning policy for development and flood risk. Responding to figures in the Environment Agency's High Level Target 5 report for 2004-05, published in February, on permissions for major development permitted against its sustained objection on flood risk grounds, my officials have contacted the authorities on whose cases the Agency still had concerns about, and we are currently seeking the Agency's views on the authorities" detailed responses.

Home Information Packs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the (a) police and (b) security services will have access to the Register of Home Condition Reports. [70647]

Yvette Cooper: The regulations to be made under part V of the Housing Act 2004 setting out who has access to the register, will not specify automatic access for the police and security services. As with other public and private databases, if the police or security services believe access to information on the register is needed these bodies would be able to gain a warrant from the courts to view certain information, for example, where a criminal offence had taken place. The regulations setting out access to the register are expected to be made later in the year, following the summer parliamentary recess.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the likely effect of the introduction of home information packs on the number of homes on which surveys will be conducted. [71036]

Yvette Cooper: Currently, around 30 per cent. of home sales involve a mid-range survey, such as the Homebuyer's Survey. A further 45 per cent. involve surveys done by mortgage valuers, which involve a limited inspection to determine the security of the loan.

Once Home Information Packs become mandatory, it is estimated that 90 per cent. of sales will require a Home Condition Report to be prepared. New homes with an approved warranty will not require a Home Condition Report. The Home Condition Report will include energy efficiency information on each house, which is not provided in current surveys.

Home Ownership

Shona McIsaac: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what percentage of people in each electoral ward in (a) Cleethorpes, (b) Great Grimsby, (c) Scunthorpe and (d) Brigg and Goole constituencies own their own homes. [67054]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The following data are derived from the 2001 Census, and show the percentage of households that own their own home in each ward.

(a) Cleethorpes

Homelessness

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what action the Government are taking to reduce homelessness, with particular reference to Greater London. [67010]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

Our strategy "Sustainable Communities: settled homes; changing lives" sets out our aims to reduce homelessness and halve the number of households in temporary accommodation by 2010.

We are working with London boroughs the Government office for London, the Greater London Authority, Association of Local Government and other organisations in London to deliver the strategy and further reduce levels of rough sleeping in the capital.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many homeless people there were in London in each of the last eight years. [67108]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

Information is collected by the Department, since 1998, on the number of people who sleep rough, that is, those who are literally roofless on a single night.

Figures for London were:

	Number of people sleeping rough
1998	621
1999	635
2000	546
2001	357
2002	321
2003	267
2004	265
2005	221

Information about local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation, which is collected in respect of households rather than persons, is summarised from 1997 onwards in a quarterly Statistical Release, the latest of which was published by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister on 13 March.

Table 3 provides a regional breakdown of households accepted as owed a main homelessness duty, and Table 7 similarly presents those in temporary accommodation arranged by local authorities at the end of each quarter.

Copies are available in the Library, and from the ODPM website at: http://www.odpm.gov.uk/index.asp?id==1002882&PressNoticeID=2Q95.

The duty owed to a person accepted as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need is to secure suitable accommodation. If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority may secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available. As an alternative to the provision of temporary accommodation some authorities arrange for households to remain in their current accommodation (homeless at home), until a settled solution becomes available.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what funds his Department has allocated to reducing homelessness in each of the last eight years. [67109]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The following table shows the amounts of grant that were allocated by ODPM to local authorities and voluntary organisations in England in each of the last eight years for reducing homelessness.

£ million

	Local authorities	Voluntary organisations	Total
2005-06	44.5	15.0	59.5
2004-05	45.8	14.8	60.6
2003-04	50.6	20.3	70.9
2002-03	48.2	25.0	73.2
2001-02	3.5	36.6	40.1
2000-01	2.9	28.6	31.5
1999-2000	3.1	22.6	25.7
1998-99	0.00	19.6	19.6
Total	198.6	182.5	381.1

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent estimate she has made of the number of black and minority ethnic young people who are homeless. [71245]

Yvette Cooper: This specific information is not collected centrally and no estimates are currently available.

In 2005, there were some 20,700 identified black and minority ethnic households accepted as homeless and in a priority need category (21 per cent. of all accepted households), but a corresponding breakdown by age is not available. In the same period, there were nearly 9,000 households consisting of young people in priority need that is, those aged 16 or 17, or those care—leavers aged under 21 (9 per cent. of all accepted households)—but a corresponding breakdown by ethnicity is not available.

Recognising the disproportionate risk of homelessness for ethnic minorities, ODPM commissioned research in 2003 to find out more about the causes of statutory homelessness among these households in England. Findings were published last September, and at the same time a £3 million Ethnic Minorities Innovation Fund was launched to provide money for new, innovative projects to reduce and prevent homelessness among ethnic minority communities and to support the delivery of good practice more widely.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people were registered homeless in each London borough in each of the last 5 years. [72420]

Yvette Cooper: Information collected about local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation is in respect of households rather than persons. A table presenting reported information on the number of households accepted by each local authority in England, including London Boroughs, as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need in each year from 1999-2000 to 2004-05 was provided in an answer to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) in October 2005, and is available in the Library.

Homelessness information for the January-March quarter 2006, including summary data at local authority level, will be published in a Statistical Release on 12 June 2006.

Housing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister from what budget the £970 million announced in the 2006 Budget for housing will be funded; and whether it is additional expenditure above previously announced spending plans. [66255]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for St. Ives (Andrew George) on 22 May 2006, Official Report, column 1401W.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many individuals resided in Government-subsidised housing in (a) Romford, (b) Havering and (c) Greater London in each of the last eight years. [67011]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

Information on the number of individuals in Government subsidised housing is not available centrally. Information on the number of council homes and registered social landlord units and bedspaces is published on the ODPM website. Table 115 gives the RSL rented stock by local authority from 1997 and is available at: http://www.odpm.gov.uk/pub/21/Table115Excel96Kb_id1156021.xls.

Table 116 gives the local authority rented stock by district from 1994 and is available at: http://www.odpm.gov.uk/pub/22/Table116Excel127Kb_id1156022.xls.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the average fees charged by local authorities for mandatory licensing of houses in multiple occupation. [70571]

Yvette Cooper: The regulatory impact assessment (RIA) for licensing of houses in multiple occupation which was published in February 2006 estimated that the average fee for mandatory licensing would be approximately £500. When this cost is averaged out over the five-year life of a licence, this would result in an annual cost of around £100. The estimate was based on a sample survey of local housing authorities carried out in December 2005.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer of 15 May 2006, Official Report, column 805W, on housing, what the average subsidy was to a key worker in (a) Barnet and (b) London in each employment sector under (i) the Starter Home Initiative and (ii) Key Worker Living between 2004 and 2006; what the total cost was of each scheme in (A) Barnet and (B) London in that period, broken down by employment sector; and if she will make a statement. [72311]

Yvette Cooper: The Starter Home Initiative (SHI) was delivered mainly through equity loans. Table 1 details the total and average subsidy provided by employment sector under SHI in Barnet and across London between 2001-02 and 2003-04.

Key Worker Living (KWL) funding is divided between Open Market HomeBuy (equity loans) and new build products such as shared ownership and intermediate rent. For new build products it is not possible to provide average subsidy by sector. Table 2 details the total and average subsidy provided by employment sector under KWL Open Market HomeBuy in Barnet and across London between 2004-05 and 2005-06. Some £40 million has so far been provided in London to provide 932 units. None of these units have been developed in Barnet.

Teachers who qualify for London Challenge Teacher funding can receive up to £100,000 as an equity loan instead of £50,000 for all other key workers, which is why the average subsidy per unit is higher for this group.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many new homes have been built in Taunton constituency in each year since 1997. [64067]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The number of new house building completions in Taunton Deane local authority district, as reported by the local authority and the National House Building Council are tabled as follows. Figures are not collected by constituency.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to increase the supply of affordable housing in Bolton. [72423]

Yvette Cooper: The housing corporation's 2006-08 programme allocates £4,883,609 for social housing schemes in Bolton. This contrasts with £961,694 in 2004-06. In addition, Bolton's unitary development plan states that the council will negotiate with developers to provide an element of affordable houses in new schemes.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the role of electoral service organisations in overseeing ballots on council house sales to ensure propriety. [66342]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

None. Stock transfer ballots are carried out by independent organisations who have their own rules and procedures in place to ensure that the ballot is conducted properly.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister under what circumstances a member of the armed forces is considered to have local connections for the purposes of obtaining social housing on discharge. [55977]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 6 March 2006]: I have been asked to reply.

The allocation legislation (part 6 of the Housing Act 1996) allows, but does not require, local authorities to take into account whether a person has a local connection with the district in determining priorities between applicants for social housing. For these purposes "local connection" is defined by s.199 of the 1996 Act which provides that a local connection may be established through residence of choice (either now or in the past), employment, family associations or special circumstances. However, s.199 provides that:

"a person is not employed in the district if he is serving in the armed forces there, and residence in a district is not of a person's choice if he (or someone he lives with) is serving in the armed forces there".

This is intended to safeguard local authorities in areas with large military bases.

We are reviewing the position with the Ministry of Defence.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the total income was of the local authority housing revenue account in each authority in England that retains its own council housing, in the last period for which figures are available; how much of that was (a) spent on repairs and administration of council housing, (b) used for other purposes by councils and (c) taken by central Government for (i) redistribution and (ii) debt repayment. [40351]

Mr. Woolas: The following table shows 2004-05 total income, management and maintenance expenditure, other expenditure (within the housing revenue account), subsidy paid to the authority and "negative subsidy" (i.e. amounts paid by the authority to Government) and total expenditure in 2004-05 for each of the 235 housing revenue accounts which were open on 1 April 2005.

The "negative subsidy" payments made by authorities to Government are used to help fund the subsidy payments required by authorities with deficits. In total the subsidies paid to authorities exceeded the amount paid to Government by some £75 million.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment he has made of migration as a factor in the demand for new housing development in (a) England and Wales and (b) South East England; and what proportion of future household growth over the next 20 years he anticipates will be attributed to migration. [63819]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 27 March 2006, Official Report, column 823W to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) that provides an estimate in relation to England. Estimates are not available for South East England.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what allocations have been made to registered social landlords who provide housing specifically for black and minority ethnic people in Luton in each of the last five years. [72500]

Yvette Cooper: The following table shows the allocations made in Luton to black, minority and ethnic (BME) registered social landlords (RSLs) through the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme (AHP) and Local Authority Social Housing Grant (LASHG) in each year from 2001-02 to 2005-06.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what estimate she has made of the likely number of people living in social rented accommodation by 2020 and the likely demand for social rented housing in each year between 2006 and 2016; [72508]

(2) what estimate she has made of the likely demand for social rented housing in each year between 2006 and 2016. [72509]

Yvette Cooper: The number of people living in social rented accommodation by 2020 will depend on a number of factors such as net additions to the stock, take-up of intermediate housing products, and the levels of occupation and vacancies.

The likely demand for social rented housing will also depend on a number of variables such as the size, quality, location and rent of properties made available.

The Government are considering research on the future need for social housing and shared equity housing as part of the comprehensive review.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) land and (b) property her Department and its predecessors (i) leases and (ii) leased in (A) 1979, (B) 1983, (C) 1987, (D) 1992 and (E) 1997 in (1) the Southend West constituency, (2) Essex, (3) Hertfordshire and (4) the Metropolitan police area of London. [72125]

Angela E. Smith: The Department for Communities and Local Government was established on 5 May 2006.

(i) The Department currently leases the following land and property:

Location	Land	Property
(1) Southend West constituency	None	None
(2) Essex	None	None
(3) Hertfordshire	None	Hempstead House, Hemel Hempstead Building 3, BRE, Garston, Watford Sheffield House, Stevenage
(4) Metropolitan Police Area	None	Eland House, Bressenden Place, SW1 Ashdown House, Victoria Street, SW1

(ii) Of the dates requested in the question, information is only readily available for 1997, and this relates to land and property leased by the former Department of the Environment, a predecessor Department. The information on land and property held for the functions of the former Department of the Environment that have passed on to the Department for Communities and Local Government is as follows:

Location	Land	Property
(1) Southend West constituency	None	None
(2) Essex	None	None
(3) Hertfordshire	None	Sheffield House, Stevenage Seymour House, Hemel Hempstead
(4) Metropolitan Police Area	None	Eland House, Bressenden Place, SW1 Ashdown House, Victoria Street, SW1 Portland House, Victoria, SW1

Property records related to the other dates are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

This answer does not include buildings occupied by Government offices, which carry out functions on behalf of 10 Government Departments.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what (a) ring-fenced and (b) other funding he provides to local authorities to enable them to carry out work on bringing empty homes back into use. [66274]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

Local housing authorities receive Housing Revenue Account subsidy which is ring- fenced for expenditure on their own housing stock and general funding (which constitutes revenue support grant, redistributed business rates and police grant) which is not ring-fenced.

We do not hold centrally information on the proportion of Housing Revenue Grant or general funding spent by individual local authorities on bringing empty homes back into use. It is a matter for local authorities to set their budgets in accordance with local priorities which may include bringing empty homes back into use.

Ministerial Visits (Accommodation)

David Simpson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) what the total cost was of his overnight accommodation on foreign visits in each of the last three years; [69049]

(2) what the total cost was of overnight accommodation for Ministers of State in his Department on foreign visits in each of the last three years. [69050]

Angela E. Smith: I have been asked to reply.

Since 1999 the Government have published an annual list of all visits overseas undertaken by Cabinet Ministers costing £500 or more during each financial year and total costs of all ministerial overseas travel, this information includes accommodation costs.

Copies are available in the Library of the House.

New Schools

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many planning applications for new schools to be built on former landfill sites have been submitted to local authorities in England since 2000; and how many of these have been successful. [73135]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Outdoor Advertising

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to her answer of 2 May 2006, Official Report, column 1517W, on outdoor advertising, what the terms of reference will be of the consultation on new draft regulations on control of outdoor advertisements; and if she will make a statement. [71721]

Yvette Cooper: The aim of the consultation is to invite the views of local planning authorities and the advertising industry on the new draft Control of Advertisements Regulations and draft circular.

The new regulations will update and improve the current arrangements for controlling outdoor advertisements and make the legislation more responsive to the rapidly changing forms of advertising. The draft circular will clarify the legislation and provide guidance to help ensure that the system operates effectively.

Planning

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 30 March 2006, Official Report, column 1218W, on planning, if she will (a) include drug addiction treatment centres in the proposed new planning class C2A and (b) create a new class separate from existing C2 consent. [72551]

Yvette Cooper: The use class C2A includes secure residential institutions. Whether a particular use falls within the C2A use class will be a matter for the local authority to determine in the first instance, on a case-by-case basis.

We have no plans for any further changes to the Use Classes Order.

Mr. Ian Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what proportion of appeals to the planning inspectorate have been upheld for developments in (a) England and (b) Surrey in each year since 2000. [72071]

Yvette Cooper: The table below shows how many and what proportion of planning appeals have been upheld nationally and in Surrey for the last five calendar years.

	Upheld national		Upheld Surrey
	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage
2000	3,188	35	162	35
2001	5,022	36	258	36
2002	5,110	37	245	35
2003	6,013	33	267	31
2004	5,405	33	274	34
2005	7,136	32	336	31

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she will publish the results of the Government's consultation on draft Planning Policy Statement 3. [71876]

Yvette Cooper: We will publish Planning Policy Statement 3: "Housing" in its final form, and a summary of the responses received following the consultation exercise on the draft policy which closed on 27 February, later in the year.

Private Member's Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list those private Member's Bills in respect of which her Department or its predecessors adopted a policy of neutrality in each session since 2001-02; and if she will make a statement. [72124]

Angela E. Smith: The Department for Communities and Local Government was formed on 5 May 2006.

Our position in response to private Member's Bills is normally set out by Ministers during the Second Reading debate.

Property Market

Michael Gove: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the reasons for the failure of property transactions in the residential market; and what assessment he has made of the reasons for the failure to complete transactions after an offer was accepted. [64961]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The Department's 1998 research study, "Key research on easier home buying and selling", reported that 28 per cent. of transactions fail between offer acceptance and completion. The research study also described the reasons why transactions fail, according to buyers and sellers. For example, the report indicated that 43 per cent. of transaction failures were attributable to an unfavourable survey report. The remaining or failed transactions were due to a seller deciding to sell elsewhere, unacceptable delays, chain breakdown and the property being taken off the market. The key findings of the research study indicated that many of the problems associated with the current system are down to information emerging later in the process and that buyers, sellers and the professionals all agreed that sellers should offer more information up front. This research will be updated during the second half of 2006.

Regional Administration

Mr. Syms: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) what the annual income has been of each of the regional chambers in each year since their creation; [64955]

(2) what the annual expenditure has been of each of the regional chambers in each year since their creation; [64956]

(3) if he will list the (a) sources of income and (b) percentage of income derived from each source for each of the regional chambers for each year since their creation. [64958]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

Regional assemblies are independent bodies that may obtain funding support from a number of sources including local authorities and other regional bodies. Since 2001 the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (ODPM) has also paid grant to assemblies in support of their scrutiny, planning regional activities. Details of ODPM grant made is as follows:

2001-02	5,000,000
2002-03	5,000,000
2003-04	14,075,000
2004-05	17,987,000
2005-06	17,987,000

Details of total income and expenditure for assemblies is not kept centrally, but can be obtained from assemblies annual accounts, copies of which are available on individual assembly websites.

Regional Funding

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the (a) timetable and (b) purpose is of regional funding allocations; and if he will make a statement. [66263]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The purpose of regional funding allocations (RFAs) is to enable regions better to align their strategies across the inter-related areas of transport, housing and economic development and to provide them with enhanced input into government policy development and future public spending decisions.

Advice on priorities within indicative RFAs was invited by the end of January 2006. The Government provided an initial response to the advice in the 2006 Budget. The Government are now considering the advice provided by the regions and will set out in due course how it will be utilised and developed in the comprehensive spending review.

Residence Change

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the percentage of the UK population that changed residence in the last year for which figures are available. [66037]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

Using results from the Survey of English Housing for 2004-05, it is estimated that 11 per cent. of the population of England had changed residence within the preceding 12 months.

Shared Ownership/Key Worker Schemes

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what figures the Government collects in relation to participation in shared ownership and key worker schemes funded by (a) central Government and (b) the Housing Corporation. [66268]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The Government collect data on the number and type of completed sales through shared ownership and key worker schemes funded by the Housing Corporation. Information is also collected on the market value of the property involved, the initial equity stake purchased, the amount of mortgage, the deposit provided and where appropriate, the rent and service charges payable. In addition, data are collected on the previous housing tenure and household characteristics of purchasers, including their gross and net income and savings. The same information has been collected for a small number of sales to key workers who purchased through the previous Starter Home Initiative, which was funded by central government.

From 1 April 2006, HomeBuy Agents, who are appointed housing associations providing a "one-stop-shop" and point of contact for affordable housing options in a given area in England, will additionally supply information on expressions of interest from potential applicants and the number of applications received for HomeBuy schemes. The level of detail will vary depending on the individual scheme but figures on the progress of sales for all grant-funded Open Market HomeBuy schemes will be provided.

Sustainable Communities Plan

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether water companies were consulted on the Sustainable Communities Plan. [60198]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The Sustainable Communities Plan sets out the Government's vision for thriving communities. Water companies have been involved in various aspects of the Plan's implementation including being part of the regional planning process and planning for growth areas. In addition, Baroness Andrews met the water companies, the Environment Agency and OFWAT on 7 March this year at a seminar organised by the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister at which these issues were discussed.

Trees

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much was spent on tree preservation orders in (a) Romford, (b) Havering and (c) Greater London in each of the past eight years. [67028]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is not collected centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Unauthorised Camps

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) terms of reference and (b) membership are of her Department's task group on the enforcement of the law on unauthorised camps. [70921]

Yvette Cooper: The first meeting of the Department's task group on enforcement in relation to Gypsies and Travellers took place today and I am pleased to announce that the group is being chaired by Sir Brian Briscoe.

a) The group will examine variations in the use of enforcement powers across the country and the causes of such variations, and take evidence as necessary. The group will also ensure that existing powers are used effectively, underlining the importance of adequate site provision as the key to effective enforcement. They will also act as a sounding board on potential new measures to strengthen enforcement powers.

b) The group consists of representatives of the local government association, the commission for racial equality, the association of chief police officers, the Home Office, the environment agency, the Royal town planning institute, the planning officers' society and the Department's Gypsy and Traveller unit.

Urban Regeneration

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what funding his Department allocated for urban regeneration in (a) Romford, (b) Havering and (c) Greater London in each of the last 10 years. [67111]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

My Department now primarily funds urban regeneration in London through the London Development Agency, which was established in 2000 as a functional body of the Mayor of London. The LDA is free to determine its own expenditure priorities, and the table below shows its yearly expenditure in the borough of Havering and Greater London. No figures are available below borough level.

£ million

	Havering	Greater London
2000-01	6.3	277.1
2001-02	27.5	309.1
2002-03	21.4	289.4
2003-04	7.1	336.0
2004-05	4.5	390.6
2005-06	3.0	415.5
Total	69.8	2,017.7

My Department's Thames Gateway programme has also committed a further £12.1 million funding direct to regeneration projects in the borough of Havering since 2004. This includes £220,000 and £634,000 in 2004-05 and 2005-06 respectively, with a further £11.25 million allocated but not yet spent.

In addition, the Government office for London has allocated £154 million from the European Regional Development Fund in selected London boroughs from 1997 to the present. Romford and Havering are not within the eligible area for ERDF funding.

Wind Turbines

Robert Key: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether it is his policy to include small wind turbines on domestic property as permitted development; and if he will make a statement. [66974]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The Government want to make it easier for householders to adopt alternative energy technologies including wind turbines by removing any regulatory barriers that impose unnecessary costs or delays to householders wanting to install them.

The planning system also needs to take account of the amenity of neighbours and the wider community. We are therefore now examining how to amend the permitted development rights for householders to install all categories of microgeneration equipment, in a way that will help promote the technologies while safeguarding amenity.

We shall be reporting to Parliament with proposals as we have committed to do under the Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Bill.
